ROOSEVELT GETS NEWS FROM REPORTERS

They Fail to Interview Him About Politics, but He Finds Out All About Trust Prosecutions and Other Home Affairs

Ex-President Laughs as He Tells How Near He Came to Cabling Congratulations to Cook on Discovery of Pole

KABAK, THE SOUDAN, March 12.—Slipping swiftly down the Nile on the steamer Dal, somewhere between this edge of the civilized world and Khartoum, where he is due to-morrow, former President Roosevelt feels better now.

Why? Well he knows what has happened in the twelve months that he has been in the wilderness.

The group of correspondents who came thousands of miles to get his views on American and world politics are following on astern on their own boat, the Abbas. They found out what some of them long have known; that when he does not want to talk for publication Colonel Roosevelt can be as tight as money in a Wall Street panic. In addition he has shown again that he is just about the best interviewer in the world himself.

Dinner to the Reporters.

He gave the correspondents a dinner aboard the Dal last night and it was late when he let go the punch which he applied to the correspondents singly and together. If there is any question which he did not ask, the boys said later, they could not recall it.

The political situation in New York, Ohio, in Washington, the "malefactors of great wealth," the anti-trust suits, the Cook-Peary Polar controversy, all had their moment in his lightning inquisition.

With that old-time Roosevelt candor, the Colonel blurted out that he had a narrow escape from sending a cable of congratulation to Dr. Cook when he first heard that Dr. Cook had reached the North Pole.

"Narrow escape, wasn't it," he laughed. "I'm mighty glad my old friend Peary got there, enough. It is one of the greatest exploits in the history of human exploration. And isn't it fine to think of Old Glory flying away up on top of the earth? I'm mighty glad an American did it. It's bully, that's what it is."

Nothing on Politics.

Through the long dinner, with every trained correspondent using every particle of his science to lure the mighty Tmalo into some statement on world affairs, especially the American political and industrial situation, the former President laughed and talked and questioned, and the net result for publication was in need of just one word for the cables.

"Nothing!" That, essentially, tells what Roosevelt said. But how he did cram his own material more into words. When he goes down to Cairo he will know more about the situation over in America than most of the wise politicians who are there on that job.

Roosevelt was frankly delighted to hear of the big doings in preparation to welcome him home.

"I thought they were the limit when I came away," he said with lots of enthusiasm, "but it's good to hear you boys say I'm still in good standing. I'm mighty glad to be on the way home, I assure you."

Mr. Roosevelt is hard at work completing the story of his African hunt, and will also spend hours of the day between now and his arrival at Naples in the preparation of the lectures that he is to give in Paris, Berlin and London.

The Dal left to-day for Khartoum and will arrive there to-morrow, one day ahead of schedule time and four days ahead of the original schedule.

Lavish Entertainment.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Ethel Roosevelt may not reach Khartoum until after the arrival of the Colonel and Kermit, the latest word from them being that they expected to arrive Monday. Four days will be spent at Khartoum, the party leaving Thursday. While in Khartoum the Roosevelts will be the guests of Slatin Pasha, the inspector general of the Soudan, at the palace.

The entertainment at Khartoum, while unofficial in character, will nevertheless be on a lavish scale and will include several receptions and visits to the most interesting places in the city and the nearby country.

"Went Limit" in Farewell.

Leaving Khartoum, steps will be made at Assuan and Luxor, where the old palaces will be visited.

There was not room aboard the Dal for the correspondents and they are making the return trip to Khartoum on the Abbas. Mr. Roosevelt seemed keenly appreciative of the great interest taken in America over his return.

"I thought they had gone the limit in giving me such a wonderful farewell, but it's good to know that you are still in good standing."

TAFT'S BROTHER-IN-LAW, WORTH $20,000,000, IS SUICIDE BY SHOOTING

Thomas K. Laughlin's Death by His Own Hand Causes Sensation in Pittsburg.

Mrs. Thomas K. Laughlin.

PITTSBURG, March 12.—Thomas K. Laughlin, brother-in-law of President Taft, assistant treasurer of the great Jones & Laughlin steel interests, and worth $20,000,000, is a suicide. He sent a bullet through his brain some time during Thursday night in his mansion on Woodlawn Road.

Efforts by wealthy relatives to suppress the facts were successful until this afternoon, when Coroner Samuel Jamison, after forcing an investigation, made the public announcement:

"The Laughlin case is one of suicide. He blew out his brains."

There is a report that Mrs. Laughlin, who is a sister of Mrs. Taft, was in Washington when her husband killed himself and that she was hurried back here even before the news of the death was made public. She had gone to Washington to attend the White House musicale last evening.

Just Returned from Europe.

Mrs. Laughlin refuses to be interviewed. Her friends say she has been here all the time, and that she herself found the lifeless body of her husband yesterday morning. It was late yesterday afternoon before the partners of Mr. Laughlin were informed of his death, although they were told he had died at 8 a. m.

The latest developments warrant the belief that the millionaire killed himself in his study after dinner Thursday evening.

Mr. Laughlin returned from Europe only last Monday. Since then he had been busy settling up business matters that had accumulated during his absence. The condition in which he left his affairs indicates that the suicide was not in a fit of temporary insanity, but the act was a result of a well-laid plan.

Drs. T. M. T. McKennan and W. B. Ingraham, who had been called in by the Laughlin family after the head of the house was found dead, made a report: "Death by cerebral hemorrhage."

The coroner, after his investigation said this afternoon:

"I found that these hemorrhages were caused by a forty-eight calibre bullet, sent through the brain by Laughlin's own hand."

Had Been Acting Queerly.

Relatives say Mr. Laughlin had been acting queerly since the death, several months ago, of his father, Major George M. Laughlin. Father and son were fond of flowers. A conservatory worth $150,000 was erected on the grounds surrounding the Laughlin mansion. Mrs. Thomas K.

3 CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH AS OIL STOVE EXPLODES

Gloucester Mother Dashes Into Flames and Saves Baby. Others Meet Death.

LITTLE DWELLING RUINED

Mrs. Margaret Wagner Fights Neighbors in Frantic Effort to Rescue Little Ones.

GLOUCESTER, March 12.—Three children were burned to death here to-night when an oil stove exploded, setting fire to the little ones, and ruining the frame dwelling of Mrs. Margaret Wagner in Commercial court. At the risk of her life the brave mother dashed through the wall of flame and rescued her baby, two-year-old, Marion.

Neighbors and policemen had to overpower the grief-crazed woman to prevent her rushing back to certain death in a mad effort to save her boy and girl, whose shrieks were heard above the crackling of the flames.

The children who perished were Lewis Wagner, aged eight years; Bertha Wagner, aged ten, and George Guthrie, twelve, son of Mrs. Mabel Guthrie of Boston.

The fire started at about 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. Guthrie and her son have been in this city for several days past. They were boarding with Mrs. Wagner. This afternoon Mrs. Guthrie went to Boston, intending to return here to-night and take her boy home with her on the late train.

Covered With Blazing Oil.

Lewis Wagner and George Guthrie had gone to bed in the little low-ceilinged bedroom in the "L" of the small frame cottage where Mrs. Wagner, a widow, with three little ones resided. Bertha Wagner and her baby sister, Marion, occupied another bed in the same room.

All the children were asleep. Mrs. Wagner was sitting in the dining-room of the little home doing some Saturday night mending. The night being chilly, she had lighted the oil heater and placed it in the middle of her childrens' bedroom. She had turned the flame rather high. Then she partly closed the draft.

Suddenly a tremendous puff and explosion shook the little house. The report was loud. In an instant the mother by instinct, as it were, realized what had happened.

She rushed to the bedroom where her darlings were. As she flung open the door a blinding mass of flame swooped at her. The whole bedroom was blazing, for the burning oil had been thrown in every direction.

Mother Saves One Child.

Nothing daunted, the woman, forgetful of herself and thinking only of the children whose shrill shrieks of fear and agony wrung her heart to torture, sprang into the fiery furnace and groped her way to the first bed. She seized baby Marion and ran out to the street.

Before the woman was met by scores of neighbors who heard the explosion and saw the flames leaping from the windows of the doomed home. They bore the little girl away to the home of a neighbor. Marion as if by a miracle, was untouched by the fire.

Mrs. Wagner dashed again into her home. Shriek after shriek from the blazing bedroom told everyone of the fate of the three children there. Everyone saw that to enter that cauldron of flame meant death for her. A dozen men leaped for her and stopped her.

"My children! My poor, poor children!" screamed the woman. "Can't anyone save my children?"

Flames Still Screams.

Men and women turned away sick at heart. Once more the woman made a desperate attempt to dive through the sea of fire to her boy and girl, whose cries were fast becoming stifled by flame and smoke. Just then the fire and police departments came, and policemen helped the neighbors overpower and send away the crazed woman.

Four streams of water soon were playing on the little frame house, but before the flames were subdued no noise but the crackle of fire, the hiss of water and the roar from the burning building, and finally the roof of the ell where the bedroom was, fell through with a crash.

After an hour's hard fighting the firemen extinguished the blaze, and through the red hot ashes men hurried to the wreck of the bedroom. Two charred bodies, arm in arm, were in one bed. They were all that was left of Lewis Wagner and George Guthrie. On the floor, midway between the beds, was another dismembered trunk. It was the body of poor little Bertha Wagner. Its position showed that she had risen from her bed and had tried to fight her way through the fire to the door, but had fallen when half way out.

SEVEN KILLED IN MINE EXPLOSION

Fierce Fire is Extinguished by Rescuers After Hours of Effort.

WILKESBARRE, March 12—At twelve-thirty the rescuing party reached the dead men, there were seven. They had all been killed by the explosion and fire damp. The fire was quenched.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 12. A terrific explosion of gas in the No. 5 colliery of the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company, on South Wilkes-Barre, to-night shut in from ten to fifteen men who, if they were not killed by the explosion, have but little chance of escape owing to a fierce fire which followed the explosion.

This fire and a fall of roof near where the men were working has so far prevented a large force of workers reaching them, and every minute lessens their chances of escaping.

The deadly after-damp following the explosion has gathered in large quantities and this is keeping the rescuers from the face of the fire. An effort is now being made to carry air into the mine in order to get rid of this after-damp and permit the fire fighters to get within striking distance of the fire.

It is supposed that unknown to the men in the shaft a large body of gas had gathered, and that this was ignited by their lamps. The explosion was a terrific one.

A DEADLY $1 BILL, SURE.

92,000,000 Assorted Germs Found on a Case Note.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Representative Wiley of New Jersey before a subcommittee of the house committee on banking and currency to-day, in the interests of his bill for clean paper currency, read a statement from a bacteriologist who had discovered, on a $1 bill, 92,000,000 living organisms of various kinds. Among the germs were bacteria of small pox, scarlet fever, tuberculosis, typhoid fever and other deadly maladies.

POPE REVISES HIS WILL.

Uneasiness in Rome Caused by Pontiff's Talk with Lawyer.

ROME, March 12.—Considerable uneasiness was manifested here when it became known that the Pope had a long conference last evening with Messer Garroso, his attorney. It is said that the Pope called in the lawyer to dictate some changes in his will.

The health of the Pope is satisfactory, but he is nevertheless, considered significant that he should have been closeted with his lawyer for more than two hours. The purpose of Garroso's visit has not yet been explained at the Vatican.

POOR GIRL WINS GERARD.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Julian M. Gerard, brother of Jenifer James W. Gerard, and prominent in New York society because of the old-time social prestige of the Gerard family, has married his stenographer, who was born and raised in Hoboken. She was Miss Elizabeth Schedel, daughter of a German [illegible]rector.

Rumor had it that Gerard was to wed a daughter of one of the wealthiest families of the upper Fifth avenue section. His brother, James, a new justice of the Supreme Court, married Miss Mary Daly, daughter of the late Marcus Daly. Her inheritance was $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

ACTOR IS SUICIDE ON A STEAMSHIP

Juggler Shoots Himself Just as Liner Starts from a New York Pier.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Within a few minutes after the liner Adriatic left her pier to-day for Southampton, Eldere Beppo, of Dartford, England, committed suicide in his stateroom, shooting himself through the head. His body was taken from the liner in midstream by tug and later claimed by friends.

Beppo was an assistant in vaudeville acts. Recently he had been working with a juggler and was under contract with a vaudeville agent of Broadway.

By mistake, the baggage of Alfred Burgess of Camden, N. J., was put off with the body and this caused a report that Burgess was the suicide. He and Beppo had been assigned to the same state room.

As the Adriatic was pulling away from her pier an officer on the bridge shouted through a megaphone that a man had cried his life in one of the second cabin rooms. The tug R. J. Barnett raced to the Adriatic and the body was lowered.

The White Huts of America, will look after Beppo's body pending word from his family in England.

To-day is Passion Sunday on the calendar of the Catholic church. Next Sunday will be Palm Sunday and the following Sunday, March 27, Easter Sunday.

The devotion of the Forty Hours will begin to-day in the following churches: St. Paul's, Cambridge; St. Patrick's, Natick; Immaculate Conception, Malden and St. Stephens', Boston.

EAT CROW, HINTS WILEY.

WASHINGTON, March 12. "You can also acquire a taste for crow."

This was one of the comments made to-day by Dr. Harvey Wiley, chief United States chemist, after breakfasting on cottoned-seed meal cakes and confections furnished to him by Secretary of War Dickinson.

The value of cottonseed meal in breads and cakes, and generally as a food, is to be ascertained by the Agricultural Department.

$200,000,000 PHONE ISSUE.

NEW YORK, March 12. The recommendation of President Theodore N. Vail of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company that the capital stock be increased from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 will be acted upon favorably by the stockholders at a special meeting to be held on March 29, the day of the regular annual meeting. The stock exchange received notice of the proposed to-day.

Patrick Lanegan Crushed by Falling Wall as Flames Wipe Out Machine Shop; $500,000 Damage; Menace Powerhouse

Conflagration Drives Hundreds from Tenements in Panic and Threatens to Wipe Out Large Section — Twelve Injured

ONE fireman lost his life and a dozen other men were injured and over [illegible] by smoke in a spectacular fire yesterday afternoon that completely destroyed the Boston Elevated machine shop and store rooms at Albany and Dalton Parkstreets and did damage that was estimated at $500,000.

The feature of the fire, aside from the fact that it lighted up the south end of Boston so that the glow could be seen for miles, was the crushing out of the life of Captain Patrick F. Lanegan of Engine Company No. 14. Although nearly every bone in the body of the brave fireman was broken, he lived six hours and was conscious up to within a minute of his end to the City Hospital.

Lanegan lost his life in a desperate and successful attempt to keep the flames from reaching across the narrow space of fifteen feet and igniting the big United Shoe Machinery building that adjoined the doomed structure of the Elevated company.

Buried in Debris.

The fire had reduced the big structure to four smoke-begrimed, tottering walls. Lanegan started to pass through the narrow alleyway with blinding smoke and steam whirling above him. Unwarned, there toppled from above stone and brick and pinned the man to the earth.

Eager hands dug the crushed man from beneath two feet of debris. Although it was plain that he had been probably mortally hurt, yet Lanegan retained conscious[illegible]. Fire Chief Mullen's automobile was at hand and Lanegan was lifted into the machine and rushed to the City Hospital.

Standing on the roof of the Church of the Immaculate Conception at this time, watching the flames leap skyward, was the Rev. Father George Kreland. He saw the automobile and in it the form of a fire fighter. The priest ran downstairs, put on his robes and hastened to the hospital. He was admitted to the casualty ward, where the suffering man lay.

The doctors had made a hasty examination. Nearly every limb they touched contained a broken bone. Besides that he was so terribly burned that they saw that alone would have proved fatal. They told the priest that the man could not live. The priest moved to the side of the little cot, where the dreamy, who had risked his life for twenty-two years, lay in the uniform which he was never to need for duty again.

Knew Death Was Near.

"Do you know that you are about to die?" Captain Lanegan was asked.

"Yes," he replied in a low voice. "I know it and I am not afraid."

The priest heard the confession of the dying man and then administered the last solemn rites of the church. The doctors tried to alleviate the pain as much as possible, but they gave him nothing that dulled his mentality, which seemed to live after life had gone from his broken and bruised body.

As the minutes passed into hours the

WHERE, OH, WHERE IS BROTHER HENRY?

Not at City Hall, and Mayor Says He Won't Be, Either, for Four Long Years.

Just thirty-three days have elapsed since the new administration has assumed the management of the city's affairs, and Henry S. Fitzgerald, familiarly known as "Brother Henry," has yet to make his first appearance at City Hall.

During the first Fitzgerald administration "Brother Henry" was the right-hand man of the Mayor. His word was law in wantever matters John F. delegated to him to attend.

Henry Fitzgerald will be one of the notable absentees from City Hall for the next four years, however. His absence which has been noted, is not a coincidence but by design. It is his own wish to be entirely divorced from municipal matters. It is the Mayor's wish also.

"Henry wants to forget about city affairs. He desires to devote his entire time to his business, and he made that determination long before election," said the Mayor. "No man in the city has done more to assist his friends than he. He has worked night and day helping others without ever receiving a penny for it, and his only reward is to have his motives misconstrued and become the victim of malicious falsehoods.

"After the election my brother took me that his interest in my success was the only thing that led him to take part in the mayoralty contest at all. While I felt that he could give me valuable assistance, I agreed with him that rather than leave myself open to such unjust attacks again it would be better to divorce himself entirely from all municipal matters.

"He has not been at City Hall since I was inaugurated and he will not be here for the next four years, unless it is imperative that he see me on some personal matter entirely apart from the city's business. He's reading to his business, and that takes up all his available time."

GUNBOAT RAMS SCHOONER.

Vicksburg in Collision Off Frisco; Escapes Damage.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—The gunboat Vicksburg was in collision with a schooner and a tug here to-day. The Vicksburg was undamaged but the other boats were crippled.

MISS RITCHIE'S FIST LANDS ON COMEDIAN

CHICAGO, March 12.—Adele Ritchie, prima donna with Carter de Haven in "The Girl in the Taxi" at the Cort Theatre, boxed his ears, punched the diminutive comedian in the jaw, and then proceeded to demolish stage scenery when De Haven went to the front on her encore last night.

The imbroglio happened directly after the curtain had fallen on the last act. There was a burst of applause from the audience and De Haven stepped to the front as the curtain rose for the encore. Miss Ritchie attempted to assert her rights but De Haven pushed her back.

As De Haven left the stage, Miss Ritchie pounced upon him. She slapped his face and then doubling up her fist hit him. Stage hands and members of the company attempted to separate them, but not before the audience had seen the set-to. In the struggle stage furniture was overturned and demolished.

When the struggling actress was at last pulled away from De Haven, she satisfied her anger by kicking a property mail box down a flight of stairs.

Both the principals were hurried into closed cabs directly after they emerged from their dressing rooms.

Miss Ritchie is robust and quite as athletic as her great chum, Mrs. Tom Pierce of Boston. De Haven is about as fat as the fourth illusion.

MIDDY FASTS THREE DAYS.

Worcester Senior at Annapolis None Worse for Lack of Food.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 12.—Midshipman Charles L. Brand of Worcester, Mass., a member of the graduating class of the Naval Academy, has just made good an assertion made to members of his class that he could abstain from food for many days without bad effect.

FIREMEN, IN DEATH PERIL, SAVE $3,000,000 'L' POWER HOUSE

sufferer showed himself as great a hero in death as he was in life. Not a word of complaint, of fear, of regret, passed his pale lips. The Rev. Father James J. Reiz, a Jesuit priest, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, went to the bedside and chatted softly with Lanigan, it gave him words of comfort and offered a prayer while the fireman breathed the words in repetition.

Thomas Lanigan, a brother, waited in the room. Tears streamed from his eyes as he saw the stalwart form prostrate on the cot and realized that the shadows of death had begun to hover about him. Good byes were spoken and messages of love given to be carried from lips that grew whiter and whiter.

Nephew at Deathbed.

Lanigan had been hurt about 2:30. He died at 8:45. He was about fifty years of age and a bachelor. He lived at No. 148 M street, South Boston. His funeral will be from the house of his brother, Thomas, who also lives in South Boston.

Four alarms were rung in and it was only by the descent literally falling their lives in their hands that the fire was kept from spreading to the $3,000,000 power house of the Elevated Company and the United Shoe Machinery building that stood on either side of the burning structure. A favorable breeze from the northeast helped the fire fighters to save the power house.

All the time the firemen were at work they were in danger of some of the new work of wires that ran into the yard overhead snapping and falling upon them. A touch from one of those heavily charged wires would have meant a death shock.

The dead and injured follow:

Dead and Injured.

Captain Patrick Lanigan, Engine Company 12. Crushed under falling brick. Died at City Hospital.

Lieutenant Kenealy, Tower Company 2. Overcome by smoke.

Joseph M. Donovan, hoseman. Overcome by smoke.

John J. Blake, hoseman. Overcome by smoke.

Women Panic Stricken.

The block in which the fire took place is bounded on the east by Albany street, on the west by Harrison avenue, on the north by Randolph and on the south by Union park street. Besides the two large structures of the Elevated Company in the large part of ground owned by the company there stands, in one corner of the block, a three-story warehouse building, in another a six-story brick building occupied by the Emerson Piano Company, the United Shoe Machinery building and a row of tenements packed by several hundred people.

The women and children in the tenements and the girls in the laundry fled from the buildings in a panic. Men and women in the upper stories of the structures that were in danger also fled.

Stocks of Great Value.

The building that faced on Albany street was four stories in height. The part of the building that faced on Albany street was used as a machine shop. In the western wing on all of the floors were stored the valuable armatures and machinery which the company rebuilds for its several lines. The stock there generally runs in value from $250,000 to $300,000.

On the third floor, about the centre of the building, is the armature repair room. Usually the men there knock off work at 5 o'clock, but yesterday there was extra work for them, and they were busy about 2 o'clock repairing an armature. To do this work they used benzine, which is a mixture of gasolene and naphtha. A small can exploded. It was said, and the blaze shot through the room, finding plenty of inflammable material to feed upon.

Two More Alarms Sent In.

There was a scurrying of the men to places of safety and a cry of fire resounded through the room, soon to be taken up in the big building and carried to the yard there. It was 2:30 o'clock when the first alarm was sent in and soon the firemen battled up the border. Then, one after one or three minutes and one glance at the danger down the firemen sent in. Soon it is for a bitter battle. At 2:01 the second alarm was sent in and two minutes later the third. This brought a big fire fighting force and they tackled the building from all sides.

The glass in the windows fell with a clatter followed by a crackling sound and flames leaped out with a red flare that had a blue border. Then out through the veil of smoke and palsied a fantastic picture. The sky was overcast, with a background of mingled black and silver. In the distance the sun was struggling to break through which the blazing sun shone like a copper ball.

The glass in a great portion of the South End and those who could not leave their homes to run to the fire itself stood in the street and gazed with a sort of awe at the conflagration beforehand.

Chimney a Menace.

For twenty minutes the firemen had been doing heroic services. They could only hope for one thing—to control the seething torrent of flames that coursed through the structure to the area bounded by the walls. Between the burning building and the shoe machinery structure there was a space of perhaps fifty feet. Any leap from the one to the doomed building to the big power house on the other side would be impossible. Rising, towering from the northwest corner of the machine shop was a chimney that reached perhaps 150 feet among the flame and smoke, and about 100 feet above ground from the bricks of this great structure and it was feared that they would begin to fall in the yard below. Had it fallen it would have crushed scores.

Chief Mullen feeling that more apparatus would serve to insure the safety of the adjoining buildings, sent in a fourth alarm. At the base of the tall chimney stood a small power house which furnished the force with which to run the machinery in the shop building. From the roof of this structure Fireman Henry Barrett was directing a stream when he was struck by part of a falling wall and knocked backward to a heap of scrap iron below.

200 "L" Men Fight Fire.

One of the wildest men at the fire was a man who was in the power house at the back of his neck and could not get it out until he had removed about all of the clothing from the upper part of his body. He was Supt. Eugene M. Byrington, of the repair division of the Elevated road. His work was severely burned and he suffered excruciating torture until the relief was reached and removed by a brother fireman.

The Elevated employes are very proud of their local fire service and they shouted they could not have done more. More than 200 of them assembled in the yard from their own box 3. Their judgment will cost the company a good many thousands, possibly hundreds of thousands, for the city firemen will not be called in. It was called that a good half hour was lost during which the fire made rapid headway.

At the first alarm, fire boats Nos. 44 and 47 responded and threw water into the lumber wharfs. Three lines of hose were laid from the nearest fire hydrant to the firemen in helping to prevent the spread of the flames.

While the fire was at its highest Captain Martin Kennedy of Ladder 17 and Lieutenant Frank Kinealy of Tower 2 were directing streams from the roof of a wooden building next to the power house. When the wall of the foundry collapsed Kennedy was buried in a cloud of smoke and debris. For a while it looked as if they had been crushed to death, but it fallen inward. Captain Kenealy was hit on the head by a brick, causing a severe scalp wound.

Knocked Out by Smoke.

Lieutenant Kinealy and Hoseman Joseph M. Donovan, George Fraser and John Blake were overcome by the smoke. They were carried to the street, revived and sent to their posts. The work of this little company helped to do with saving a big load lessen afforded by the fire department.

William Jones, an employee of the power house, was wedged in a door and most of the building when an alarm from Box 3 was sent in. He was finally assisted for the fire in the armature room.

"There were fifteen men in the room with me at the time," said Jones, "and when the fire came in we rushed for the armature room to help fight the flames. When we got there the entire room seemed was a blazing furnace and we had to flee for our lives."

R. L. Edwards, treasurer of the Boston Elevated Company, conservatively placed the damage to the armature building at between $400,00 and $500,000. Millions of dollars worth of property and goods will be saved in adjoining and adjacent buildings by the fire department's prompt action, he said. The burned building was erected in 1872 by the Hinckley & Williams Manufacturing Co. It was 100 feet long and 125 feet in width. It was owned by several insurance companies.

Car Service Endangered.

On the first floor were the offices and heavy machinery, trucks and gearings. The next floor was used as a general store house. On the third floor the damage of $250,000 was done. The third floor was used for the storage of light machinery, and was also used as a repair shop. The estimate of the damage to the building made by Mr. Wilson was confirmed by A. W. Neal, the general auditor, and D. B. Prendergast of the engineering force.

The entire plant of the "L" at this location covers 3 acres. The burned building covering an area of 225,000 square feet. The building 150 feet to the north of the burned building is the main power house, where the firemen made their stand and checked the spread of the flames.

If the building had been destroyed the entire service would have been crippled and the damage would have mounted into millions of dollars. Over $1,800,000 worth of machinery is located in the main building, while "L" officials says that at least $3,000,000 worth of property would have been lost if the building had been destroyed.

SECRET SOCIETIES IN HIGH SCHOOL STIR A MERRY WAR

"Girls Get So Stuck Up," Say Leaders Bound to Break Up the "Frats."

BROCKTON, March 12.—Secret societies in the High School or no secret societies? That's the question in Brockton. And it has stirred up one of the greatest hubbubs that has ever agitated this great shoe town.

There are 1,100 pupils in the Brockton High school and practically every one of them belongs to a society with a name that's driven their parents to the dictionary. It has also driven them to revolt—and it is now a case of Pupils vs. Parents.

The whole matter is to be threshed out mostly committees from each of the six fraternities and a sub-committee of the School Board. The meetings begin on Monday. The parents and the school officials are sure that the school organizations are wrong; that they breed cliques, cause certain members to appear "stuck up," and take too much time from the studies.

The pupils say, "Poppa, nothing of the kind!" So there you are.

Miss Bessie Pierce, one of the committee of the Jinnitas, says there is no favoritism in her club.

"There has been no objection by anybody, so far as I know, to the fraternity of which I am a member, because we do not hold any evening meetings, and when we do get together we have a jolly good time," said Miss Pierce. "Girls from the best families and the wealthiest families in Brockton are members of our clubs, as well as girls in poorer circumstances."

Mr. Keaton, a member of the committee which will conduct the hearings, graduate of the local high school and of Brown University and he belonged to two fraternities. He was a star baseball pitcher at Brown.

"It is my private opinion that fraternities in public schools tend to undermine the spirit of democracy in the public schools, which is democracy.

"For instance, I know of a girl who was elected to a fraternity in the Brockton High school, became an Inspector, and after her election that she refused to speak to a girl who formerly was a fraternity member. The fact that she had been elected to a fraternity made her stuck up.

"I believe that secret societies in public schools often do a great deal of harm by controlling class elections.

Pave Way for Graft.

Oscar F. Sager, a member of the School Board and instructor of manual training at the Hyde Park High school, is also of the same position at the local High School, also a prominent business man, strongly opposed to the establishment of fraternities in the High School. His position in the High School is similar to that of Prof. Mr. Sager said:

"Although I belong to several fraternal organizations, I am opposed to them among public school boys and girls. They do not stimulate the spirit of the public school in developing cliques among the students. They also tend to produce graft among the students, and God knows they don't get enough graft in the life without forcing it at school.

"I have known fraternities to throw their support in electing members of a class committee, thereby getting control of their organization in order that those members, re-elected, would purchase photographs for themselves and friends.

The sub-committee which will conduct the hearings will be held in private consists of Frank L. Eaton, C. Chester Cook and Colon B. Keith, all of whom are prominent in social, religious, political and business life of the city. Mr. Erskine is president of the Common Council.

Speak for Fraternities.

The first hearing of the committee will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the High School building. There are five secret societies among the girls in the school and two among the girls. The first hearing will be represented by Harry H. Johnson, Jack Rapp, and James W. Collins.

The Jinnitas, fraternity, has selected Donald M. Keith, Stewart W. Gurney, and Harold Jackson.

The Epsilon fraternity will be represented by H. C. Gardner, H. L. Perkins and Harry C. Browne.

The Omnitas, an organization of girls, will send to plead their case the Misses Marion B. Pierce, daughter of Charles S. Pierce, the well known manufacturer; Mabel B. Hastings, daughter of A. B. Hastings, the wealthy merchant of Campello, and Ethel M. Hatchler.

The Iota, another girls' club will be represented by Helen D. Haywood, Edna F. Safford and Gladys T. White. All are students.

SECRET SOCIETIES IN NEW HEIR TO FORTUNE OF TURF KING IN BOSTON

LEGAL steps are being taken to protect the interest of Miss Beatrice Anita Baldwin Turnbull, now said to be studying at a Boston boarding school. In the $25,000,000 estate left by her father, the late "Lucky" Baldwin of California.

"Lucky" Baldwin's right name was Elias Jackson Baldwin. The girl, whose claim in the estate is said to amount to $5,000,000 or $6,000,000, is declared to be the daughter of "Lucky" Baldwin and his former housemaid, Mrs. Ashley. The mother has since married a man named Turnbull and is said to be in Boston with her daughter.

These claims became known yesterday through the filing in the Probate Court, in Los Angeles, Cal., of a petition by Lord J. Mignolet, who asks to be appointed guardian for the girl. Retained as Los Angeles counsel for the girl are Timothy W. Cook, Jr., formerly of Boston, now of Los Angeles, and Isador B. Dockweiler of that city. Associated with these counsel and looking after the Eastern end of the case are Walter H. Grant of this city and Walter B. McCorkle of New York.

The petition for guardianship recites that the girl is a minor and is entitled to one-third if the Baldwin estate. The petition also says that the girl was born in Los Angeles and is the legitimate issue of Baldwin and Lillian J. Ashley Turnbull.

The basis of the claim is an alleged common law marriage between Baldwin and Lillian J. Ashley, but this marriage it is acknowledged, has since become a "void" marriage. Lawyers are relying upon the California statute which declares that all children of a "void" marriage are legitimate. At the time of the birth of the girl a common law marriage was recognized as valid one, though the law of California has since declared such marriage illegal.

The Baldwin will, which has been admitted to probate, bequeaths nothing to children of the turf king. These are Clara Baldwin Maloney of Arcadia, Cal.; Anita Baldwin McClaughery of Berkeley, Cal., and Rose Selby of Oakland, Cal.

FIVE HORSES BURNED.

Firemen Reach Union Ice Company Stables Too Late to Rescue.

Five horses were suffocated by smoke at a fire last night in the wooden stable owned and occupied by the transportation department of the Union Ice Company, the company on the flats off Mystic avenue, Somerville. The driver of a team which was passing the stable saw smoke coming from the windows. He drove post haste to Union street and Mystic avenue, three-quarters of a mile away, and pulled in Box No. 45. This box call found the Somerville department in that section and had to make a detour of the locality.

When the firemen reached the stable, after much difficulty, they were unable to save the horses. The damage was $2,000.

MRS. L. ANDERSON SPONSOR.

Well-Known Boston Woman to Christen Navy Destroyer.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Mrs. Lara Anderson, a daughter of Commodore George P. Perkins, has been invited by the Secretary of the Navy to be sponsor for the torpedo boat destroyer which is to be named after her father. Mrs. Anderson accepted. The Perkins will be launched at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company April 19.

BANDIT FIRES SHOT.

Bullet Passes Near Man He Tries to Rob.

A highwayman attempted to hold up William H. Carleton of No. 165 Bennington street, East Boston, and Daniel A. Cosgrove of No. 1 Prospect street, Revere, Boston, at a lonely and unlighted section of the main road between Lynn and Revere, last night. When the men refused to obey his command to halt, he fired a shot from a revolver, the bullet passing close to Cosgrove's head. Directly behind the wagon in which the two men were driving was another containing Walter Brasche of Union place, East Boston, and the two rigs raced to the nearest telephone in Revere and notified the police.

'MOULIN ROUGE' GETS CHANCE IN BOSTON

Watch and Ward Society on Deck First Night Ready to Act.

Who's going to see "The Mulligan Rough" tomorrow night?

Answer—The Watch and Ward Society is going to be there with its hair in a braid.

Of course, "The Mulligan Rough" is not its proper name. "The Moulin Rouge" is its proper name—the proper name, so some have said. Anyhow, "Rouge" or "Rough," proper or improper, the Final Potter production is to burst upon Boston to-morrow night at the Boston Theatre if nothing unexpected happens.

This piece showed in Boston last Spring—almost—but was all ready to open when it ran against former Mayor Hibbard, who had seen it in New York.

On account of the excitement attending the "play or no play" in that case, which the gay and saucy "Moulin Rouge" was nick-named the "Mulligan Rough," there was much easier for many to pronounce.

The Watch and Ward Society has been hammering at Mayor Fitzgerald to stop the play before it started here. The Warden and Ward quoted the ruling of former-Mayor Hibbard. But Mayor Fitzgerald said:

"Mayor Hibbard had seen the play. I have not. I don't know anything about it."

Mayor Fitzgerald gives the play the benefit of the doubt. Maybe he will be there to-morrow night to see it. The Watch and Ward Society will have representatives there to "censor" the production to be, if not. Burray for the "Mulligan Rough"!

CARTER'S INK NEW HOME.

Employers and Employes Share in House-Warming.

The new, fire-story brick and concrete home of The Carter's Ink Company at First and Athenaeum streets, East Cambridge, was christened with a house-warming last night. Members of the firm, employes and their friends participated. There was a collation and a vaudeville entertainment by employes, dancing and music. Over 500 were present. Among the firm directorate were President H. B. Carter, Treasurer J. R. Carter, General Manager C. B. Gordon, Clerk E. C. Burrage and Advertising Manager F. W. Tatt.

Give Dance to Aid Scholarship.

A dance for a scholarship fund, to help along young men trying to get an education, will be given by the Progressive Self Educational Club in Howe hall, No. 174 Huntington avenue, on the evening of March 18.

WELLESLEY GIRLS FIGHT FOR UNION

Order 1,000 Shirt Waists Bearing "Label" in Move to Aid the Strikers.

The leading women colleges of the East were represented at a conference held last night in College Hall, Wellesley, to consider "Christianity and the Social Problems." Prof. Philip M. Rhinelander of the Cambridge Theological School opened the discussion and will speak to-day on "Our Preparation for Social Service."

Other speakers were Miss Margaret Slattery of the Fitchburg Normal School, Miss Margaret Sherman of Bryn Mawr College, Miss Christine Friedmann, an alumni of Smith College; Miss Caroline Hilliar, national secretary of the Students' Y. W. C. A. Delegates were present from Radcliffe, Vassar, Smith, Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Boston University, Mt. Holyoke and Wellesley.

Announcement was made that Wellesley students will order from New York Lodge shirt waists bearing the union label, this action being brought about through the efforts of members of the Wellesley chapter of the consumers' League, of which Miss Louise Whittaker is president, to notify all of those interested that the endorsement of the label on shirt waists will prove more practical than the proposition first considered, to use a ribbon for the striking shirt-waist makers of New York.

Prof. Emily G. Baker of the Wellesley Economic Department to-night said:

"The milk women will not accept the union label shirt waist only, the cause would be helped materially."

FIGHTS TO SAVE MONEY.

Patrolman Comes to Rescue of Dominick Look.

After a fierce struggle in which several hundred spectators participated, Charles McHugh, 26 years old, of Roxbury, was arraigned last night in Roxbury Officer Michael Foley charged with stealing $7 from Dominick Look of 20 Dover street, Washington. According to Look he was walking along Dover street when Foley approached him and proceeded to go through his pockets. Look struggled with the assailant and Officer Foley, who had seen the affair from across the street, joined in the struggle.

Funeral of Major Clark.

The funeral of Drum Major James F. Clark was held from Waterman's chapel, Roxbury, yesterday afternoon and largely attended. General Superintendent Post of the Grand Army conducted the burial services.

HELEN BLOODGOOD'S BODY IS FOUND IN A LAKE

No Question Now That Lost Heiress Committed Suicide While Despondent.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The body of Miss Helen Bloodgood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bloodgood of this city, was found late today in the waters of Lake Carmahlo, about a mile from the cottage in Lakewood, N. J., where she secretly left on her night attire last Wednesday morning.

It is regarded as certain that Miss Bloodgood rushed straight to the lake, after leaping from the balcony of the room in which she was watched by a trained nurse, and plunged to her death in a fit of depression.

Father Collapses at News.

Her father collapsed when the news of the finding of the body was brought to him. Because of another recent flight by the girl and her safe return, he was convinced he was alive and in hiding.

The body was found almost in the middle of the narrow shallow strip of water by boys who had been hired to drag the lake and had been taking the waters for two days.

Miss Bloodgood, an artist of this city, was probably the last person outside of Miss Bloodgood's immediate family and attendants to see her alive.

Solely a Case of Nerves.

"Helen was an odd friend of mine and seemed to dwindle in one month more than one else," said Miss Nelson tonight. "Three weeks ago, just before she was sent to Lakewood, she dropped in to see me. She seemed unduly restless and I remarked upon her apparent nervousness. She turned to me with a look of deep affection and said wistfully: 'Oh, Nellie dear, sometimes think I cannot stand the life here in New York. I want the country. In the spring, on a nice day like this I just feel tired I must get out or go wild.' Helen was not a girl given to exaggeration in speech. So she was simply humanly nervous."

FIND 65 INDICTMENTS.

No Mention of Faro Gang in Grand Jury's Report.

The Suffolk County Grand Jury reported yesterday having found sixty-five indictments and ignored the billsw. No mention was made of the faro gang or Coleman proceedings, and it is understood both are unfinished. Some of the indictments follow:

Edward J. Conroy, charged with the murder of his wife at No. 561 East First street, South Boston, on February 17; Ralph E. Bixbee, forgery; Harold C. Stone, forgery; Tony Berte, forgery; Thomas J. Kerwin, robbery.

Doctor in Lecture Puts Lepers on View

Fear of the Disease Being Contagious Is a Superstition. He Tells Audience.

NEW YORK, March 12.—There are at present perhaps a dozen cases of leprosy in New York and three always has been more or less of it during the thirty years I have been practising here. I have never, to that time seen any evidence that the disease is contagious."

Such was the declaration of Dr. L. Duncan Bulkley, the famous skin specialist, in a lecture before the Women's Medical Society, at the Skin and Cancer Hospital today.

Dr. Bulkley established two West Indian lepers who have been patients at the hospital for several months. The disease is well defined in both, one having developed into the tuberculous, characteristic of a certain stage of leprosy.

"These two patients," said Dr. Bulkley, "are permitted to mingle with the other patients. None are now suffering from contagious disease. The fear of leprosy is purely a superstition and comes down from Biblical times, yet the leprosy of the Bible was not the modern disease that we know."

NEWPORT EXILE LOSES.

Court Throws Out Divorce Appeal of Chorus Girl.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Mrs. Richard V. Harrison, Jr., the young British chorus girl who was exiled from Newport by her pitiless father-in-law two years ago, has again lost out in her fight to have the courts set aside the divorce decree awarded her husband on the ground that his father was to blame for the whole matrimonial trouble. The decree before Justice Richard E. Burnham, Sr., the manufacturer of Philadelphia.

The Supreme Court allowed Mrs. Harrison, Jr., $600 of her husband's money to defray from his estate the cost of the appeal to the Appellate division of the Supreme Court which was thus upheld. It is said that Mrs. Harrison may seek one her father-in-law for alienating her husband's affections.

DEATH OF EDWARD HATCH.

Prominent for Years as Real Estate Auctioneer.

Edward Hatch, one of the most amusing full real estate auctioneers in Boston, died yesterday at Cohasset, S. C. He was born in this city. In 1861 he became associated with his father in the auctioneering business. He first being Samuel Hatch & Son. Upon the death of his father Real Estate Exchange director, a founder and director of the Exchange Trust company, a prominent member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, a member of the Boston Athletic Club, Massachusetts Motor Club, Mercantile Library Association, Boston Yacht Club, Exchange Club, Algonquin and Puritan Clubs. He was unmarried. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Sarah Hatch Smith, one with two sisters and his brother, John C. Hatch of the Exchange Trust company.

LAWMAKERS OPPOSE 'SLAVE' BILL TO SAVE FEELINGS OF O'MEARA

THE fate of the White Slave bill in the Massachusetts Legislature will be decided tomorrow by a committee of State House strategists.

It became known last night that, notwithstanding the emphatic declaration of Senator Stephen O'Meara, the committee on Judiciary looks upon the original bill as altogether "too wild and woolly" for the Eastern sensibilities and a safer substitute will be reported.

It also became known last night that only or two members of this committee of seven lawyers are against reporting "some bill whatever" at least for this time—for fear O'Meara may regard the report as a reflection on him, personally.

Here are the gentlemen who have the White Slave bill under consideration:

Senator Tuttle,
Senator Bosson,
Senator Maclean,
Senator Tarbell,
Representative Mason,
Representative Bird,
Representative Riley,
Representative Kellogg,
Representative Saunders,
Representative Brayton,
Representative Wilson,
Representative Roberts,
Representative Fuller, Representative Turner.

Don't Want to Offend O'meara.

One of these attorneys has got considerable of a reputation as a reformer. That is the original bill, but it saves Mr. O'Meara's face by supplanting the bill asked for by the Hon. Edward F. Hall, the author of the Illinois statute, and recommended to Massachusetts by Rev. Richard J. Bartlett, Chicago.

Members of the Judiciary Committee read and forecasted of all legislative counsel, and, knowing Senator O'Meara, have offered the Boss of the Boston Police Department.

They gave Mr. O'Meara a private meeting the other day and, with nobody present to overhear, they told him, bluntly, that the White Slave bill and the Mann Act (Mann Act) were the two bills that Senator Hall would be Boston Police Department.

Counselor-for O'Meara—very little to think that the provision that relates to the taking of women from this State into another might be of service to our department.

He instanced a Boston case of this kind that eventually had to be dropped because it was found that there was no law to cover it. Many members of the proposed bill, O'Meara insisted, are simply repetitions of existing laws.

"Another side of the question that generally appears during these periods of excitement," he said, "is the suggestion that a removed last Sunday by one of our prominent publishers, that this law ought to be segregated in the community. Within a short time home from the time of the appearance I received a resolution signed by 600 citizens protesting against such a plan.

"Would you consider a favorable report on this measure as in any way a reflection upon your personality?" he was asked.

"Not at all," said O'Meara, "I should look at it as a confession of the existence of an evil that doesn't exist."

Double Office for Fabian.

H. A. Fabian, who has been appointed manager of purchases and supplies for both the New Haven and Boston & Maine systems, will have an office in the North Station as well as the one in the South Station, where he spends most of his time. He will share the offices used by George R. Ferguson, clerk to the general manager.

All Wrong, Says O'Meara.

"I don't know where there is something wrong with anybody who says there are 247 "houses" in Boston and 5,000 professional or semi-professional women baskets.

"All told," he said, "there probably are not more than 1,500 of these girls in the unseemly settled.

O'Meara defended the statistics of the Welch and Ward people. He described how their census was taken. Two agents of the society went into a street and noted the number of women who looked "off." This accounted, the police boss said, for such exact figures as sixty-three.

Coming down to young Mr. Roe of Chicago, O'Meara called him Young Mr. Roe. O'Meara said that in social evil matters Boston stood in comparison to the rest of the world as Faneuil Hall Market to the Union Stock Yards.

Young Mr. Roe, O'Meara said, had plainly revealed as gospel the plain figures of Agent Frank Chase of the Welch and Ward Society.

"And let me say to you," said O'Meara, "that the Roe who appeared before the committee was not the Mr. Roe of Chicago as he discusses the same subject on the lecture platform. Here he was talking to a committee made up of attorneys. Being an attorney himself he knew that he would be long within bounds. He couldn't be himself out here, as he can before a mixed audience."

"Law Not Needed Here."

Then Mr. O'Meara said that the law that is asked for in Massachusetts is a very good law indeed for Chicago. To enact the same legislation in Boston, however, Mr. O'Meara said, would be going after small game with a 15-inch gun from battleships.

As for the White Slave bill itself, when he got around to that O'Meara was certain sure it would lead to extremely dangerous conditions.

"For one thing, he said, it would be opening the door to women dominated by a desire for revenge. One of his people would send a man to State Prison for a term of years for an offense which under present statutes is merely a misdemeanor. All this would be necessary was the testimony of a woman looking for revenge.

O'Meara's experience has shown him, he said, that this class of testimony is the very worst of all. It is the one which leads most easily to a miscarriage of justice. He was certain there are many now in the State Prison for complaints of this nature who were sent away merely because women had turned against them and were actuated by motives of revenge.

The Commissioner had something to say about the viciousness of some girls who are under fourteen. He talked about a wicked man, who, in his opinion, have actually been led astray by bad girls and who have been made to pay the penalty, when, in fact, the sins have been the victims.

Strikes at Outsiders.

No holiday passes, the head of the Police Department declared, when Boston is not the Mecca of people from other towns and cities who come to Boston in couples and put up at hotels, boarding houses and furnished room houses. Under the provisions of the proposed White Slave law, he said, the male members of these couples could be sent to prison for "procuring."

"In a word," O'Meara said, in effect, "the bill they are asking Massachusetts to enact into law is aimed at the unfortunate practice of procuring young girls, by fraud, force or allurements, to become inmates of these places or to be held in them as virtual slaves.

"The evil aimed at does not exist in Boston, yet the bill would punish it more than all other offences which, while admittedly offenses against the moral code, are not considered by the same class with the heinous crime of procuring and holding girls against the will.

O'Meara then went on to say that in this city the telephone is the principal agent in the establishment of the old-fashioned home of ill-fame. Under the present law there is no maintenance of "nuisance," the male customer calls by telephone. The women report by telephone. Both are told to meet at a certain place at a certain time. It is practically impossible to get evidence against the man and woman in such a way as easily be in a respectable office building as anywhere else.

Scores Society's Agents.

Speaking of the paid agents of such organizations as the Welch and Ward Society, O'Meara expressed the opinion that they are generally men who have failed in some other line of work. Usually, he believes, they have an inordinate lust for notoriety. He mentioned Frank Chase as one of this type. Chase, he said, had made a failure of the industry, and Mr.

ATTORNEY MAGENIS DEMANDS VERDICT AGAINST CLIENT

Judge Sherman Highly Commends Counsel for Attitude in "L" Damage Action.

A interesting point in legal ethics and one which reflects highly on the morale of the Massachusetts Bar, came to light yesterday when news became known that Attorney James P. Magenis, a member of the Boston Social Bond, deliberately asked a jury to return a verdict against his own client, because he realized that the client was mistaken in his evidence and was not entitled to the verdict.

David Richmond, who was Mr. Magenis' client, was suing the Boston Elevated Co. $1,000 for injuries received, as Mr. Richmond thought, because a trolley from which he was alighting was started on him without warning. Imperfect testimony showed that Mr. Richmond had alighted from the car before it had come to a stop at the usual place, so that the burden of negligence was upon him.

In making the jury for an adverse verdict Attorney Magenis was warmly complimented by Judge Sherman in the Superior Civil Court.

Got Off Moving Car.

Mr. Magenis said last night:

"There was no doubt about the main witness's injuries, but he testified that the car had stopped. The Boston Elevated put on the conductor, motorman and four impartial witnesses to show that he got off a moving car. Therefore he was not exercising due care.

"Cross-examined the witnesses very carefully. It was clear to me that they were telling the truth. I realized that my client was mistaken when he thought the car had stopped, when in fact it was moving.

"At the close of court Tuesday I had a few words with Judge Sherman and said that he charged the same opinion that I had reached. Accordingly I thought it my duty to report my decision to the court. Judge Sherman said that he knew I would reach that decision and, knowing me confidently expected that I would make the report which I did. I asked him then what he would do in view of his decision and he recommended that I make a statement to the jury, which I did.

Defence was a Surprise.

"I addressed the jury in the following words as I remember them. 'Mr. Foreman and gentlemen, I have been trying this cause for my young friend Mr. Ballen who, when he brought this suit was under the impression that he was the plaintiff's case.

"In the trial of this case both Mr. Ballen and myself have been taken by surprise. Mr. Ballen, Mr. Crowe, after carefully going over that defence, Mr. Ballen agrees with me that the plaintiff in this action must have been honestly mistaken. Therefore as a sworn officer of this court and as a member of the bar, I deem it my duty to say that you should bring in a verdict for the defendant, and I so request you.'"

Judge Sherman said:

whose first interest is justice, rather than victory. It takes courage of one's convictions to make a decision of that kind. We are apt today to believe that lawyers will prosecute cases whether they believe them right or not but the case gone to a verdict as you handed it certainly would have set the verdict aside."

ODD MISHAP TO STEAMER.

Paddlewheels of Wickford Boat to Newport Go on Strike.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 12.—The steamer, General, of the Wickford line running between this city and Wickford in connection with the Shore Line of the New Haven Railroad to New York, was just leaving her wharf at Wickford on her return trip to this city tonight when she ran into some obstructions which stopped her paddle wheels. The engines were unable to make the big wheels revolve and the steamer was helpless. Her passengers were removed and brought here by way of Fall River on a New Haven train.

CITY COMMITTEE MEETS.

Democrats Get Busy for Police List of Voters.

In its new quarters at No. 15 Exchange street with the new president, Joseph A. Maynard, as chairman, the Democratic City Committee of 1910 held its first meeting yesterday. Every ward with the exception of Ten and Twenty-four was represented.

The police start out a month earlier, or April 1, this year to collect the names of voters and it was to impress upon the ward chairmen the necessity of informing their constituents of the new order of things that the meeting was called.

MRS. WARREN TOO ILL TO READ PEACE NOTE

Mother of Kidnapped Children, Raving for Little Ones, in a Serious Condition.

After two nights and a day of mental and physical agony over the loss of her two little girls, who were taken from the house last Thursday by their father, Mrs. Franklin H. Warren is now in a very weakened condition. She has been under the influence of opiates as much as possible since Friday night, during her conscious moments she raved for her children, Adrienne and Phyllis. She called particularly for "Bunny," meaning by that pet name, Phyllis, the younger of the two.

Mrs. Warren is at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. H. Gillis, of No. 45 Standish road, Hyde Park. Mrs. Gillis said yesterday, that as soon as her daughter was in condition to bear it, she would read to the daughter a letter sent by Warren to his wife. In this letter, according to Mrs. Gillis, Warren asked for a reconciliation. He promised his future good behavior, but intimated that, unless the mother consented to make peace with him again, he would keep the children from her.

Search for the two children, which had to be discontinued Friday night on account of Mrs. Warren's exhausted condition, is to be renewed again as soon as possible. The first search was made in Providence, where Warren made his home for a week. Or, where it is thought the children may be concealed.

Fort Andrews Five Quit.

The Fort Andrews basketball team quit cold to the Army team with which it fought after playing fifteen minutes of the game at Fort Andrews. The score stood 44 to 19. The Fort team beaten in the 35th and when they quit the score was 44 to 19. The second team, the Army, was also beaten. Mr. Wirth of Tufts was unfair and left the floor. The referee then called the game off and ordered their own men to referee but the army men refused.

TOOK POSLAM WITH HIM

Now Says It Should Be Counted With the World's Seven Wonders.

Mr. H. D. Lincoln, a veteran of the Civil War, who is now in the employ of the Central Railroad, Escanaba, Guatemala, had the foresight to take some poslam with him, having been affected for six years with a form of eczema extending from his ankles half way to his knees. Mr. Lincoln now reports that at the end of four weeks poslam has completely cured him, and the skin has been restored to its natural condition. He says "Poslam should be counted with the seven wonders of the world."

Mr. Lincoln's case is but one of several thousand similar ones, and the enthusiasm is not surprising when it is considered that poslam is daily curing thousands of cases of eczema and eradicating facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. Nothing is stopped with the first application.

For serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., resulta follow from overnight application, only small quantity being required to effect a cure. Many dollars may be saved as poslam can be had by mail or obtained at all Rikerdrawa Drug Stores and Hodgkins & Dutton's drug dept., as well as other leading drug stores.

Free samples for personal purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York City.

The Public know what "Challenge" means when used in our advertisement—know that we Defy Competition—know the Challenge Sale has set a pace for value-giving never equalled by any other store. But then, Bargains that are "Great" for other stores are common for us with our Great Four-Store Purchasing Power. So the ordinary Challenge Bargain doesn't go in Tomorrow's Sale—got to be a Big Surprise or we don't put a Challenge Sale Sign on it. You'll see all the Challenge Bargains displayed with Big Challenge Sale Signs showing the price in big letters. How do you like the idea? Isn't it refreshing after seeing all the papers full of Price, Price, Price and Bargain, Bargain, Bargain till your head swims? We decided we'd give you a little rest for a day. And what a Crowd we'll have. Everybody will be down Tomorrow to See what Henry Siegel Co. are doing. We've made up our minds to see what Effect a No-Price Advertisement will have on the people of New England and we're going to do it Right if it costs Ten Thousand Dollars.

Mr. HENRY SIEGEL'S PERSONAL MESSAGE

Mr. Henry Siegel, president of Henry Siegel Co., gives his pledge that only absolutely new and desirable goods—goods GUARANTEED in the fullest and strictest sense of the word—will be offered for sale.

We will lose money, but we will lose it cheerfully for advertising purposes. OUR OBJECT IS TO PERSUADE, BY FORCE OF PRICE INDUCEMENTS, the largest possible number of people to visit Henry Siegel Co.'s Store, see with their eyes and appreciate with their minds its wonderful character, its marvellous comprehension of every reliable thing suitable for human needs, the clean, careful manner in which it is conducted, the neatness, intelligence and courtesy of its employes, the efficency of its service and the positive satisfaction it affords customers.

Effort to win the good will of the public has never been relaxed. The constancy and sincerity with which it has exerted its powers have made the Siegel Store, now nearing its Fifth Birthday, the most emphatic success in the history of store-keeping. But Mr. Henry Siegel's ambition does not end with this achievement. It is for the promotion of good will and the dissemination of knowledge concerning The Siegel Store that we shall sell goods Monday at the lowest prices commercial chronicles have any record of.

And Just Fancy! Three Real "Outlanders" to Settle "Blue-Blood" Strife.

THERE are more than shade trees in the rumpus which has arisen over the question of a row of two trees or four along Commonwealth avenue. There are family trees at odds in the dispute, some of the finest family trees in Boston. The question ostensibly hinges on the landscape merits of a two-row plan or a four-row plan of trees. But, inside of that, is a warfare which involves the blue-blooded families which dwell along Commonwealth avenue.

The exquisite joke of it all is that the question will come for ultimate settlement before three "outlanders," as the Commonwealth families would regard them. Three "outlanders," so far as Commonwealth avenue goes, are Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and Park Commissioners Dante H. Cassidy and J. M. Prendergast. "Irishmen" are they.

To be sure, there is Chairman Robert S. Peabody of the Park Commission. But that is another part of this story.

For all practical and political purposes, one of the subtlest and most delicate issues which ever stirred up Commonwealth avenue is to be handled by three men who don't live on the avenue at all.

Now Comes the Feud.

To make the matter all the worse, one millionaire avenue magnate objects to the inside element becoming involved in politics. It isn't "done in our set, you know," this rattling the Back Bay skeleton out in the open. It now looks as though the "Fine skeleton" was in for a grand rattle right out in plain sight.

So far as the public has known up to date, the Park Commissioners had decided that the four-row plan goes. Then Mayor Fitzgerald spoke to the Commission and asked that a hearing be given to the two-row contingent, so many prominent residents of the avenue having signified a desire to be heard on the wide-row opinions should be considered. Mayor Fitzgerald carefully said that he did not intend to assert any official authority in the matter.

So the Commissioners gave a hearing on the two-row or four-row argument in the aldermanic chamber at City Hall next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Next week, back of all this outside clamor, is the Commonwealth avenue feud. On one side is Landscape Architect Sprague Sargent, millionaire in his own right, author of a magnificent work on the trees of North America and a recognized authority on arboriculture and horticulture, Professor Sargent is the four-row man. He is supported in this by his son-in-law, Guy Lowell, the architect.

In heated opposition is Dr. Francis P. Sprague, whose name might be given as a compliment to Professor Charles Sprague Sargent. Dr. Sprague is backed by Dr. Roger F. Sturgis, F. L. Olmsted and A. A. Shurtleff. Mr. Shurtleff, the only real expert himself, but boasts a family tree which is embedded in the Colonial history of America.

Sargent the Ruling Hand.

Ostensibly, the Park Commission is the arbiter in the matter. But the Park Commission is not the simple and novel institution that the common citizen might suppose.

When Charles E. Stratton resigned from the Park Commission, after the long confederation of former Mayor Hibbard, he gave as the reason that there existed an "undue pressure of private affairs." But it is beyond question that the convolutions of this Commonwealth avenue row form the cause. Robert S. Peabody, the present chairman, who succeeded Mr. Stratton, is finding the same difficulties. Chairman Peabody is already committed to the four-row tree plan. He is considered to be just the type of man who can be depended on in this issue, will prefer to step quietly down and out, rather than make a public agitation over any grievance. He will find ample excuse, of course, if he wishes to retire from the Board, in his pressing duties in connection with the architectural changes which he is executing on the re-modelled Boston Custom House.

Sub-lying the whole contest is a question of ultimate control of the Park Commission. The ordinary citizen supposes that the Boston park-way system is run by the three commissioners, who are appointed by the Mayor. But the actual men in control of park matters for years has been Professor Sargent, as head of the Arnold Arboretum and an acknowledged authorities on landscape decoration, he is a man whose opinions few have dared to question.

The Boston parkway system was originally laid out by the Olmsteads. A large part of the work was done under their supervision. But Professor Sargent has been also at various times in a controlling factor in these matters. The situation came to a climax in the retirement of the Olmsteads from the field. Since then, Professor Sargent has been substantially the final authority.

Architects Are Drawn In.

Now appear signs of an outbreak against the Sargent influence. The four-tree plan was started. The appointment of Robert S. Peabody to the commission has apparently settled still further in favor of the Sargent control. It was Chairman Peabody who dug out of the commission's archives a former Olmstead plan relative to Franklin Park.

The next move was Chairman Peabody's declaration for the re-establishment of the four-tree plan.

Not only have these things provoked a Commonwealth avenue strife, but the society of Architects of Boston has been drawn into it. This organization is heading up of the architectural aristocrats of the city. Some years ago it went on record for the four-tree display. This was not allowed to slumber till the present issue came to a head.

Architects Reversed.

Then Guy Lowell, architect of the new Boston Museum of Fine Arts, son-in-law of Professor Sargent, and a lifelong Brahmin in matters of art and architecture, espoused a stately row for the parkway which has sadly confused matters in the society's organization. Mr. Lowell presented a petition for the two-tree plan. Many members of the Architects' Association signed this petition without reading it. The fact that Guy Lowell was for it was good enough for them. So, many architects record in the old type as favoring the four-tree plan, reversed themselves in signing the petition for the two-tree plan, which was a singular situation for the architects to find themselves in.

DANIEL W. FIELD, Harvard Student, Employs Between 4,000 and 5,000 Men.

MILLIONAIRE and president of seven corporations at the age of forty-five, Daniel Waldo Field of Brockton has come back to school to make up the education he lost in youth. He is the richest student in his own right at Harvard, and the oldest. He possibly is the only Harvard student that has made his millions himself before going to college.

He is not a president student, but he is studying as hard as ever he did at working "grind" in the university. Three times a week he comes with books under arm and pencil and notebook. He is enrolled as a special student in the Harvard School of Business. His teachers are men who have made their mark in the industrial world, heads of corporations who, in many cases, have not been unlike as successful as their pupil.

And He's Married, Too.

Besides being a student and a millionaire, Mr. Field is an employer of labor on a very large scale. He is a shoe manufacturer in Brockton and employs 4,000 or 5,000 hands. Besides that, he is married.

At the age of fifteen Mr. Field was compelled to leave school and enter a shoe factory in Brockton. He learned the trade from the bottom up. Now he is head of the Field Lumber Company, the Field-Atkinson Company and five other large concerns.

In an interview with an American reporter Mr. Field explained why he went to work at the age of fifteen and why he gave his secrets of success.

"Be thrifty, honest and attentive to business, whatever business you are in," he said. "Live simply and do not waste your time or strength.

Son on Rich Food.

"It is necessary to preserve one's vitality by living quietly and not luxuriously. For that reason I eschew all rich and heating foods.

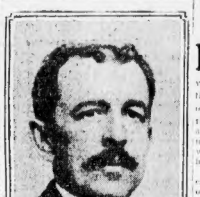
"Sunday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons Mr. Field goes to Cambridge to attend the lectures in Business 25, a course on the principles of incorporations. This course is conducted by prominent heads of corporations. "I am familiar with many of the principles expounded," said Mr. Field, "but every day I learn something new or some idea in corporation work which is not apparent to me. The art forth in a definite principle by a president of a large railroad corporation is of great if I derive commendable value from associating with such men."

WEST POINTERS AT FEAST.

Thirty-four Graduates Celebrate Anniversary in Boston.

Thirty-four graduates of West Point celebrated the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Military Academy by banqueting at the fraternity club last night. The officers were mostly from Portland, Portsmouth and Rhode Island. Among the officers were Brigadier-General Morris Schaff, Major Thomas Ridgeway, Captain Alexander M. Miller, Major John Rigelon, Lieutenant-Colonel Charles B. Wheeler, Lieutenant Geoffrey Bartlett and Lieutenant Colonel Edward Burr.

BROCKTON MAN, 45, AND RICH, WHO IS GOING TO HARVARD



DANIEL WALDO FIELD

Good Weather Today; No Storm in Sight

To-morrow It Will Be Fair and Warmer Also Is the Weather Man's Good News.

Partly cloudy today and fair and warmer to-morrow is the weather card. The local forecast given out last night was:

"Sunday partly cloudy, moderate west-erly winds becoming variable. Monday, fair and warmer."

There isn't a storm like a bit of zero weather in sight. The entire northern half of the country had seasonable weather last night with the exception of Nantucket, where it was raining. Nantucket always was piping off-side, anyhow.

There were slight northeast breezes along the North Atlantic shore last night but quite enough to tickle a boat's canvas. Northeast storm signals, which had been put out, were still standing but with no real expectation of anything doing in the storm line.

The temperature for Boston at 8 p. m. yesterday was thirty-seven degrees.

Bone Disease Easily Cured.

How surgical or bone tuberculosis, for many years regarded as incurable, can be permanently cured without leaving any deformities, was the subject of a stereopticon lecture by Dr. E. H. Bradford at the Harvard Medical College last evening. This form of tuberculosis, known as "hip joint disease," is most likely to appear in children who are ill nourished or who possess low vitality.

Plunkett for North Dakota.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Commander C. P. Plunkett, who has been detached from regular duty to act as inspector of equipment at the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding company at Quincy, Mass., has today transferred to duty on the dreadnought battleship North Dakota. He is to be the executive officer on the new battleship.

FOSS TO TOUR THE FOURTEENTH IN AUTO AS HIS RIVAL CHASES VOTERS ON SPECIAL TRAIN

EUGENE N. FOSS of Cohasset, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Fourteenth District, yesterday invaded Brockton, the home of his Republican rival, to address a big gathering of city and town committeemen, infuse them with some of his own enthusiasm and prepare for the opening to-morrow night of a seven day campaign probably without precedent in the recent political history of Massachusetts.

William R. Buchanan, the Republican candidate, took advantage of the presence of Foss in his home city to announce a tour of Cape Cod on the day before election in a special train. He will speak from the rear platform at every station from Provincetown to Buzzard's Bay.

Foss announced that he will live in an automobile, visiting every town in the district from Hull to Provincetown.

Speaking to the Democratic workers of the district in Hibernian Hall, Mr. Foss was cheered again and again. The workers told him of Republican disaffection and soreness. Foss smiled his delight. "We are going to win," he said.

Lodge to the Rescue.

The Buchanan people were tickled as children last night over the announcement that Henry Cabot Lodge and Augustus Peabody Gardner will take the stump for Buchanan. Lodge and Gardner are booked to address a rally next Saturday night for the Brockton fiasco flouse.

Mr. Foss returns to Brockton to-morrow night to fire the first gun of the open campaign. He expects to have Senator Lodge and Mayor Fitzgerald with him. He learned the trade from the bottom up. Now he is head of the Field Lumber Company, the Field-Atkinson Company and five other large concerns.

In an interview with an American reporter Mr. Field explained why he went to work at the age of fifteen and why he gave his secrets of success.

"Be thrifty, honest and attentive to business, whatever business you are in," he said. "Live simply and do not waste your time or strength.

The Buchanan people were tickled as children last night over the announcement that Henry Cabot Lodge and Augustus Peabody Gardner will take the stump for Buchanan. Lodge and Gardner are booked to address a rally next Saturday night for the Brockton fiasco flouse.

Mr. Foss returns to Brockton to-morrow night to fire the first gun of the open campaign. He expects to have Senator Lodge and Mayor Fitzgerald with him. He asked for Fitzgerald.

Foss went to Brockton for the "talk it over" with Fred Macleod one side of him and John F. McDonald on the other. Macleod is chairman of the Republican committee, the big textile unionist, recently quit as an engineer to address the Democratic Club of Brockton because the meeting was to be held at this hotel. There Foss got the "talk it over" lessons. Foss would take no chances.

'Twas an Experience Meeting.

Hence the conference was held in the basement of a moving picture house. Mr. Foss called it an "experience" meeting, at which everybody should come forward and "testify" concerning the outlook in his section.

"I want to tell you," Mr. Foss said, "that I am glad to look into your eyes to-day after seeing the way you rose to your feet to give that I believe, shoulder to shoulder, we are about to deliver a decisive service to this district, the State and the nation.

"Speaking gentlemen, if we win—and I believe we are going to win—the rules which everybody should come forward and the Congressional District but will reverberate over the country.

"The house is clean-cut and well-formed. There is no fake bone in this fight. You will remember that in the State campaign last Fall the Stand Pat Republicans said to us that the tariff and high cost of living and reciprocity were Federal subjects, and that I could not be elected because of them in a State campaign.

"That campaign wasn't ten days old before they began to think differently about it. We made them think. Yes! I know our the result was. We cut their plurality down to a 'nominal' one. The victory of the tariff reformers, indeed, was quite as complete as if we had elected the ticket. Now we put on the finishing touches.

"Lives in the Fourteenth."

"I am a resident of this district, much as gentlemen on the other side would like to have it appear otherwise. For the past fifteen years I have been a resident of the town of Cohasset.

"I pay my taxes in Cohasset, on my real estate there. I pay taxes on my personal property in the city of Boston."

(Voice: "You weren't a very good 'dodger,' then.")

"No, for I could have saved a lot of money by paying on my personal property in Cohasset, as many of my Cohasset neighbors do who live there most of the year. I have my own ideas about taxation, though, and it seemed to me that I owed a duty to the city of Boston, where my business offices are situated and where I have made most of what money I have. I enjoy the police and the fire protection of the city of Boston and all the other advantages of a metropolitan center.

Mr. Foss urged all hands to "get together in one big Congressional Committee" and, for his part, to use his mobility, education, speaking, advertising and everything else that is proper.

Tell of Friction.

Judge Paine of Hyannis was the first to testify to a general Republican "soreness." Among others present were:

Elliot L. Packard of Brockton, the candidate two years ago against the late Congressman Lawrence E. Ashley of Lakeville, who voted for James Buchanan this year; Frank P. Keene; James H. Cochon of Middleboro; George A. Cole, Harry L. Thomas and James M. Bower of Hingham; former Alderman John O'Connell of Brockton; James D. Merrill, John Holland and William S. Smith of Wareham, Bart Daley, chairman of the Cohasset Town Committee; Thomas Reynolds of Cohasset; Frank S. Allen of Brewster; former Mayor Thomas C. Thatcher of Yarmouth; John H. Drum of Harwich, Judge Charles C. Paine of Hyannis; Secretary Edward Cox of the Brockton City Committee; Editor Waldo R. Hutchinson of the Plymouth County Reporter (Ind.), Wareham; John H. Flavell of Hanover; T. Fred Donoghue and Henry M. Bryan of Whitman; J. D. Dorgan of Taunton and John F. Todd of Raynham.

FOREIGNERS FEAR WRIGHTS.

International Air Match May Be Called Off.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Cortlandt F. Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America, declared today that the rules which the Wrights have entered threatens to put an end to the contemplated great international aviation meet next Fall in this country.

Mr. Bishop maintained that the tangle over the aviation patents had led foreign aviators to fear coming here with their machines. Unless matters in the aviation field clear it is likely that the foreigners will not bring their cars here.

Mr. Bishop has received letters from foreign aviators saying that they are reluctant to sign contracts if they can be assured that their machines will not be grabbed by the courts.

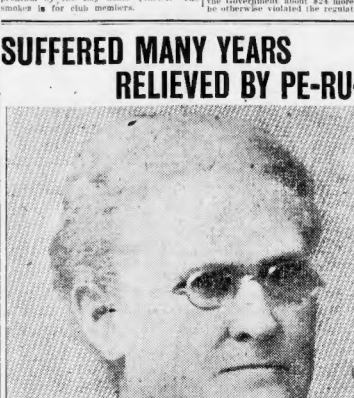
BOATSWAIN IS ACCUSED.

Commander of Prison Ship at Portsmouth Faces Trial.

Charges of misconduct have been preferred against Chief Boatswain W. F. Hill, forty-five years old, commanding officer of the U. S. prison ship Southery at the Portsmouth, N. H. Navy Yard. Frank M. Cousins of No. 24 Fleet street, Portsmouth, is the complainant.

The detailed charges, which Hill denies, are that during his term of office he has been drawing money to which he was not entitled in that he was maintaining both shore and ship quarters though he had been ordered to live aboard ship. He was drawing sea-duty pay which is 50 per cent higher than shore pay, thus costing the Government about $24 more and that he otherwise violated the regulations.

SUFFERED MANY YEARS RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.



Mrs. George Parker.

Cold and Catarrh

Mrs. George Parker, 419 Water St., Menasha, Wis., writes: "We have used Peruna in our family for a number of years, and have found it a perfectly reliable medicine. It soon rids the system of any traces of a cold, and prevents serious consequences.

"I began using it for catarrh, which I suffered with a good many years, but not been very serious until recently. Since I have taken Peruna the dropping in my throat has discontinued, and my head and nose are not so stopped in the morning. I am pleased with the results, and shall continue to use it until I am entirely rid of catarrh.

"I heartily recommend it as an honest medicine."

Head and Lung

Mr. John McLaughlin, 1419 School St., Chicago, Ills., and his wife express their appreciation of the merits of Peruna in the following words:

"We are pleased to testify as to the merits of Peruna in cases of catarrh. We were both troubled with catarrh of the head and lungs for several years, and did not seem to find anything which would benefit us.

"Finally, on the recommendation of a friend, we took Peruna, and in a short time were on the road to recovery.

"Now we keep Peruna in the house all the time, and when either of us contract a cold a few doses will set us right. It acts as a preventive of catarrh, and is also very fine to build up the strength.

"We believe it to be an honest medicine, well worthy the confidence of the sick."

ADMIRAL NAZRO NOW ON RETIRED LIST

Because he could not come up to the naval standard in walking or riding (on account of an accident, the Retiring Board of the Navy yesterday recommended the retirement of Rear Admiral Arthur F. Nazro of Jamaica Plain. The Board met at Portsmouth, N. H. The Rear Admiral was in command of the naval station at Cavite, Philippine Islands, during the insurrection by Aguinaldo.

The Board also decided to ask the retirement of Lieutenant E. L. Sinder, who is now undergoing treatment in the Naval Hospital at Washington.

"There is little more to say," said Rear Admiral Nazro last night. "The Retiring Board has pronounced upon my case which is very simple. I sustained an injury to my knee while at the Brooklyn Navy Yard in 1897. This injury made it impossible for me to pass the naval tests."

Pimples Will Leave You

In 5 Days You Can Get Rid of All Skin Eruptions by the New Calcium Sulphide Wafers.

Trial Package to Prove It Sent Free

If you are one of the unfortunates who can't get away from your pimples, and you have tried almost everything under heaven to get rid of them, take a few of Stuart's Calcium Wafers every day. Do that steadily for a few days, and in less than a week look at yourself in the mirror.

You will then say that Stuart's Calcium Wafers are a wonder in getting rid of all eruptions.

These wonderful little workers contain the most effective blood purifier ever discovered, calcium sulphide.

No matter what your trouble is, whether pimples, blotches, blackheads, rash, letter, eczema, or scabby crusts, you can solemnly depend upon Stuart's Calcium Wafers as never-failing.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers have cured boils in three days and the worst cases of skin diseases in a week. Every particle of impurity is driven out of your system completely, never to return, and it is done without dosing, purging or upsetting in the slightest.

Most treatments for the blood and for skin eruptions are miserably slow in their results, and besides, many of them are poisonous. Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain no poison, or drug of any kind; they are absolutely harmless, and yet do work which cannot fail to surprise you.

Don't go around with a humiliating, disgusting mass of pimples and blackheads on your face. A face covered over with these disgusting things makes people turn away from you, and breeds failure in your life work. Stop it. Read what an Iowa man said when he woke up one morning and found he had a new face:

"By George, I never saw anything like it. There I've been for three years trying to get rid of the pimples and blackheads, and guess I used everything under the sun. I used your Calcium Wafers for just seven days. This morning every blessed pimple is gone and I can't find a blackhead. I could write you a volume of thanks. I am so grateful to you."

Just send us your name and address in full, today, and we will send you a trial package of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, free to test. After you have tried the sample and been convinced that all we say is true, you will go to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box and be cured of your facial trouble. They are in tablet form, and no trouble whatever to take. You go about your work as usual, and there you are—cured and happy.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a simple package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

ROCKEFELLER'S PLAN IS VAST MONOPOLY ITSELF, SAYS DR. HUNTINGTON

NOW that the nation has had the best part of a fortnight to think it over, there seems to be a growing hostility to the proposed Rockefeller Foundation and that, too, in the most intelligent circles. University heads, members of both houses of Congress, newspapers and magazines which have great weight with the public, are either in open opposition to the plan or are making a critical examination which amounts to much the same thing.

The situation is eloquently summarized by Dr. William E. Huntington, president of Boston University. A Sunday American reporter asked Dr. Huntington to read some of the editorial criticisms of the proposed Rockefeller plan and to give his own opinion on its merits. Dr. Huntington, after giving the matter careful consideration, wrote the following opinion, which is well worth studying by every thoughtful man and woman who loves his country and looks to its future.

DR. HUNTINGTON'S VIEWS ON ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION

By Dr. W. E. Huntington.

GREAT aggregations of wealth under private control are not desirable. However philanthropic and wise the trustees might be, of a fund such as the Foundation proposed by Mr. Rockefeller, a vast monopoly of financial power would not seem to be the best thing to be permanently established.

There are enough institutional channels already in active operation to make use of this man's riches—colossal as they are. Religion, Education, Charity, Reform, are all great and commanding interests that are looked upon by good men everywhere as deserving of financial aid in carrying out the beneficent purposes that each embodies.

Religion never appealed more benevolently to wealth than it does today—for its work in home missions and foreign missions.

Education, all over the country, in all grades of its work from top to bottom, is crying out for more means.

The poor, in the cities especially, should be wisely assisted—not by doles of cold charity—but in the large way of comfortable yet cheap housing, through sanitary appliances, hospitals, playground, and other conditions that make for health and self-respect.

Reforming agencies are already in the field of social life. They can be made more and more effective.

Peace, Temperance, Charity, the Family, are causes which now have organized an efficient machinery for promoting their several high interests, for the welfare of the people.

These all need money, but a prompt and wise distribution of the Rockefeller wealth among well established institutions would seem to be a better bequest to the country at large than to form a mammoth trust, controlled by a very few men.

RED HOT ELECTION ACROSS CHARLES

A city election on Tuesday will call the attention of Massachusetts to the fact that Cambridge, across the Charles, is something more than the seat of Harvard College.

For Mayor, William F. Brooks, Democratic, the present incumbent, or George W. Long, non-partisan municipal?

For assessor, James A. Casey, Democratic, or Josiah F. Donovan, non-partisan municipal.

The battle has been short, sharp and red hot. Tons of printers' ink have been spilled in circularizing. If the newspapers haven't been as full of the Cambridge campaign as they could, it is because the reporters have been busy with the Glover and Russell will contests.

The Republicans as such—make no nominations in Cambridge. The Democrats call this a "subterfuge." The "Non-partisan Municipal" thing, say dyed-in-the-wool Democrats, is merely a scheme to catch unwary Democrats.

Besides the mayoralty and the assessorship, the seats of eleven aldermen and any number of councilmen are at issue.

It was announced last night that one of the speakers for Mayor Brooks at tomorrow night's rallies will be Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston.

HISGEN TO PROTEST ROCKEFELLER PLAN

SPRINGFIELD, March 12.—Thomas I. Hisgen announced today that if no one in Washington hostile to the grant of a Federal charter to the Rockefeller Foundation, his protest will be placed before the Federal government.

Mr. Hisgen stated:

"The granting of a perpetual Federal charter to the Rockefeller Foundation is but one National government along the lines proposed would be the greatest economic blunder made by the legislative body of this nation during any great action within the memory of those now living.

"Its unlimited power is one of its dangers. It is proposed, as I understand it, to make this operation absolutely the judge of the purpose for which its own funds shall be expended, whether to relieve in some great national calamity, whether for the purpose of bolstering up a wavering stock market, or indeed for any purpose, good or ill, for which the men in control desire to use it. A charter upon such broad lines creates a corporation superior to the national government itself.

"An unlimited charter granted by the national government is perpetual. Under its laws it cannot be revoked or changed in the famous case of Dartmouth College vs. Woodward, the argument of which is regarded as a masterpiece of Daniel Webster, and which is accepted as still to be the law of this country, the Supreme Court decided that a corporation holding an unlimited charter cannot have the charter changed without its consent.

"The government should not grant this charter. If it is given, then the national government should place in the charter of incorporation a provision that the national government may revoke the charter at any time that it shall see fit.

"There are two modes of regulation. One is to place the selection of the trustees and the control of the company with the people in some form. The other is to provide in the charter of incorporation that the Government may revoke its charter. This, there is the most practical means of forcing the Rockefeller Foundation to incorporate in the laws of New York or any other of the States where it will still be under the domination and control of the Federal Government, and where its interstate holdings will be subject to regulation and control.

"Rockefeller should be permitted to keep his wealth, or use it as he sees fit under the laws which already apply.

"Charity does not need a Federal charter."

HARNEY TWINS ARE 50.

Lynn Shoe Manufacturers to Celebrate Monday.

From poor immigrant boys from Galway, Ireland, to successful shoe manufacturers in Lynn, Patrick J. and Thomas F. Harney, twin brothers, observe their fiftieth birthday anniversary to-morrow night at the home of the former on Washington street.

P. J. Harney is Lynn's largest shoe manufacturer, giving employment to over 1,200 hands in his mammoth plant on Broad street. His brother is a member of Harney Brothers' shoe firm. The brothers are competitors in business. Both are married and have families.

A dainty menu card has been prepared with photographs of the brothers. About sixty relatives will sit down to the table.

FRIENDS STAND BY ACCUSED SOCIETY LEADER

Strange Letter Written to Girl of Addison Thayer of Franklin Made Public.

A TREMENDOUS sensation has been caused in the town of Franklin and throughout that section of the State by the arrest of Addison M. Thayer on the charge of having sent an indecent communication through the mails to a colored girl of North Cambridge.

Thayer belongs to an old and socially prominent family, and is the leader in every notable function held in that place. He has been a man of wealth himself, has wealthy relatives, and he resides with his wife and two children in "The Cobblestone," one of the show residences of the town.

A leading member of the congregational church and one of the most interesting of Franklin's citizens, his friends cannot bring themselves to believe that he is guilty of what is implied in the charge against him.

The Letters in the Case.

The trapping of the rich man came as a result of an answer that he sent to the following advertisement:

"NEAT colored girl wishes a position with small family; no washing. C. B., 52 Mt. Pleasant street, North Cambridge."

Shortly after the girl had inserted her advertisement she was shocked to get this reply through the mails:

"How would you like to meet a nice white boy for a week for a quiet chat? How old are you? Write me. Fred Alley, P. O. Box, 3014, Boston."

Miss C. B. went with the letter to Chief Lenehan of the Boston Postoffice Inspector's Department. He soon had Thayer in his toils and the man acknowledged that he had written the letter. Arraigned before Commissioner Hayes, Thayer declared that he meant no harm. He asserted that he was making a study in sociology and that the letter the colored girl had received was one of several he had written with that end in view. Commissioner Hayes, while loth to think that the man was living, decided to hold him in $500 bail for a further hearing on March 19.

Known as "Ad" Thayer.

Thayer is fifty years of age. He is known as "Ad" Thayer and has a host of friends in New England and many of social prominence in Boston and New York.

By the death of an uncle about ten years ago "Ad" Thayer came into $100,000. But it slipped through his lavish hands before many years had passed and it is not believed that he now is possessed of more than a small fraction of that sum. He directs a small leather novelty business under the name of A. L. Thayer & Co. His office and salesroom is run in connection with his home.

Thayer is a talented man and has made something of a reputation in amateur theatricals. He made one incursion into the professional end of the game, but soon returned to his home. In discussing his present difficulty, one of his friends said:

"I don't think that they have a right in this thing. If he really wanted to get acquainted with the girl I believe he was doing it for a friend and not for himself."

How far as could be learned Frank Hamlin, "Ad" does not make this plea for himself. He is pretty close to his vest and since the trouble became public and several attempts to reach him and get at the bottom of the matter have failed.

Callers have been invariably told that Mr. Thayer was out when it was obvious that he were not. Mrs. Thayer, wife of Arthur W. Thayer, in response to a request for her husband, said:

"My husband has nothing to say for publication and he will see no one. He has employed an attorney. He is Arthur P. Rugg of Boston."

Mrs. A. L. Thayer, the wife of a cousin of "Ad" gave Franklin its Village Hospital. She and her sister also gave the town a school house. The word "Thayer" is on the cornerstone with it and about Franklin. Former Representative Herbert Thayer, who was killed four years ago in a runaway accident, was a cousin of "Ad" Thayer, as is the wife of Arthur W. Thayer, president of Dean Academy in Franklin.

Recently "Ad" Thayer has become a devotee of the teachings of theosophy and has been instrumental in having lectures at Franklin on this mystical subject.

$9,000 STOLEN; ANOTHER TRUSTED OFFICIAL FLEES; AND WOMAN DISAPPEARS

LOVE for gambling and infatuation with a woman have made a fugitive of another Boston man in a position of trust. Oscar M. Wheelock for two years auditor of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Company, is being hunted by the police all over the country on a charge of stealing $9241.

The woman in the case has also disappeared. She, too, is said to have had money with him. He has written to his friends asking for help.

The records of the company have known of a loss for almost two months. They were examining the books and found falsentries. They called Wheelock's attention to the matter and he put on his hat and walked out. He has not been seen by his superiors since. It was only yesterday that the theft became known to the police.

OSCAR M. WHEELOCK

Earned a Good Salary.

Wheelock's salary was fairly large, more than forty dollars a week; just how much more his employers would not say yesterday. Besides money he had money of his own, and his wife, on her death last August, left him about $10,000 she had inherited. All this he is said to have gambled away.

According to the company, the large thefts did not begin until less than a year ago. About that time a woman began to figure in the case.

Mrs. Austin S. Ketz of No. 203 School street, Somerville, in whose house Wheelock lived, said about a year ago told the American last night of his habits.

"They lived here until last March," she said. "They moved to Pembroke street after that, but his wife died of consumption in the Summer and he went to live with his mother."

Lost Money in Gaming.

"Wheelock was the worst gambler I ever saw. I know of times when his wife used to take a room down town for a night so that she could be with him when he was playing. At the same time she pleaded with him to stop it.

Mrs. Wheelock told me that her husband was losing all his money at cards and pool.

His mother, Mrs. J. R. Wheelock, who lives with the Ketz family, Thursday, Sept. 9, 1909 Pearl street, Somerville, said:

"My son resigned in January. Then he started traveling for his health. He has since been very well since his wife died, and he finally decided to give up his position and look after his health. No, I do not know where he is, but he is somewhere out West, on his way to California. I do not expect to see him again very soon."

According to Vice-President F. N. Lathrop, the auditor of the company was more than $20,000 and Mr. Wheelock was bonded for $10,000. The bonding company is acting as President in the absence of J. T. Fuller and last night made the following statement:

"I have received an official report from the accountants giving the exact figures of the defalcation by examination of the books, and all the thefts were in small items.

"The defalcation was discovered in the annual audit of the books and all the thefts have occurred within the past year. Wheelock was under bond for a great amount than is missing, and we shall lose nothing."

REED QUITS COMMITTEE.

Senator Who Opposed Buchanan in 14th Drops Out.

TAUNTON, March 12.—The bitterness that exists among some of the leading Republicans of the Fourteenth Congressional district was revealed anew today when former Senator Silas D. Reed resigned the chairmanship of the Republican City Committee. Reed was an ardent supporter of Judge Harris of Bridgewater, who was defeated for the Republican nomination for Congress by W. H. Buchanan, and Chairman Walter W. Carver, whose father is in the Federal service at Boston, was elected to the place after Reed's resignation. Reed is said to be next in turn to Fred M. Atwood, Secretary Alfred B. Williams and former Representative Simon Swig.

PAULHAN QUITS IN SHORT FLIGHT

NEW YORK, March 12.—The flight made by Louis Paulhan, the French aviator a la Jandes race track this afternoon was something of a fizzle. Almost three hours after the time announced for the flight the aeroplane was brought out of its shed and Paulhan took his place in it. He ascended about fifty feet, flew perhaps 100 yards in a straight line, and then descended.

He left the machine, walked to the shed and, after changing his clothing, jumped into an automobile. Manager Edwin Cleary said the wind was too strong. It did not appear to the spectators that the breeze could have interfered with a flight had Paulhan cared to make one.

Wilbur Wright was amused when he heard the explanation. He contented himself with laughing.

There was a report that the trouble was financial, Paulhan refusing to fly because he had not received money due him. It is said that Paulhan is anxious to return to France at once that he may meet models that he fulfill his engagements here.

Wilbur Wright and his aviators were at the track to get permission to inspect the biplane. He was not allowed to make an examination.

BUST-DEVELOPING AND WRINKLE-REMOVING SECRETS FREE

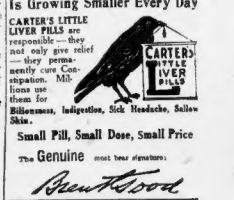
An American business woman of Providence recently obtained possession of a Japanese secret for form development and wrinkle removing, which she tried on herself with astounding results. All hollows in the neck and chest were quickly filled in, and the bones were soon covered with firm, but soft, rounding flesh. The angles in the shoulders disappeared, her bust increased in size several inches, and was made firm, shapely and symmetrical, instead of small and undeveloped. The wrinkles in her face went away as if by magic and her complexion became clear and beautiful. Now she is the admiration of everybody.



She now offers to send free to any women whose figure is undeveloped or whose face is marred by lines and wrinkles, full particulars of this simple method which will enable any lady to be the owner of her own home to add inches to your bust, to secure a captivating figure, like the lady whose picture is shown above, or to make your face clear and radiant.

All our lady subscribers who wish to be handsome and well-formed will receive full particulars absolutely free of charge (provided they send two cent stamps to cover postage and mailing charges) by writing to Miss Janet Gilbert, 118 G Imbrie Bldg., Providence, R. I.

Let Us Send You a Little Giant Cleaner
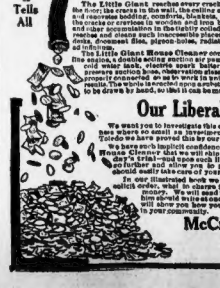
On 30 Days Trial



A Little Giant House Cleaner should pay for itself in a few days' use, out of the profit from the business after paying for it.

It is operated running from $800.00 to $300.00 per month by each user. It is a money maker—there is no question about it—for anyone that buys a machine is put in remunerative business at once, and they should make thousands of dollars.

Give Us a Chance to Help You
You Can Make $2500 to $3000 a Year on Each Machine
It advertises itself and orders for work come pouring in so that you should be busy all the time.

The Little Giant House Cleaner is proving one of the greatest money makers ever put on the market. If you are willing to hustle you can easily make $5,500 to $3,000 a year on each machine. Some of our users have made more than this. Others make a good living. Others make a few dollars each week and have the machine paid for in a few days. Some only work at odd times and let them make a few dollars each week. Others work all the time and make a big income. If you are not satisfied with the money you are making on the present job, write us and get a machine at once and commence working, they should make you rich. We believe there never has been a machine placed on the market that has so many good points about it, and with such immediate profits to the user. We have cleaning machine, and all they are very little known for they have only been on the market for a very short time.

Carpet Dirt and Dust into Gold Dollars

A Perfect Wonder

The Little Giant removes every crack, corner and crevice of the room; the crevice in the wall, the ceiling and mouldings. It cleans every piece of furniture, upholstered and pillows, mattresses and springs, the cracks or crevices in wooden and iron beds; even the dust, fuzz and lint from underneath the edges of carpets and rugs. It cleans pictures and ornaments, bric-a-brac, books, sheet music, desks, document files, pigeon-holes, radiators, registers, etc., etc.

The Little Giant House Cleaner consists of a powerful suction fan, driven by a double vertical engine, which is operated by cold water tank, electric motor battery, vacuum gauge, high pressure fan, air compressor, suction hose, nozzles, etc., etc. The power fan creates a vacuum in the machine and gives the desired suction. The whole is erected upon a substantial truck and can be drawn by hand, or the fan can be removed from piazza plate.

Nothing to Compare With It

There are several small machines on the market for home use to be worked either by hand or a small water or electric motor, but they have never been a success because they do not have power enough to clean with, although they will draw the top dust from the room. The Little Giant draws from the same work in the same way as the large machines costing from $1,000 to $7,000 each. It has the same size hose.

We have gone to work and put into the Little Giant power that was impossible to remove completely by the ordinary means of heating. We have added a double vertical engine, a powerful high pressure fan, and a powerful air compressor, which removes every particle that took with wonder. They would not believe it possible.

The Little Giant House Cleaner can be cleaned by two men with a Little Giant House Cleaner in from one to four hours, and when the work is finished all of the furnishings will be in their original place.

Our Liberal Offer—Pay for it out of Your Profits

We want you to investigate this exceptional opportunity. We do not believe there is any business where so small an investment will bring such handsome returns, because right here in Toledo we have proved this by our own actual experience.

We have no such implicit confidence in the wonderful money-making power of the Little Giant House Cleaner that we will ship one to any live man, who is honest and willing to work, on 30 days' trial—and then upon such liberal terms that you are unable to lose. We will even go further and allow you to pay for it in instalments, and in such a way that your profit should easily take care of your payments.

In our illustrated book we give full particulars as to how to organize your business, solicit orders, what to charge for the work and how to have every minute of your time turned into money. We will send it to you free. Every ambitious man who has any "get-up" in him should write us at once for the book. A postal card will bring it to you and it will show you how you can become independent and one of the prosperous men in your community.

MACHINE, IN DEBT TO LIQUOR MEN, TO KILL BILL

State Official Charges Death of Bar and Bottle Act Is Assured.

A REPUBLICAN public official who has held high rank in his party's State organization is authority for the following startling statement:

First—That the liquor interests of Massachusetts purchased legislative protection for two years through a generous contribution to the Republican State campaign fund last Fall.

Second—That the Republican organization is under obligations to defeat the bar-and-bottle bill now before the Legislature because of the assurances made to the liquor interests when the campaign contribution was made.

Third—That the Republican machine is doing its utmost to carry out its promise to the liquor interests.

The appeal of the liquor interests to the Republican State machine to defeat the bar-and-bottle bill is thus explained. The activity of Republican machine leaders at the State House on behalf of the liquor interests during the present legislative session is thus explained.

The bar-and-bottle bill is the big temperance measure of the session. It provides a liquor dealer from conducting a bar business and a bottle business in the same establishment.

The atmosphere at the State House is surcharged, not with rumors, but with point-blank statements as to existence of a proposition system whereby assurances of defeat for inimical legislation are given in return for contributions to Republican campaign funds.

Called Off by Draper.

The statement is also made that a high State House official who stands close to Governor Draper has been using his personal influence vigorously to defeat the bill, and the Governor and him of after the temperance leaders had registered a protest.

Republican members of the State Legislature are being urged not to vote for it. Higher than they in the favor of the party leaders to defeat the bar-and-bottle bill on the ground that the Republican Party or candidation is so far under obligation to the liquor interests that they think Republican legislators should not only decline to support any measure opposed by liquor interests, but should consider themselves in duty bound to defeat any anti-liquor legislation by their active efforts.

The bar-and-bottle bill will be resumed in the State Senate at 2 p. m. to-morrow. Thus far it has been a six months' year-round session. Developments to-morrow promise to furnish a real sensation. The temperance folks and the liquor interests each claim a "victory for our side." Unprejudiced spectators say that almost anything is apt to happen.

The bar-and-bottle bill itself has caught the spirit of the times on Beacon Hill, and has joined the ranks of the "anti-ship." It is held up by the Senate Committee on Bills in Third Reading. Men who know what is going on beneath the guided doors say that disclosures of other hold-ups in connection with the bill's fate in the Legislature would not be surprising.

State Leaders Active.

The entrance of Republican State machine leaders into the fight to kill the measure has made the situation on Beacon Hill acute. The headquarters of the liquor interests, so far as the handling of the bar-and-bottle bill is concerned, is said to be the rooms of the Republican State Committee at No. 18 Tremont street.

To secure the passage of the bill the temperance folks must defeat the most powerful coterie of men of the Mr. Fix-It-with-the-Legislature type that has ever been arrayed against any measure before the General Court.

The Republican State machine.

The Mayor of Boston.

Edward A. McLaughlin, election commissioner (appointed by the Mayor), public administrator (appointed by the Governor), and legislative lawyer (appointed by the liquor interests).

Former Representatives Thomas J. Fay and Jeremiah Good, influential with Boston Democrats in the Legislature.

Friends of the bar-and-bottle bill charge that Senator Lodge has sent word from Washington that "the bill must be killed." Friends of Mr. Lodge insist that "the fuss's hands are off." The temperance folks come back with the answer that Lodge has several times shown an ability to bring his hands up to his face after everyone can see them and then play the piano with his feet.

"To Be Fair," Says Draper.

The temperance leaders have seen Governor Draper about the bill. They say they have received assurances from him that if the measure reaches him "it will receive fair consideration." At least one liquor lobbyist has said that "Governor Draper will kill this thing with an ax the minute it reaches him."

Each day there have been whisperings of a hold-up whenever groups gathered in the State House to talk about the bar-and-bottle bill. "Gang" men in the Legislature have said openly that "the liquor interests have been getting by pretty well up here and it's time to make 'em show."

The "make 'em show" game appears to have been given a terrific jolt by the head to the announcement that the Republican State machine is under obligations to the liquor folks, and the pressure will be off if it is killed, by the cracking of the party whip.

The whip-cracking process will carry weight with Republican members of the Legislature. Democratic foes of the bill argue powerful reasons why they say that the passage of the bill will result in heavy losses in liquor fees to the "wet" cities and towns of the Commonwealth. That is the reason given by Mayor Fitzgerald for his opposition to the bill.

NEW HAVEN JUMPS PAY.

Station Agents Get News; Condemn Attack By Guild.

The New Haven Railroad has voluntarily granted an advance, totaling $75,000 a year, to its station agents. Announcement of the increase was greeted with enthusiasm at a meeting of consolidated Division No. 3, Order of Railroad Station Agents, at the United States Hotel last night.

The meeting adopted resolutions taking former Governor Guild to task for his recently published article criticising the New Haven management, and endorsing the Sisters Lace bill now pending before the Legislature.

Medals for Life-Savers.

Edwin D. Ayres, a former newspaper man, now of the United States Volunteer Life-Savers of Inland Waters Association, is preparing for a series of lectures in Boston churches to raise funds to award medals to persons who rescue others from drowning in the Boston district. He will have as lecture assistants such well known notables as Captain "Tom" Riley, Captain Sydney Hinman, Captain "Tom" Clark and William F. Ayres.

Big Crowd Cheers as Mayor's Daughter Christens Submarine

MAYOR and Mrs. Fitzgerald have attended many launchings in their time, of political booms and otherwise, but none gave them half the pleasure they found yesterday when their little daughter, Eunice, ten years old, christened the submarine boat, The Salmon, as it rushed down into the sea from the ways in the Fore River yards at Quincy.

"I christen thee The Salmon," called Eunice in her clear, sweet voice and then "smash" went the bottle of champagne against the steel bow of the sliding boat.

"The, you did better than I could my self," said Mayor Fitzgerald, as he grabbed Eunice and kissed her.

The crowd cheered the Mayor, Mrs. Fitz and Eunice and everybody said it was just about the best launching ever in the big ship-building yards.

After it was all over there was a lunch in one of the loft rooms and speeches.

Some of those present were: Admiral Bowles, president of the Fore River Ship Building Company; Lieutenant Commander Orin G. Murfin, chief engineer of the North Dakota; Naval Constructor Horatio G. Gillmor, U. S. Bailey, chief engineer of the Electric Boat Company; L. Y. Spear, president of the Electric Boat Company, and sixteen girl students of the Quincy Mansion School.

The launching was the first semi-public event in the Fore River yard since the return of President Bowles from his successful quest abroad for contracts for building battleships for the Argentine Republic.

The Salmon is 135 feet long, 14 feet beam and 320 tons displacement. The submarine is expected to make 11 knots an hour above water and 10 knots under water. She is a sister craft of the Narwhal and Grayling.

Arrested on Forgery Charge.

Inspectors Patterson and Norton arrested Herman Landy, twenty years old, of No. 246 Harold street, Roxbury, yesterday, as he was about to purchase a ticket for Europe in a Commercial street ticket office. The police allege that Landy forged the name of Joseph Hirsh to a check for $31 on the South End National Bank, on March 15, and passed it on Louis Lewinstein of No. 97 Leverett street.

Waterboro Club Banquet.

The Waterboro Club of Boston, composed of sons and daughters of Maine, gathered at the American House last night, sixty strong, for its annual reunion and banquet. John A. Hasty presided and Samuel K. Hamilton gave reminiscences of old times. Rev. George Hamilton of Everett also spoke. Joseph W. Downs, was in charge of arrangements.

MRS. SAGE EXPLAINS THAT LOVE PROMPTS HER TO CHARITY

Always Willing to Share Her Wealth With the Needy, Says Philanthropist.

PASADENA, Cal., March 12.—Mrs. Russell Sage, who has given more money to charity than any other woman in the world, tonight gave an interview on the distribution of her wealth and the motive regarding it.

"Why do you give so much money away, Mrs. Sage?" was asked.

"As long as I had something to give and somebody else needed it I would always divide," she answered. "When I was a teacher in Philadelphia on a salary of $200 a year—a sum teachers of the present day would not look at—I was willing to give my tenth to the Lord. You know charity has two meanings. The Corinthian one, love, and the perfect gift will carry love both in the giving and receiving.

"Sickness, misfortune, fires, the forced sacrifice of life—these are the conditions I would alleviate; those who, having lived righteously and prudently, come to want in their old age. You know Coventry Patmore says the three most pitiful things in life are childhood without parentage, youth without love and old age without money. And he is right.

Cites Example of Christ.

"We all have our ideas about helping people," she went on. "Mr. Gould was in particular way and I hear that E. K. Pearson, who, at the age of ninety, recently announced his intention of giving away his last million, received 500 letters a day telling him how to do it. But I believe that lifting is better than teaching. When Christ fed the multitude, do you know he didn't give any lecture or precede it with any long[illegible]. He just fed the hungry. I think that is very significant. And I believe when people are in need they should be lifted out of their condition. Lift them out of tuberculosis when you can, out of all dead conditions into live ones.

"Do you find people grateful for the assistance you give them?" Mrs. Sage was asked.

"I find a great deal of gratitude," Mrs. Sage replied. "At the same time it is like the Saviour healing the ten lepers. One came back to thank him. Human nature is much the same to-day. Some tell of their great gratitude. Some do not. I have never been able to analyze why some are overwhelmingly ungrateful.

Hundreds of Letters Daily.

"They have said that I leave the distribution of my money to my lawyers, but that is not true. I have capable men and I use their judgment, but not their intuition.

"I work through organized charities because that is practically the best way. Why, it would be impossible for me to answer all the letters that come to me. I get some times as many as 900 a day.

"But I do not confine myself to organized charity," continued Mrs. Sage. "When I made my last gift, the one to Yale, I did not do that through organized charity.

"In recalling the days she spent at the Troy Female Seminary, from which she graduated in 1847, Mrs. Sage again spoke of the influence exercised upon her there by Teaching. Mrs. Sage considers the highest vocation for a woman who is not a wife or mother.

The Gold Coast Mystery

NOT BY DOUGLAS LAWSON; '13

—NOR—

JOHN B. CUMMINGS, DITTO.

DOUGLAS LAWSON, Harvard, '13, and John B. Cummings, same, ditto, denied themselves to interviewers yesterday.

Mr. Lawson is a son of the well-known magazine author. Mr. Cumming's people are in cotton mills.

There was a dreadful story in the papers to the effect that Douglas Lawson was alias Billy Good and that John Cummings was alias Joe Clark.

The Plot.

It seems that after the Harvard freshmen held their little affair at the American House the other night, where the bill for busted crockery and glassware alone amounted to upwards of $150, some rough fellows invaded Mt. Auburn street in Cambridge, known as the "Gold Coast" because so many of the residents get money from home to return mail, and created so much enthusiasm and youthful spirits that non-collegians, thinking of what the boss would say in the morning, telephoned for the police.

The police pulled two young gentlemen for separating a passing trolley car from its rails, the police station one of the fellows said he was Billy Good of No. 183 Mount Auburn street, and the other said he was Joseph Clark of No. 54 Mount Auburn street. In the morning they were fined $10 apiece.

The fact is that there just ain't no No. 183 Mount Auburn street and there isn't any Joseph Clark at No. 54 Mount Auburn street.

The Finish.

However, when President A. Lawrence Lowell assumed control of the college, he said, among other things: "Any student who is arrested and haled into court, a story of the same appearing in the news papers, will be expelled.

Gossip, plain gossip, began identifying "Good" as Mr. Lawson and "Clark" as Mr. Cummings, and Messrs. Lawson and Cummings have gone away.

120 Want to Be Cadets.

Lieutenant H. L. Boyd, commander of the revenue cutter Windcustomer, has been appointed to supervise the physical examination in the Boston Federal building to-day. There are 120 candidates for cadetships ranging in age from 19 to 24, who will be given the examination on that date. They are scattered all over the United States.

Romance of School Days.

A school day courtship which had its beginning in "Bonnie Scotland" was brought to a close last evening, when Miss Mary Murray of No. 68 Warren street and Robert Robertson were united in matrimony by the pastors of the First Presbyterian Church by Rev. James Alexander. Both attended the same school many years ago in Scotland.

BRITONS WIN AT CHESS.

Winners in the Twelfth Annual Match by Cable.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Great Britain once more carried off the honors in chess in the twelfth annual match by cable, concluded at the rooms of the Brooklyn Chess Club this evening. Among the three games were left in an unfinished state owing to the failure of the committees in charge to come to an understanding as to how they should be scored, the score stood at 4½ to 2½ in favor of the Britishers. The Americans will score another win by adjudication subsequent to have drawn awarded to them on the other two. At the best the total score will be an American defeat by 5½ to 4½. F. J. Marshall, United States champion, again outplayed J. H. Blackburne, and Messrs. Lawson and Clark as Mr. Cummings, and Messrs. Lawson and Cummings have gone away.

Bronson Defeats Hirst.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 12.—Ray Bronson, the Indianapolis lightweight, who made his début into the local ring circle by winning a four-round bout from Young Joe Hirst last night at the National A. C.,

LAUGHLIN SUICIDE SHOCKS PITTSBURG

Laughlin, it is said, quarrelled with her husband over what should be done with the conservatory. She was in favor of turning it "into a cow pasture," and began selling or giving away the precious bulbs and flowers. This called forth bitter protests from young Laughlin. He went to Europe soon after.

Mrs. Laughlin had been a very close friend of Thomas O'Connor, a full cousin and an official in the Jones & Laughlin Company, who four years ago shot himself dead in the Hotel Schenley. Mr. Laughlin brooded over his cousin's suicide, and frequently was heard to say he thought "poor Tom" got the worst of it from some people, and that those who had mistreated him would get their deserts.

Jones was madly in love with his cousin, Miss Madeline Laughlin, when engagement had just been announced to Rev. Maitland Alexander, a wealthy minister. Miss Laughlin had been partial to her talented cousin until gossips brought tales to her.

The last public appearance of Mr. Laughlin here was last Decoration day, when he and his family posed with President Taft for a family picture of the Laughlin homestead here.

Mrs. Laughlin appeared to be in the best of spirits at that time and said:

"We will have our pictures taken here next year. You must come again and every year, Mr. President."

Mr. Laughlin was thirty-five years old and a graduate of Yale. He married Miss Daisy Hayes Herron, daughter of John W. Herron of Cincinnati, in 1902. She was a society favorite and also a leader in church reports. Mr. Laughlin was well known in the work of charities.

Mrs. Laughlin has frequently figured in the entertainments at the White House. She took the place of Mrs. Taft as hostess during the latter's illness several months ago.

The funeral will be held to-morrow at 2 o'clock, from the Laughlin home, and the Rev. Maitland Alexander, of the First Presbyterian Church, a cousin of Mr. Laughlin by marriage, will officiate. Mr. Laughlin leaves two small sons, Whitin and Thomas, and two brothers, George M., Jr., and Whitin, both of the sales department of Jones & Laughlin Company, and Irwin F. Laughlin, secretary of the American embassy at Berlin.

PRESIDENT LEAVES FOR FUNERAL; MRS. TAFT SHOCKED

WASHINGTON, March 12.—So statement was made at the White House covering the distressing news received by the wife of Thomas K. Laughlin of Pittsburg, a brother of Mrs. Taft, that the details might have a serious effect upon Mrs. Taft, but it is said that she took greatly shocked, there were no other ill results.

The President left here at 10:55 o'clock for Pittsburg, and will return to Washington to-morrow. He traveled in a private car, accompanied by Mrs. Taft and Miss Carolin Butt and Assistant Secretary Wagner. Mrs. Taft remained at the White House, the official set of Washington is related for a time at least of one of the most popular occupants of the White House, Mrs. Thomas K. Laughlin, Mrs. Taft's sister and close friend. Mrs. Laughlin, at a great personal sacrifice, gave up a trip around the world with Mr. Winter when Mrs. Taft's health demanded that Brunson, the Indianapolis lightweight, also relegate the many cares of White House social duties to her sisters, Mrs. Charles Anderson and Mrs. Lloyd Mayo and Mrs. Laughlin, who in turns assisted her.

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE HEALTH

THE KEYSTONE TO HEALTH IS HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

Good health is essential to success in life and it is the privilege of most everyone to possess it. Sometimes, however, you allow disease to gain a foothold and you suffer from Stomach, Liver, Kidney or Bowel Ills. It is then that prompt attention should be given, for delay only brings on that sure handicap—Sickness. The way to cure such ailments is to remove the cause and the best medicine to do this is

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

GET WELL AGAIN

If you are one of the thousands who are struggling under the handicap of poor health, don't become despondent and discouraged; your case is not entirely helpless; just cheer up—take a short course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and notice the improvement in your general health. It will strengthen your weak stomach, give appetite, make the digestion and assimilation perfect, keep the bowels free from constipation, the liver and kidneys active, and then—pleasant thought, no more Heartburn, Belching, Headache, Gas on Stomach, Smothering Spells, Indigestion, Costiveness, Biliousness, Dyspepsia or Vomiting.

It has been doing this particular work for 57 years, so you really ought to try a bottle today and be convinced of its merit.

IT IS A TONIC

and invigorant of rare virtue, and in convalescence you will find it a splendid aid. In fact, it is a safe medicine that can be taken by anyone with gratifying results. In cases of Malaria, Fever and Ague it has also proven very effective.

A FEW LETTERS OF PROOF:

Mr. Thomas H. Halloran, Newport, Ky., writes: "I have taken your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and been greatly benefited. I always recommend it for stomach trouble."

Dr. H. H. Davis, Louisville, Miss., writes: "I frequently prescribe Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in convalescence with splendid results."

Mr. Jacob Hats, Bangor, Wis., writes: "I find nothing does me so much good as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for stomach complaints. It never fails."

Remember Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is sold only in bottles—never in bulk—and each bottle has our Private Stamp over the neck. Refuse all others. The genuine is for sale by all druggists and general dealers.

Don't Blame Your Stomach

When Without Exertion Or Cost You Can Enjoy Meals And Cure Dyspepsia.

A Trial Package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Sent Free.

Don't blame your stomach or your luck when your meals declare war on your system

When the stomach won't do its work it is because it cannot

When foul smelling odors come from your stomach, when the head aches and the sourness of mouth every morning makes you hate your breakfast, when dreams and nightmare assail you, don't give up the fight.

This is the appeal of nature and it should be heard.

Over-eating, late suppers, poorly chewed food, too rich pastries and undue dosing cooking are some of the causes of the stomach's ill health.

When the stomach is lost, it unnerves and churns all the liquid matter from food and with its juices dissolves into liquid form or pulp everything which comes into it.

If such food be poisonous it affects the juices, attacks the stomach, goes into the blood and weakens the entire system.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do just a full meal easily without material assistance from the stomach. They will restock the gastric fluid with all the elements needed. They vivify up the blood, destroy sour fluids and breath, headache, stomach and bowel trouble and quickly restore natural conditions.

One grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food in the stomach or in a glass vial without aid of the human digestive apparatus.

The methods of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the methods of Nature.

They contain in a palatable form the stomach and digestion. After a meal one of these little tablets when it comes the stomach muscles move with the juices, attacks the food and digests it. It removes the fermented and decayed mass, lying stagnant there and eases the stomach at once.

It is wholly a question for you to solve. Your druggist will furnish Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for 50c. box, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package free.

FOR YOUR OWN GOOD: INVESTIGATE

The Terry, Tench & Proctor Tunneling Machine Company, the Invention Which Will Revolutionize a Billion Dollar Industry and Pay Tremendous Dividends to Its Stockholders. This One Machine Does the Work of 5,000 Stone Cutters.

It Will Give Its Owners a Practical Monopoly of Excavation Contracts Throughout America.

If you want to make money, read this advertisement. If we half convince you that an investment of $11.00 may pay you $100.00 or $1,000.00 or $300.00, take the trouble to cut out the coupon below and send it in, thereby giving us a chance to prove our claims. We want to see everyone make money, and we sincerely hope that you will join with the other stock holders, all of whom are going to get rich by an investment in this stock.

ANDREW CARNEGIE

Andrew Carnegie got his start in life by investing $300.00 in Pullman Palace Car Company stock. The Company, at that time, consisted of two model cars carried in the inventor's arms. The $300.00 investment made him $10,000, and started him towards the throne of the Steel King of the world. Terry, Tench & Proctor Tunneling Machine Company will be another Pullman Palace Car Company. Buy stock with the Company is young, afterwards you won't have a chance.

$100.00 FROM $11.00

You say it's impossible to make $100.00 from $11.00? That is because you don't know. Look it up and you will see that Bell Telephone, Singer Sewing Machine, Morse Telegraph, Goodyear Shoe Machinery, Westinghouse Air Brake, Harvester Reaper, Mergenthaler Linotype and forty more have paid $500.00 and $1,000.00 to those fortunate enough to buy $100.00 worth of stock in the original parent company of those concerns.

We, today, offer you stock in our parent Company, assuring you that you will derive dividends not only from this company, but from many other companies all controlled by this one, and each company clearing hundreds of thousands if not millions a year.

WHY WE CLEAR MILLIONS

The contracts annually for excavations including buildings, sewers, subways, canals and tunneling, originating in the West are about $1,000,000,000. The Terry, Tench & Proctor Tunneling Machine will do this excavation 75% cheaper than any contractor on earth can do it using his present old-fashioned methods. Every dollar of those billion dollar contracts would come into the pockets of our Company if we had enough machines built and large enough organization to handle them.

NEW YORK SPENDING $300,000,000

For instance, New York City is preparing to spend $300,000,000.00 on its water supply from the Catskills; two tunnels 60 miles long must be drilled through solid rock. The City's engineers estimate the cost at $16,000,000. Here's what we can do. We can take the job for $8,000,000.00, do the work with our machine for $5,000,000.00 and pocket $3,000,000.00 for ourselves, and at that underbid the City by $8,000,000.00. If we took the contract at $15,000,000.00, we would clear $10,000,000.00, sufficient to pay our stockholders over 500% from this one operation, and while we are operating here our other companies from Boston to Frisco are helping to swell the dividends to our stockholders.

WHO ARE TERRY AND TENCH?

Terry & Tench are building the steel work for the $100,000,000.00 Grand Central Station, they built the Williamsburg and Manhattan suspension bridges, put the great steel shields in the Belmont and Pennsylvania tunnels. They are noted throughout the entire world as the firm which conquers all obstacles and always succeeds. Here is their message to you, signed by their own hand. Come to our office and see the original.

TO THE PUBLIC

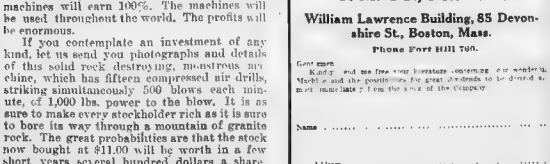
We believe that the New Model now being built of the Terry, Tench & Proctor Tunneling Machine will cause a revolution in the present-day methods of rock tunneling excavations. It will so cheapen operations as to make competition out of the question.

(Signed) E. F. TERRY.
FREDERICK TENCH.

If you don't believe in what Mr. Terry prophesies, there are plenty who do.-Railroad presidents and bridge builders for whom he has accomplished the apparently impossible look upon him as one of the great leaders in his line. He is the man who will guide the destinies of this company. He is your president if you care to buy stock in this company. Cut out the coupon and send it in. You will buy this stock ultimately. Why pay a higher price?

THE TERRY, TENCH & PROCTOR TUNNELING MACHINE.

PULLED BY TEN HORSES TO THE GRAND CENTRAL STATION.



This wonderful machine revolutionizes an industry on which $1,000,000,000 a year is expended. It costs $15,000 to build and earns $100,000 a year. Each machine will earn 4% on the entire capitalization of the Company. 25 machines will earn 100%. The machines will be used throughout the world. The profits will be enormous.

If you contemplate an investment of any kind, let us send you photographs and details of this solid rock destroying, mountain moving, which has fifteen compressed air drills, striking simultaneously 500 blows each minute, of 1,000 lbs. power to the blow. It is as sure to make every stockholder rich as it is sure to bore its way through a mountain of granite rock. The great probabilities are that the stock now bought at $11.00 will be worth in a few short years several hundred dollars a share. The wise investor will cut out the coupon and send to-day. Shares advance almost immediately to very much higher figures. Save this profit for yourself. Cut out the coupon NOW.

YOUR KIDNEYS WILL ACT FINE AND ALL BLADDER DISTRESS VANISHES.

If you take several doses of Pape's Diuretic, all backache and distress from out-of-order kidneys or bladder trouble will vanish, and you will feel fine.

Lame back, painful stitches, rheumatism, nervous headache, dizziness, irritability, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, worn-out, sick feeling and other symptoms of sluggish inactive kidneys disappear.

Uncontrollable, smarting, frequent urination (especially at night) and all bladder misery ends.

Feeling miserable and worried is needless, because this unusual preparation goes at once to the disordered kidneys, bladder and urinary system and distributes its healing, cleansing and vitalising influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder or feel rheumatism pains, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic, and a few days' treatment means clean, active, healthy kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and no backache.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture, without which baldness occurs. The scalp has... to all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the... to feed upon is plant or even a tree would die... similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the

You Don't Have to Hand Over Your Roll Here Like You Do in New York.

ONE can eat in a Boston hotel or restaurant without having to tip waiters to the limit.

Tips are given in Boston. Tips are cheerfully accepted by the waiters, too. But one tip does not have to be unreasonable in order to insure good service. In fact, no need not tip at all, and yet may receive proper attention from a waiter, according to the managers and proprietors of the hotels and restaurants. In fact that the so-called "tipping" evil in Boston is not such an evil as it is in many cities, especially in New York.

Dispatches from New York relative to that Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts declared himself of a tirade against the tipping system in that city. He was quoted as saying from the heart:

"My salary of $7,000 a year is scarcely big enough to cover the expenses of tips. I dine at Sherry's often and I know that if a person gives a waiter a tip of less than $1 he is insulted at. One can't even look at the waiter without it costing him $10."

Restaurant Says "Absurd."

The management of Sherry's, when told of this, said that Judge Cornell's $7,000 tipping story was absurd.

Certainly it never could apply to Boston.

In the first place, people go to New York expecting to spend more money usually to spend all they have except their carfare home. There is no such spirit of recklessness in Boston as there is in New York.

Probably the time when dining out Boston patronage approaches New York is on Christmas eve. In the last two years the hotels and restaurants have made special efforts to attract visitors to the Hub on Christmas eve. In the last two years the Parker House, Young's, Touraine, Copley Square, Thorndike, Bellevue, Hotel Brunswick, Hotel Victoria, Hotel Somerset, Hotel Vendome, Quincy House, Hotel Puritan, Hotel Statler and Hotel Lenox, Parker's, Scollay Square, Locke-Ober's, Young's, Shiplay's and Hayward's have all had special Christmas eve dinners.

The Parker House, for instance, has had a regular patronage. Food and drink books are taken and good range had been put on it.

The Hayward restaurant, which is located in the theatre district, has also had a special dinner on Christmas eve. It is a dinner to which ladies are invited. It is a dinner to which ladies are invited. It is a dinner to which ladies are invited. It is a dinner to which ladies are invited.

Each Waiter Got $20.

He and his guests were served exclusively by two of our most experienced waiters. When he paid his check the host gave the waiters $20 to divide between them. This was a handsome tip, of course, but the guest was gratified at the service offered him and he knew that he had to send all the time of the two waiters for that special evening.

But this is New Years eve, of course, when everyone was out for a good time. I would estimate that the manhood tip at a dime. But, if a customer does not tip, it makes no difference to the service accorded him, for if the manager never on present. We watch the waiters carefully to see that all patrons are served properly, tips or not."

Proprietor George Francis of the Boylston Cafe, who employs only feminine waiters, says that after the waitress has got to get good-sized tips, no matter how cheerful she may be. Indeed, it might be added though Mr. Francis does not say so, that the waitress is apt to get good-sized tips, no matter how cheerful she may be. Indeed, it might be added though Mr. Francis does not say so, that the waitress is apt to get good-sized tips, no matter how cheerful she may be. Indeed, it might be added though Mr. Francis does not say so, that the waitress is apt to get good-sized tips, no matter how cheerful she may be.

Proprietor Francis says that the Boylston average is fair as well as tips and as well paid by the management. The girls average from fifteen to twenty-five cents for every set of guests served. Regular customers, of whom the Boylston has scores, usually tip from ten to fifteen cents.

PUPILS WADE IN MUD.

Complaint Made to Council by Roxbury Citizens.

The pupils attending the Mason School on Norfolk avenue, Roxbury, are compelled to wade through a swamp and this is being investigated by Mayor Fitzgerald and the City Council, to whom complaint has been made. It is declared that many children have been made sick as a consequence. The school is a branch of the High O'Brien school on Dudley street. The streets on which it is situated are unpaved and, of course, in the present rainy season are in bad condition. There is no sidewalk, and the pupils have to wade through mud and water. Complaint was made to officials of the Board of Health but nothing was done.

LODGE PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF CALHOUN

Bay State Senator Speaks for Nation in Acceptance of Carolinian's Statue.

WASHINGTON, March 12 — In the two houses of Congress South Carolina and Massachusetts today joined hands over the grave of John C. Calhoun. The occasion was the unveiling of the statue of the great South Carolinian, which, sixty years after the period of his long-continued struggle for State's rights, was unveiled today in Statuary Hall. The cords holding together the drapery were loosed by Mrs. Hratton and Miss Glot, both daughters of the Palmetto State. Governor Ansel presided, and former Governor Mauldin delivered the principal oration.

Senator Lodge and Representative McCall spoke for the New England Commonwealth, and Senator Smith and a number of South Carolina representatives, for that State. Messrs. Lodge and McCall spoke eulogistically of the personality of the subject of the exercises. Senator Lodge said, in part:

Man of Remarkable Power.

"It seems particularly appropriate that Massachusetts should share in the recognition which we give today to the memory of the great senator from South Carolina. To have been, as Calhoun was, for forty years a chief figure in the public life of the United States, and to have left the reality of his own time and to have established the place of the United States among the nations, and then the undisputed chief of those who barred the path of the nation's enemies—implies a man of very great and extraordinary powers both of mind and character.

"His merits not only the high consideration which history records, but it is also well that we should honor his memory, and, turning aside from the affairs of the moment, should recall him and his time that we may understand what he was and what he meant. He was pre-eminently a strong man, and strong men, masters of manhood who shape public thought and decide public action, are very little to attract us in a high degree the qualities of the race from which they spring without a sense of kinship. Calhoun displayed the attributes, both moral and intellectual, which mark those who are the usual sinfulness and force. In both sides he was of Scotch-Irish descent.

"A Penetrating Mind."

"He had an intellect of great strength and keen and penetrating mind; he thought deeply and he thought clearly. He was a man of great reasoning and logic; he never retreated from a conclusion to which his reasoning led. Thus endowed by nature and equipped with as good a education as could then be obtained in the United States, he entered Congress when a young man of twenty-six and remained there for forty years. He was a member of the House of Representatives during some of the most important years of its history, and he was a member of the Senate during the most important years of its history. He was a member of the Senate during the most important years of its history.

"Calhoun and his friends came on the scene of the country's history against the conditions to which the country had been brought by the great movements of steam, wheels, and even engineers, which chiefly transformed and changed the world. It is time to appeal to them. They had the great privileges of knowing what they were, but the statesmen of their time failed to realize. If necessary they intended to fight.

Mr. Calhoun, with his mind set on the accomplishment of the great purpose of freeing the United States from foreign aggression, and having the genius to see the place among the nations of the earth, did not stop there, but went further and did not stop there, but went further and did not stop there, but went further and Three Times at Augusta.

This will be the third season that the Doves have [illegible] Red Sox. Two years ago [illegible] went there originally because Joe Kelley picked it when he became manager of the Boston [illegible] Boston Americans [illegible] trail to [illegible] with Bill [illegible] when hired to manage the Bostons he said: "Augusta for mine."

Last season Manager Frank Bowerman made no change. After the get-together with the team Spring weather came along and it fell in the price of meat. The Savannah river backed up over the banks in a young flood and there was enough precipitation, as the weather sharps say, in sprinkling of the rain to make the training ground take on the soft charm [illegible] of a morass, so Bowerman, who studied needs of [illegible] Michigan [illegible] about [illegible] with malaria. They didn't develop any [illegible] of the kind, however.

Not Malaria, but Dahlen

What they had in the disease line was one Dahlen. He showed up for training a couple of days late with an acute attack of the disposition which endured him the soubriquet of "Bad Bill." He looked over the hotel register with a sneer and turned and said to the waiter:

"Looks as [illegible] like a ball club, don't it?"

What Dahlen did to worry the youngsters in the club and put it to the bad in general is sad history. But Dahlen will not be around this Spring, and for that Manager Lake can give a heap of thanks. The hotelier [illegible] Dahlen, this will be a mild, clement spring in the South if nowhere else. With the weather for a rest, Augusta is a good training camp. When weather is bad the best place to claim any residence.

Fred Lake on Wednesday next is going to look over a lot of young ball players he has never seen perform. The Doves have a lot of talent in its ranks, and with a manager to get neither [illegible] nor soft and quite, they are likely to make a showing. Lake knows the game and has shown he can get all the speed there is out of it.

Nobody can get [illegible] out of a recruit at the ball playing game. Even the [illegible] yet came to produce [illegible] are apt to get into strange [illegible] Red [illegible] still past down [illegible] players with [illegible] spurred by the [illegible] more likely [illegible] than an aggregation [illegible] playing ball for high [illegible] only.

Players Anxious to Stay.

Lake will try the Doves out, and by the time the big ball rings for the pennant season will know who to play as regulars. The boys [illegible] to hold no spot in the line-up. They all want to stay in a big league. If they go into the discard [illegible] it will be [illegible] minors. Nothing [illegible] a recruit [illegible] willing spirit and [illegible] that takes will start with every one of his competitors imbued with a desire to demonstrate his class.

The Doves will start training later than other big league clubs, but they will have a month in which to get in fair ball business. Being youngsters, they ought to get in shape in that time. The older leaguers for old boys to work the stiffness out of arms and legs, and when they have been in the game for years some of them could get [illegible] at until near mid-summer.

To the Amateurs.

A B in former years, the columns of the sporting pages of the American are open to the amateur and semi-professional baseball teams of New England for the printing of scores and challenges. Correspondents are requested to write plainly on one side of the paper only and not to crowd a long communication on a postal card. Scores received of games played three or four days previous will not be printed.

RED SOX TO PLAY A HOT SERIES WITH THE REDS

Exhibition Series Will Begin at Hot Springs Next Wednesday.

FIFTEEN GAMES IN ALL

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Boston American baseball expert [illegible] the Red Sox at Hot Springs [illegible]

H[illegible] SPRINGS, March 12. After six [illegible] baseball practice, the Red Sox players will enjoy a day of rest [illegible] Except Harry Niles, all the [illegible] that have had these six days of [illegible] are either pitchers or catchers. It was Manager Donovan's idea to get [illegible] to be shown here next to enable [illegible] would be in hope to give the [illegible] a good batting practice. It was also Donovan's idea to have [illegible] for the series of games [illegible] the Red Sox and the [illegible] manager of the Reds [illegible] Three days are now [illegible] Cincinnati squad [illegible] here will be the Boston club best [illegible] are now shaped with the Cincinnati [illegible] and pastures of both teams have been [illegible] side by side for the past [illegible]

[illegible] exhibition games begin on [illegible] will open. Both [illegible] want to win, and so [illegible] for two teams. Of course, the result of these games will by no means [illegible] the relative merits of the opposing [illegible] Primarily what the [illegible] of hard practice it doesn't really matter which team wins. There are no pennants nor emoluments attached to the games, and [illegible] of them, whether [illegible] will be on edge [illegible] a better [illegible] for getting the men in shape for the regular championship [illegible] could not be [illegible]

Whole Squad on Deck.

The regular squad of Red Sox players, including Captain Harry Lord, Hal Chase, Andy McConnel, Charlie Wagner, Charles Fred, Gardner, Jake Stahl and Tris Speaker, are supposed to be on their way here and ought to be ready to take their first practice on Monday. This will [illegible] the [illegible] boys [illegible] Reds [illegible] Sox begin their [illegible] the [illegible] or we saw Chase last year. He did so well in California, where the Red Sox [illegible] Spring, that he was brought down a month for another [illegible] He [illegible] did last Spring. He takes more interest in baseball [illegible] thanks to a lot of advice given him by Donovan. He is such a big fellow, being nearly, if not quite as large as Overall, of [illegible] will [illegible] know that Donovan [illegible] this to coax all there is in him in the hope that he can find a place for the big fellow on the regular team and [illegible] not forced to shoot him back to the minors again.

Thompson, the left hander from Syracuse, does look good, but it is not to be expected that Donovan can keep him much beyond April 1. Two left-handers are about all a club can take care of and the Red Sox have two first-class southpaws in Collins and Karger.

Kinger, by the way, is grooming himself [illegible] at least one game against the Cincinnatis. He never forgave Griffith for sending him to the minors last Summer and he thinks if he can beat Grill's team here he will be amply revenged.

Even Dozen Red Sox Pitchers.

In all the Red Sox have twelve pitchers under contract. Five six right-handers and a couple of south-paws ought to be enough for Donovan. He will carry more than that for a while, but the stiff will [illegible] have to be reduced. The three pitchers Corbett, Donahue and Madden will [illegible] as they did last year.

Of the outfielders, Speaker is the only one sure of his regular job. The others—Stahl, Niles, Hooper, Lewis and possibly Maisel, Hoffman, Lewis and possibly Thoney—will have to fight it out for the two remaining positions.

The infield is settled, bar accidents. Stahl, McConnell, Wagner and Lord will be the men, the same as last year, to take care of the bases. Fred and Gardner must play [illegible] out for the honor of being known as the utility outfielder.

Notes of the Players.

Charlie Hall arrived from the coast this morning after [illegible] traveling. He left on Monday and escaped the floods by coming by the Southern Pacific, through El Paso, Texas. At that point he picked up Jack Dean the second baseman of the Cincinnati club.

The arrival of Egan, makes Griffith's squad complete. Egan has not got signed [illegible] but for four of being fined he decided to join the club and the best of luck to get the big salary he asks.

Eddie Cicotte, who arrived last night, took his first work out and did Charlie Hall. These two pitchers simply tossed the ball. The other fellows, however, were full of ginger and the practice was fast as it would be in the regular [illegible] to help out.

The team as a whole has had more hard [illegible] practice than ever a Boston team has had at this time of year. The pitching staff is now complete.

"All I want now is to keep away from accidents," said Manager Fatsy when the day's work was done. "Everything is moving right, and if I can keep the boys from taking chances I will be satisfied. I am looking forward to the arrival, to-morrow, of Mr. McGreevy and the regular infield. This Speaker ought to arrive the same time, then we will be ready for real work."

MLVIN SHEPPARD SUSPENDED 60 DAYS

Crk Runner Found Guilty of Using Profane Language.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Melvin W. Sheppard, the world's greatest middle distance runner, was suspended for sixty days by a trial committee of the Military Athletic League to-day at a meeting at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory that lasted five hrs. Sheppard was found guilty on twenty-five charges and specifications preferred against him by officials of the Pentonula Division of the M. A. L. A. The principal against him was that of using [illegible] and abusive language to officials of a Ninth Regiment of Philadelphia at the indoor games on December 11 last. Thereupon also mentions other acts tending to disturb and obstruct competition.

Two-cent charge was a joke. It was [illegible] Sheppard refused to testify concerning his expenses, thereby preventing the [illegible] committee of the M. A. L. A. from [illegible] a proper knowledge of his [illegible] to prevent a proper investigation [illegible] amateur standing.

The last three [illegible] were [illegible] as a committee was [illegible] which Sheppard squirmed out of many questions regarding his expenses and used it against him in making their decision.

Sheppard's suspension began on January 3 and will expire on March 25. Since [illegible] Sheppard has won four prizes, but they have been held up pending a final decision. These prizes Sheppard will have to forfeit, and they will be turned over to [illegible]

JIM HOGAN NEAR DEATH.

Doctor Says Former Yale Football Star Is Near End.

WINSTON, Conn., March 12.—James J. Hogan, formerly captain and star player of the Yale football team, is waging the [illegible] battle he ever fought, this time against death, at his father's home, in Torrington, and according to his physician Death is near the end.

The doctor said to-day of his patient, who has acute kidney trouble, "Jim's death is only a matter of a few days at [illegible] most."

De Palma Can't Race.

DAYTONA, Fla., March 12.—The match auto race between DePalma and Harney scheduled scheduled for March 15 was declared off this afternoon. De Palma broke a piston of his 200 horsepower Fiat in practice and the Fiat company sent word [illegible] for him to withdraw, as it would be necessary to send abroad to replace the part. Oldfield made another mile with Dying [illegible] start in 28 seconds to-day.

Ball Games Played In the Sunny South

Detroit, 6; San Antonio, 3.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 12. The Detroit Tigers defeated San Antonio to-day, 6 to 3, largely through the batting of Simmons, who, in four times facing the Bronco pitchers, garnered as many base hits. Vance, who pitched the first four innings for Detroit, was wild and allowed three runs in the second inning, the Tigers failing to catch up until the seventh when, with the bases filled and none out, Sheffield in right dropped McIntyre's fly and Simmons followed with a fourth hit.

Cubs Defeat New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 12. Tony Smith's wallop in the ninth tallied two needed runs, and the Cubs beat the Pelicans 7 to 6 to-day in a tag-and-to-a-coat affair. The first two local pitchers were a good [illegible] Pelicans threatened to shut the Cubs out without a hit, but Pat Moran broke the spell in the ninth with the first [illegible]

White Sox Take Series.

LOS ANGELES, March 12. The White Sox baseballers cleaned up their series this afternoon by a 4 to 2 score with the locals, and thereby won two of the three games. Manager [illegible] the Sox played [illegible] last [illegible] and deserved to win.

Yankees Beat U. of Ga.

ATHENS, Ga., March 12.—The Yankees had a fine workout this afternoon against the University of Georgia, and showed the collegians some tricks on the bases. The score was 8 to 2 in the Yanks' favor.

Browns' Colts Beaten.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 12.—Houston, Texas, champions defeated the St. Louis American colts to-day, 6 to 4. St. Louis failed to connect with the bases full, while Houston did.

Harvard Soccer Team Wins.

The Harvard soccer team defeated the steamship Iverna team at the Stadium yesterday afternoon by the score of 12 to 2. Leland played a good game for Harvard, getting two of the three goals. Hoshe, a Japanese player, played left halfback for Harvard, and put up a fine game. Houston got the third goal for Harvard, Veitch and Morris made the goals for the losers.

Bill O'Hara Still in Bed.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 12.—Bill O'Hara, the St. Louis National star outfielder, is still confined to his bed from [illegible] his ankle in making a fade away slide yesterday. During the practice game to-day, which the Koneys won from the Brewsnhans 6 to 2, a ball slid from Hulswitt's bat and knocked loose one of his teeth.

Worcester Wins at Polo.

RUNNERS TRAIN FOR BIG BOSTON RACE

Fine Entry Promised for B. A. A. Events; Strict Rules for Contestants This Year.

Long distance amateur runners from all over the East and Canada are already making active preparations for the annual American Marathon of the Boston A. A. to be run in Boston on April 19 (Patriots' Day). It will be the fourteenth annual renewal of the run that is recognized as the greatest amateur distance event of the year.

The distance is twenty five miles, and the record is held by Tom Longboat. The Onondaga Redskin floundered through a mud of slush and mud to a memorable victory in the 1909 run, and hung up the remarkable figures of 2 hours 24 minutes for the twenty five miles. This time has never even been approached.

The management of the run is taking unusual pre cautions in the matter of competents this year. No one under the age of eighteen will be permitted to start. Every runner must [illegible] a physical examination prior to the race. Runners must be ruthlessly [illegible] from [illegible] shoulder to the knee. Otherwise they will be excluded. The management also serves notice on prospective competitors that they must train in order to be permitted to run. The officials consider it unwise to attempt to run such a distance without proper preparation.

LOWELL HIGH WINS MEET.

Athletes From Three Cambridge Schools Go Down to Defeat.

LOWELL, Mass., March 12.—Athletes from three Cambridge high schools were beaten to-night by Lowell High, 51 to 17. Cambridge students made their best records in the shot put and 300-yard running race. The summary:

50-yard dash—Won by Canner, Lowell; Thomas, second; Donnelly, Cambridge Girls. Time, 5 2-5 sec.

Shot put—Won by Baxter, Cambridge, 40 ft. 8½ in.; Canner, Lowell, second; Brown, Lowell, third; Cook, Lowell, fourth. Won by Company L, Lowell; Company M, second; Cassels, Cambridge, third. Time 1m. 31s.

Running high jump—Won by Bartlett, Cambridge; Brown, Lowell, second; Maxfield, Cambridge, third.

Navy Fencers Beat Eli.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 12.—In the last of the dual fencing matches which will be held here this season, the Midshipmen won from Yale to-day by eight bouts to one. The visitors worked gamely, but were clearly outclassed, and the only bout won was that in which Park, a left-hander, defeated Merrill, the captain of the local trio.

NAUGHTON SAYS JEFF'S IMPORTANCE IS DUE TO JOHNSON-BURNS BATTLE

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

Sporting Editor of the San Francisco Examiner.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—Jim Jeffries is back on his broad acres at Burbank, and a record of the things he does in a day reads like a leaf from the life of Jessica Whitcomb.

From the way Jim attends to the chores one might think that the mortgage on [illegible] was being [illegible] and that Uncle Sam's [illegible] were [illegible] the [illegible] But that's not the way of it at all. It's merely a case of combining business and entertainment, for Jim likes to potter around where there are calves and chickens and the lakes. Moreover, it comes under the head of light training.

Have you noticed the way the papers keep their readers informed as to Jeffries's every movement? From the times he cracks the kindling for the breakfast fire until he sends the kitchen clock at night for one of the big fellow's [illegible] over [illegible] of it is read with interest.

The strange part of it all is that Jeffries [illegible] the [illegible] Jeffries [illegible] deserve this solicitude. Two years ago Jim might have cut and [illegible] second ends of [illegible] and [illegible] million holes of alfalfa and it would not have got into the papers. To be still [illegible] brutally frank, he might have found it and toured and failed to take in anything like 5 per cent of the wealth he [illegible] while [illegible] by his theatrical [illegible] since he [illegible] turned from Carlsbad. He seems to enjoy the unearned increment, whatever that is, of [illegible] His present importance and money making capacity is based entirely on what Johnson did to that white man Burns in Australia, and what Jeffries promises to do to Johnson by way of reprisal next July.

And where is Johnson all this time? Drunk a little more [illegible] of his time is to be supposed that Jeffries' entry for the championship stakes was the only one received up to date.

If the sporting [illegible] prayed fair we would be regaled with daily bulletins as to the number of times Johnson cranked his buzz wagon and brushed his sealskin overcoat. For all we hear of the fellow who is to face Jeffries he might be in Africa.

Come to think of it, there was one item of Johnson a few weeks ago, and then he was placed in an unpleasant light. It was said we worked his famous uppercut on another colored man, who reminded him of the time when he was glad to blow the foam from a bucket of beer.

There is a [illegible] report to the effect that Johnson may have to [illegible] for [illegible] and there are suggestions even [illegible] that [illegible] promoters find better [illegible] than [illegible] Arthur in case he is not able to keep his engagement with Big Jim.

Let us hope it will not prove as desperate as that, for as a supposedly humorous friend remarked, "It's [illegible] fight without Johnson" would be like the play of "Hamlet" with Othello left out.

"Honest" John Kelly Says One Punch Will End Fight

By "HONEST" JOHN KELLEY.

Famous old-time referee and boxing patron

NEW YORK, March 12.—That Jeffries-Johnson go will be a "grudge" fight I am taking no stock in the suggestion that the fight will be a "fake."

There is nothing in the talk that Jeffries and Johnson will prolong this fight for the benefit of the moving pictures.

Nothing to it. If either of them can win in a round he will do it. The pictures don't mean anything. A little extra money, perhaps, but what do they amount to in comparison with the purse and the glory chiefly to be gained and the chance of future money—that goes with a victory?

The purse amounts to $75,000, and if either man can win that in a punch he will do it. Supposing he should let the chance to win pass by for ten rounds, say, and get himself beaten in the eleventh. Is getting beaten in the eleventh round better than winning in the first or second? Think it over. No, this fight is for blood, and the man who will be out to win as soon as possible.

Big purses and high living are spoiling the modern fighters.

They lived on the plainest of food. Corned beef and cabbage was their chief training dish. Then later the promoters began to offer big purses. The fighters began to wear silk hats and eat eight-course dinners, and lots of them forgot how to fight. They became fancy boxers and side-steppers.

In the old days a fighter would be good at his profession for twenty years. Now they last for a few months and are gone. The old-timers fought until they were well along in their forties. Fitzsimmons is one of them. He was a rough fellow and lived on plain home cooking. And he lasted. The old fights used to be for an unlimited number of rounds, and if a fellow found his opponent was a clever dancing master he simply kept away and allowed him to dance himself tired, and then he walked over and walloped him on the jaw and it was all over.

Now, with our limited-round contests, a man must go within a prescribed number of rounds. That is, he must outpoint his adversary. The old-timers would fight for sixty-five rounds or four hundred and fifty rounds, if necessary.

One week they would fight with boxing gloves and the next with kid gloves. Their hands had to be pickled, and their faces as well, and had to be cared for just like their bodies. Too much money has spoiled the fighters.

From what I have been able to observe I should say it will be a short fight. Jeffries and Johnson are such big, powerful fellows that one or the other is bound to fall before the fight has gone far. But I want to repeat that all talk about this fight not being right is absurd. It is bound to be on the level.

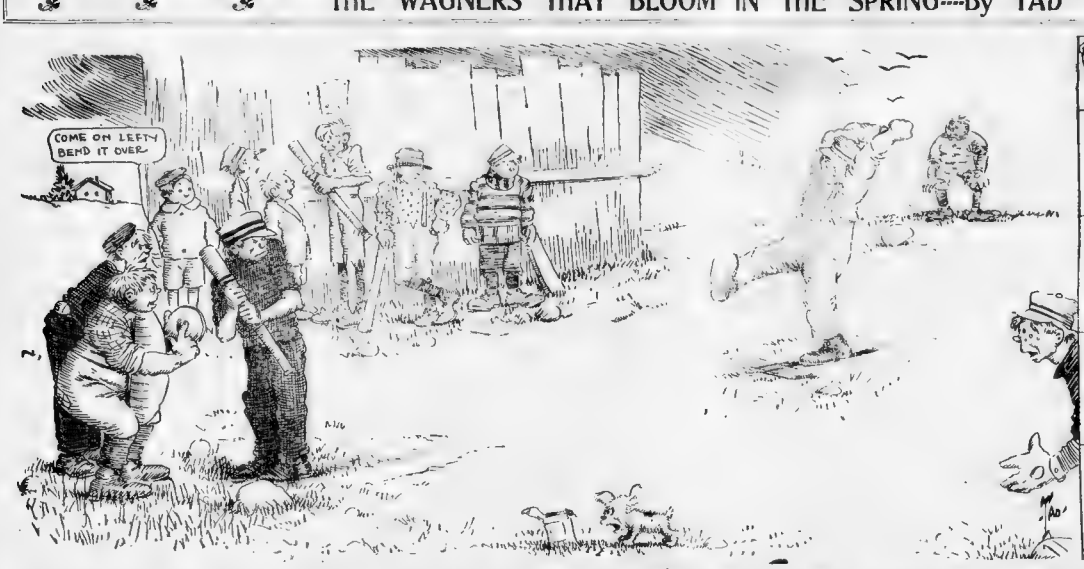
THE WAGNERS THAT BLOOM IN THE SPRING---By TAD



CHAMPION AD WOLGAST TELLS OF HIS UPHILL BATTLE TO THE TITLE

Because a Denver paper printed a story that was copied extensively in other parts of the country to the effect that he owes everything to Milwaukee, Adolph Wolgast, champion lightweight of the world, has written a signed statement in general denial. He states that he wants the credit for his rise to fame to go where it belongs. The young boxer also outlines his plans for the future and praises the only two managers he ever had—Frank Mulkern of Milwaukee and Tom Jones, his present manager. Here is the statement:

By AD WOLGAST.

IT was a matter of great surprise to me when I reached the territory this side of the Rocky Mountains the other day to read a story printed in a Denver paper to the effect that I owed everything in the world to Milwaukee and that I was showing an ungrateful spirit to say that Cadillac, Mich., is my home. The story, I have found, was written by a Milwaukee man that I know well. I am glad to have this chance to set myself right and refute the charges in this story, which, to say the least, was entirely uncalled for.

Praise for Mulkern.

I was born in Cadillac, Mich., and am not the least bit ashamed of the fact, especially as I had nothing to do with it. It merely happened that I got a good start in my career as a boxer in Milwaukee because that city happened to be open to the boxers when I was coming out. It was in Milwaukee, too, that I met Frank Mulkern, my first manager, and for whom I can have nothing but the highest praise.

Mulkern and I split, that is true, but there was nothing but a friendly disagreement. Mulkern is engaged in business in Milwaukee and could not spare the time to join me in my campaign on the Pacific coast. Hence he agreed with me that it was best I go along by myself until such a time as I would find some good man to handle my business for me.

I found such a man in Mr. Jones and he suits me very well. He is giving his entire time and attention to my business and that is exactly what I want. To show that I am entirely friendly still with Mr. Mulkern I need only cite the fact that I am to be his guest at any and all times I am in the Cream City. Indeed, I am going to Milwaukee with him to night. So much for the story about Mulkern telling a lot of stories about me.

Denies Booze Story.

When Mulkern took me to Los Angeles to fight Webster I was not "full of booze," as the Milwaukee writer said, and did not land there in such condition that I didn't know where I was. Neither did I desert the training camp and remain away for four days and then telephone Frank that I was sorry and would return if he would take me. When we were together I never left for a single day, let alone four.

When it comes down to saying to whom I owe most for my present position, I can truthfully state that since leaving Mr. Mulkern I owe most of all to Thomas J. McCarey of Los Angeles, who gave me a great chance to battle my way to the front, and next I owe a whole lot to Mr. Jones, my present manager.

"Lucky" is what they call me in Milwaukee. That isn't also right.

Can Make 122 Pounds.

This very minute I do not weigh over the light-weight limit. With two weeks' training I could make 125 pounds and with a month's work, if it were necessary, I could get down to 122 pounds and weigh in at 2 o'clock in the afternoon for a night fight.

Think of me, a mere feather-weight and smaller by a whole lot than some of the men who are posing as feather weights, giving away to all comers from three to fifteen pounds and meeting any and all of them, according to the contract.

And still, well knowing these facts, they call me lucky. It is ridiculous.

I have handled myself and I am going to stick right through to a finish with him. He had faith in me when all others failed and I like him for it. In fact, I like him in any case.

Four times I was to have shot in the betting and yet Jones bet. So did I, as we were bound to fall together. Not both of us knew there was no chance to fail unless through an accident.

Always Second Choice.

When I boxed Frank Picato I was second choice, at 2 to 1. So was I when I boxed Lew Powell. Both of these were big fellows alongside of me, as was Nelson. In the fight I boxed [illegible] weighed in at 145 and I scaled [illegible] of the Nelson fights, the strongest in fact. After we had the long count in the fourth round Nelson was a mere child in my hands.

I intend to rest from actual fighting until September. Then I will be ready for any of them—Nelson if he wants it, or anybody else who is a good man for the gate. I'll be seven weeks in reaching an average $1,000 a week for the time I'll take away from my afterwards. I cannot tell yet.

As for the fight itself, I consider that I beat Nelson easily. He hit me one solid wallop in the 19 rounds and I covered up before and after that he never had a chance of thumping me.

WOLGAST ROOTED FOR OWEN MORAN TO WIN

Tommy Murphy, Home Again, Tells of His Fight on Coast.

NEW YORK, March 12. Tommy Murphy, conqueror of Owen Moran and next in line for the lightweight championship, is home again. Tommy hasn't a bruise or a mark to show for the seventy-round battle with the Englishman. In speaking of that contest, he said:

"I surely won. I fought the way I had planned, and never had any trouble. The first ten rounds weren't very interesting, I guess, as Moran and I both stood and blocked everything. It was about an even thing up to the tenth. Through the last three rounds Moran's knees were bending and he staggered around. He was getting very weak at the finish and I was fresh and strong and fit to go right along at the same clip for five rounds more without letting up.

Referee Eddie Smith said after the fight that in his opinion Moran was lucky to lose on a decision, for he didn't think Owen could have lasted two rounds more and bring it to a finish. He was a little Moran said right after the fight that he wasn't in condition and he wouldn't have made excuses if he didn't know he was beaten.

One of the funniest things about my fight was Wolgast. He sat at the ringside and rooted his head off for Moran. He jumped up and down and kept yelling to Moran to go in and get me. Gans he remembered Pittsburg.

"Say, Wolgast wouldn't make a match with me. He says he won't fight for a long time. He doesn't want to fight me.

"I sat at the ring side and saw Wolgast beat Nelson. It was an awful fight. Nelson isn't the man he used to be by a long shot. Wolgast beat him by fighting him in his own style. He fought just the way Nelson used to. Up to the twenty-third or twenty-fourth round I thought that would beat Wolgast and I guess everybody thought so too. But he simply himself out thumping and then when Nelson was dead beat Wolgast came out strong and gave him an awful beating. It was the worst I ever saw a man take.

"One of the things about my fight was that I was in good condition. I worked hard for the big interesting the gym team next which will be held at the Broadway A. A. early in the latter part of this month. All the large colleges in Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia in Pennsylvania [illegible] will be represented at the meet. Many fans of Harvard is giving his own opinion this.

HAL CHASE EXPLAINS SIGNAL CODE AND COACHING IN FIELD

By HAL CHASE.

THIS is the fourth of a series of baseball articles written exclusively for the American by the brilliant young Yankee player, Hal Chase. In other stories Chase has dealt with his own position, base running and batting. The important and often misunderstood signal system, which fans know to be in operation but cannot see, is explained in this installment.

In a game where a person's actions for the one and I have dealt with the value of real work in baseball across I wish now to speak of the two chief principles of the most important principle. This is the employment of a secret code of signals and the coaching of players. By coaching I do not mean only the work of those too much abused individuals on the side lines who occupy the coaching lines.

There are many more coaching methods than those. [illegible] than on them. In order for a team to play the best game [illegible] there must be well [illegible] the players on the field must know what [illegible] and when [illegible] with the crack of the bat and team toward the base it becomes a signal to [illegible] mighty well he is not running [illegible] He depends on one of the [illegible] other him right. This now [illegible] the ball, and with a man [illegible] able to judge that point where [illegible] will drop. He knows [illegible] to [illegible] here to go, when to [illegible] about [illegible] holders have acted [illegible] catchers, when [illegible] of them who [illegible] not figure as [illegible] of all there [illegible] concerned was ever [illegible] to all the [illegible] result. That is a part of the game to [illegible] which the spectator seldom gives a [illegible] credit.

Poor Coaching Loses Games

How many games have you seen lost [illegible] on account of one player by another? [illegible] Nine times out of ten [illegible] more to [illegible] the ball [illegible] to [illegible] the catcher [illegible] trying to [illegible] the runner [illegible] the [illegible] Many [illegible] a game [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

NEW YORK TO HOLD TWO MOTOR SHOWS

New York will next year have two motor shows under the same management the first being one for pleasure vehicles and the second for commercial cars. This change from the present plan has been the result of the great additions to the Grand Central Palace. The great hall in the Fifty-ninth street building will be used by the independent makers having a district under the licensed association.

To care for all makers who wish to be in the city of New York when the show is in progress will be impossible, even with the building sufficiently large. The dates for the two shows will be Jan. 7 to 14 and those for the commercial vehicle being Jan. 17 to 24.

Work will begin early in January on the decorating of the interior of the building which will be done in the general color scheme of white and gold. While the exhibits will be arranged in a manner similar to that of the past, the places taken by the various cars will be changed, so that the visitor will not only see the cars in different positions, but the many decorative schemes will be changed throughout the exhibition.

Many of the members of the Licensed Association are now turning their attention toward commercial vehicles and will have their products ready for the fall trade and for exhibition at the January show. It is stated that the output of 1911 will exceed by 50 per cent the previous exhibitions of motor driven vehicles.

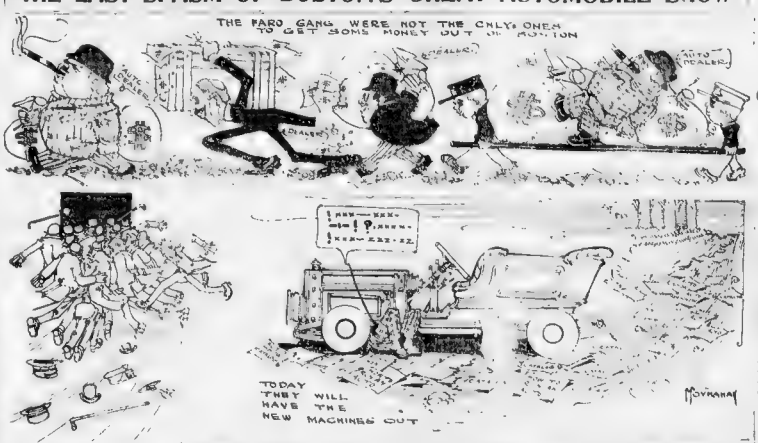
Interesting Log of Studebaker Car Abroad.

"Leaves from a Motorist's Log Book," is the title of a very attractive little booklet just issued by Studebaker. It is a log of a trip of 4,000 miles through France, Spain and Italy, by a party of prominent motorists in a Studebaker car. Every interesting incident of the trip is entertainingly described. The party went through the chateau district of France, through the cities of Spain and Italy, on the Piraeus and over the Alps. The book shows the pleasure between stops, time of arrival and departure, and the points of interest en route. Nowhere was fog made by the Studebaker on this trip a source of annoyance—it is one of its dependabilities, as the entire trip was made at a cost of $300.

In addition to the charming description of the trip, the book contains a complete map of the tour, a table showing duties and import charges in Europe, and a table of rates giving the actual cost of shipping a car to Europe, and of re-shipping it to the charges for shipping the car, charges for license, etc.

Motorists everywhere will find much valuable and interesting data in this book, and a large edition is being prepared by Studebaker for distribution.

THE LAST SPASM OF BOSTON'S GREAT AUTOMOBILE SHOW



MOST SUCCESSFUL AUTO SHOW IN THE COUNTRY CLOSED LAST NIGHT

Quarter of a Million People Passed Through the Gates During Eight Days of Exhibition at Mechanics Building, and Windup Came in Uproar of Intense Enthusiasm.

By J. C. KERRISON.

Ten thousand voices cheered twenty thousand [illegible] waved ten thousand yellow canes [illegible] Grand Army [illegible] American flags [illegible] and hooted and the biggest and most successful automobile show that the country has ever seen [illegible] Mechanics building last night. It is used as being of the side in the motor world had been suddenly lifted and all the sprouts of [illegible] that has been stored for ages had spoken loose. It was a riot of unquenchable thirst to the most complete and extensive affair that the world has ever seen.

In all, [illegible] people, a quarter of a million—from all parts of New England had thronged the greatest automobile show on earth [illegible] the 10, on visit on [illegible] and down the aisles, [illegible] orchard [illegible] automobiles [illegible] automatically the people took up the straight line of march [illegible] and the walls of Mechanics building safely quivered as the [illegible] passage was [illegible] Atlantic things were waved about [illegible] cheering.

In and out through the gaily festooned exhibits the [illegible] marched like a military host. Ahead of a throng of automobilists who would be expected to be better riders than walkers and readers. But they marched back and forth in the great serpentine parade [illegible]

MOST FITTING CLIMAX TO BIG SHOW.

The walls were aglow with electric fixtures [illegible] banners [illegible] The floors bloomed even more [illegible] from all parts of the country [illegible] with the aid of the bulbs. The [illegible] and bid [illegible] congratulations [illegible] greetings and the attractive [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

STEVENS-DURYEA MOTOR CARS
911 Boylston Street
Boston, Mass

March 1st, 1910

To Stevens-Duryea Owners and Prospective Owners.

We thank you for the great interest shown in Stevens-Duryea cars at the Automobile show—an interest which was so intense, that hundreds were unable to make their way among our cars or to give any single car in the exhibit a close examination.

To the many who were unable to give the Stevens-Duryea the proper investigation which they desired, we extend an invitation to visit our salesrooms, No. 911 Boylston St., during the coming week. Here we will display the complete line, and with our entire sales organization at your disposal we can give everyone the fullest measure of attention, allowing each to devote all the time desired to a consideration of the Stevens-Duryea in its most minute detail.

Cordially yours,

J. W. Bowman

Treasurer.

BUTLER TRUCKS ARE LATEST PRODUCTS

Many Purchasers in New England States of the Commercial Vehicle.

The commercial motor car section of the automobile show was a scene of exciting activity small, medium sized and heavy duty trucks are on exhibition and public interest in them is sustained.

The Butler exhibit of Rapid Motor wagons is a splendid example of the wonderful development of this industry. Yesterday Mr. Butler said:

"I am very much gratified at the business we are doing. Many of our old customers are increasing their shipment of Rapids—one firm that has used them for five years bought two more last night, and many others are arranging to do the same. In connection these speak of the tendency of the public to demand better service than ever before.

"The improved facilities for handling passengers and freight has educated us to expect the best to be had in service in any business transaction, we may be a party to.

"Thousands of people see a firm's wagons where one sees their place of business. The telephone has made it so easy to order goods that even children can tell the retailers of their mothers needs. While this is a great convenience, it makes it necessary for the merchant to be prepared to make prompt deliveries in a very much larger area than formerly.

"This makes proper equipment indispensable since business cannot begin to expand to fit increased demand made upon their limited powers.

"I have one Rapid truck on exhibition that has been in constant service for five years, and to show what is being accomplished in the actual sales.

"Boston concerns have patronized us liberally and I am arranging to enlarge my service department with a view of showing Rapid users of the responsibility of looking after their cars. We will sell three times as many trucks this season as we have during any previous year."

CHALMERS CAR FOR CHAMPION BATSMAN

In addition to the Chalmers car which is to be presented to the champion batsman of the two major leagues and which will be awarded by the National commission, Hugh Chalmers, president and general manager of the Chalmers Motor Company, has further shown his interest in baseball by purchasing for the season one of the grand stand boxes at Bennett Park, Detroit.

"Enthusiasm is one of the characteristics I most admire in men," says Chalmers. "Without enthusiasm a man is a statue. I love to see a man with a mind full of good, wholesome enthusiasm as a ball game. From the spectator's point of view it is the greatest sport in the world. To me the ball is one of the psychological wonders of the age. That any sport can so attract men of all classes, pursuits and temperaments is the strongest proof that it is wholesome and worth while. For me there is nothing that so relieves the strain of constant application to business as a baseball game. I like to see red blooded men [illegible] serious problem and [illegible] like boys at a ball game. I like it myself.

PROBLEMS SOLVED BY MANUFACTURERS

Factory production to meet the consequence of the buyer of motor cars is a point that was brought forward strongly during the [illegible] show by J. W. Maguire, dealer in Pierce-Arrow cars. Mr. Maguire explains that a few years ago the extreme cost of manufacturing demanded that the cost of delivery of the car should [illegible] ing the Fall and Winter months [illegible] until the [illegible] following year. [illegible] way factories, where they added [illegible] closed cars or started to [illegible] Within the past year and [illegible] service from [illegible] have [illegible] possessed by them. LADY GRANARD'S TACT

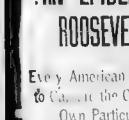
By CHARLES P. NORCROSS.

Special correspondent of Boston American.

Special Cable to Boston Americans.

LONDON, March 12—The Countess of Granard has rechristened her magnificent house, which was formerly known as Carlton House, and in the future will be known as Forbes House. The change of name is in honor of the Irish family of Forbes, to which the Granards belong.



CHARLES P. NORCROSS

Lady Granard is a typical American housewarming for her, and it is said that no expense has been spared to make the interior of the house as beautiful as possible. Lady Granard is a daughter of the late Mr. Leiter of Chicago, and a sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter, who was Miss Daisy Leiter before her marriage to the eldest son of Lord Curzon of Kedleston, the Viceroy of India. Lady Granard is also a sister of Mrs. Arthur Paget, who was Miss Minnie Stevens before her marriage to the son of Sir Augustus Paget, the British minister to Italy.

Lady Granard's tact is shown in the fact that she has rechristened the house in honor of her husband's family name.

FINANCIAL

SENTIMENT FIGURES IN COPPER MARKET

Certain Stocks Boomed too Hard Now Undergoing Needed Breathing Spell.

By E. A. WILKINS.

STATE STREET, March 12.—Those coppers that are selling sentiment on are undergoing a breathing spell and it is well that they do so for some of them, especially North Lake and Davis-Daly, have boomed pretty hard. They certainly are not selling on intrinsic value. Some time they may be worth the price they are now selling for, but to one on the outside there is a lot to be proven yet. The Lake Copper Company is nearer realization than mentioned, yet if it were not for anticipation the stock would not be selling for its present market price.

Comparisons are odious, but permissible. North Butte and Indiana are selling very closely together. The former has a dividend record of five years and at present is paying at the rate of $12 per annum. The latter has not even arrived at the mining period stage. Its present operations are confined entirely to the shaft drills. These remarks are not intended to depreciate the one nor to boom the other. They are facts for the unbiassed to ponder over. State Street, the same as Wall Street, is surrounded of glitter and all is not as it appears on the surface. Enthusiasm often gets the better of good judgment.

The copper share market received a set a setback as a result of the February slowing of the Copper Producers' Association, whereby visible supplies were shown to have increased 8,700,000 pounds. This was brought about largely by the lessened amount of the metal exported. The production was slightly larger than that of January and there was also a slight falling off in the domestic consumption.

These figures do not reflect the enforced curtailment last month as a result of the threatened strike at the Butte mines. The effect will be shown in the present month's statistics in all likelihood. The disturbance of trade conditions by reason of the hoarse, Tobacco and Standard Oil litigation and by the recent effort of labor leaders to precipitate a general strike in Pennsylvania, has tended to modify the natural increase in the consumption of copper as well as to retard trade in general.

The report of the Amalgamated Copper Company as filed with the New York Stock Exchange during the week was looked for as a revelation, but things that were not generally known. It presented in detail a statement of assets and has shown the exact ownership of its various subsidiary properties. It owns practically all of the Boston & Montana, Butte & Boston, the various smelting companies, and also is a trading company, besides over one-half of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company's 2,500,000 shares, a majority of the Parrot Silver & Copper Company's 2,250,000 shares and 100,000 shares of Greene-Cananea and 50,000 shares of Butte Coalition mining stocks. Its ownership of Anaconda stock has always been a much discussed question, while the Greene-Cananea and Butte Coalition are late acquisitions.

Outside of a 2½ point advance in Lake Copper and one and a quarter in Arizona Commercial stock there was little of interest in the local market during the short day. A good part of the selling on the market is believed to be short stock which may bring trouble to the sellers. New York and other Western cities continue to make inquiries regarding the Lake property and the drill developments in the old Michigan territory, which indications show than a passing interest.

UPWARD MOVEMENT OF STOCKS TO CONTINUE

All Scares Pass Away, Market Recalling Only Great Prosperity of the Country.

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, March 12—The one notable feature of to-day's market in Wall Street was the withdrawal of selling orders on the decline. London sent no lower prices, but when traders tried to break the list in Wall Street the market suddenly became stagnant.

Maryland, on the exchange and Rubber and Tobacco on the Curb were the strong features. The advance in Tobacco was $21 a share, and this brings it $70 above the price at which it was quoted when the original announcement was made in this column that the Supreme Court was believed to have decided in favor of the company. Standard Oil also advanced. Gains and losses were in nearly all cases fractional, and the best opinion in speculative and investment circles at the close of the day was that the upward movement would be resumed at once.

Opening with the warning of a war between the United States and Japan by Jacob H. Schiff, the week in Wall Street saw the bear party put to flight. Toward the end of the week the market got into its stride for active action in stocks. The decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States on tobacco and oil were forgotten. Nothing was remembered or talked about but the business boom that is growing again and the big earnings that are being reported from day to day by the railroads and industrial corporations.

Even the copper industry is booming, much to the disgust of some of the trust builders who want the supply of visible metal reduced. The official report for February shows an increase of nearly 9,000,000 pounds in the visible supplies, with a production of more than 44,000,000 pounds daily for America.

One step further toward the big merger was taken when the Utah Copper Company put its president and general manager on the board of the Nevada Consolidated, of which it has just obtained control. The strike at Philadelphia caused some uneasiness on account of the copper situation.

A factor of strength was the report of the government that farmers held almost record amounts of grain from the last crop. They have more than 10,000,000 bushels of wheat than they held a year ago, while corn is up to the past record.

The financial lines let it be known that they are coming into the market for new rolling stock to cost about $25,000,000. This is in addition to all orders heretofore made public or placed. The American Locomotive Company is making out bids for 1,100 locomotives that the various railroads need. Railroad equipment companies are being flooded with orders and the Steel Trust finds itsmen running in many lines behind before at this period of the year. These orders by the railroads are shown to be justified by the increased earnings reported. Notable increases reported the past week were by Missouri Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and New York Central.

New York Central has a long expected increase of its dividend to 6 per cent. It also reported the greatest number of loaded cars being hauled in the history of the company, with an actual shortage of 5,000 cars daily that could be filled if obtainable. All the Central subsidiary lines are making record earnings, and an advance in the Big Four dividend is now talked of.

The American Tobacco Company reported net earnings for the past fiscal year equal to more than 60 per cent. on its common stock.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit stock was strong, being helped by a decision of the Public Service Commission settling the dispute over the 10-cent fare to Coney Island. The company is permitted to charge 10 cents to Coney on its express trains.

Trading in the new $50,000,000 bond issue of New York City was active on the Curb, and J. P. Morgan & Co. have agreed to see that the bonds are marketed at above par. They are 4s 42-year cent. issue, but a public offering will be made, and it is expected that the bonds will go at a somewhat better rate than that offered by Morgan & Co. Arrangements have been made to market them in Europe also, so as to give them the widest possible publicity.

The Curb market was the scene of some notable excitement during the week in oil and rubber stock. Decision of the British Naval Department to use oil in all battleships has attracted public attention to the speculative possibility of oil companies, of which there are many excellent ones before the public.

Standard Oil advanced sharply to new high records for the movement and the other small companies listed on the Curb doubled their prices. There are thirty of these stocks, the Lone, the May and the California Oil and Gas. The latter has just been admitted by the New York Stock Exchange House. Other oil stocks will be brought to the Curb.

Stock of the International Rubber Company made another sharp advance the past week and was listed officially on the Curb. It will be transferred to the New York Stock Exchange immediately. It is the Rockefeller-Ryan crude rubber trust of Mexico.

IF YOU WANT A CHANCE—TAKE ONE—By HERBERT KAUFMAN

The best way to get a chance is to take one. Sure things are poor things. When you strike a certainty, you strike limitations. The making of profit almost always means the taking of risk.

Currents are seldom found close to shore. If you mean to swim far, you must dive into the depths and strike out boldly for the channel. The weakling who won't wade beyond his ankles simply gets cold feet.

There are times when it may seem wise to back away from a risk ahead, but be sure that it isn't cowardice which backs you into a greater danger behind.

Conservatism ceases to be a virtue when it stifles enthusiasm. Caution, like the tail of a kite, is valuable only so long as it steadies, but when there's too much of it, like too heavy a tail, it will hold you down.

Energy and imagination are both meant for use; inaction rusts the vitality out of ability. Wisdom is attained only by workers. Life is a huge retort in which character passes through a process of elimination which precipitates and concentrates sanity.

You can't tell what is right until you've learned what is wrong. The things to do are so few and the pitfalls so many that only experience can subtract your follies from your faults.

You can't acquire commonsense by proxy. Every man who ever did a bigger thing than his fellows underwent battle with them. The most vital of all educations is that born of buffets.

You lack courage if you aren't willing to submit to measure with all comers. You lack faith if you do not try to transmute your dreams into realities.

You deserve to have our calculations stand if you do not force us to correct the figures until they correspond with the percentage you set upon yourself.

Anybody, anywhere, can have anything the moment he produces evidence that he is entitled to the time or the place or the opportunity he demands; but there are so many millions of us who want the most that we judge solely upon performance.

The hang-back has no earthly hope. Credentials of power are necessary in the modern market place. We reserve our best for proven men.

You can come and buy what you please, but the price is fixed and set. It must be laid down in full. The choice wares of life are beyond the reach of mere talkers and shirkers.

We fear untried men. You must display your scars of experience; we will not stand the expense of their acquisition—we do not have to. Competition is far too eager—the waiting list of competent availables is filled—we won't take a chance with a man who hasn't.

We believe in the future of those who have been bold enough to keep trying in the past. Previous success is by no means the sole evidence of superiority. Misfortune acts upon some natures like weathering on wood—it prepares them for events of importance later in their careers.

All that is asked of you is that your spirit has remained unhurt. If there are no bruises upon your confidence and your ambition—if after setback and disappointment you have remained daring and dogged, the wounds of yesterday eventually become medals of valor.

You can lose everything but your manhood and still you have lost nothing important. Hold to hope and to principle and keep fighting. Maintain belief in yourself and we must give you ours. Wit and grit are keys to which all locks must submit.

PARTIAL LIST OF CARS ON HAND

And Reasons Why It Is Better to Buy a Slightly Used Car Than a New One.

1st—In buying the car you take the advantage of the experience of all former owners of that type of car, as to how the car has stood up.

2d—You have a car that the bearings are worn to a smooth surface and cars are known thoroughly tested out and any weak points made good, and the car is ready for hard work.

3d—The first owner has stood the depreciation and should you want to sell again the loss is small, if any, to you.

The above applies only to cars sold under a guarantee.

We All Fall Down

Every man living has his flaw,
Total perfection's not human law,
The best of us all must occasionally fall;
Every one has his conscience ache,
The wisest judge makes a bad mistake—
It all narrows down in the end to degree.
The seer in his years and the child at the knee,
The saint and the sinner, the small and the great,
The best and the worst are the creatures of fate.
So what if at times you are guilty of error,
There's no need for fear, there's no reason for terror.
If tongue slipped,
If foot tripped,
If hand was not steady,
If brain was too slow or the lie was too ready;
If only the wrong was not done with the heart,
Provided intent was not there at the start,
'Twas merely forgetfulness—haste—indiscretion—
Atonement's quite made in an honest confession.

JOYS OF SPRING IN HUES OF SMART SET GARB AT THE OPERA

Whole Social Populace Has Gone Music Mad, and Charity and Mere Pleasure Join Hands in the Entertainment Song That Is Being Sung Each Afternoon and Night in Boston and Nearby Cities.

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT

With the first notes of the wing flitting about from one function to another or setting sail for foreign lands, [illegible] holding much of an exciting nature to chronicle at [illegible]

The whole city of smart society has gone music mad, and musicales, large and small, for charity and for mere pastime, are filling every hour of the day [illegible] portion of the exclusive set remaining at home.

Besides the opera and all the private musicales of the week just past [illegible] large [illegible]-dinner musicale which Mrs Ezekiel Thayer gave at her Marlboro street home Tuesday evening there was the first of Wilhelm Gericke's [illegible] at the Tuileries on Wednesday.

But among them all the opera held first place. It was all sparkle and [illegible] and thrill. Even the gowns were musical of spring, so fresh and flower-[illegible] they were in their frilly blithesomeness.

The most pleasing note of the spring song in gowns was struck on Monday evening when Miss Sally Thayer, the beautiful brown-eyed daughter of Nathaniel Thayer, came in a swirl of violets and lace. During the intermission she [illegible] ushfoil study for the opera glass army as she sat in the Bryce Allan box with her handsome sister the Countess Moltke, who is as fair as [illegible] dark. The Countess, who is on from Washington for a brief visit with her parents, was this Monday evening guest of Mrs. Allan at dinner, and later came to the opera. The Countess wore a most becoming gown of helio[illegible]-raspberry velvet, the decolletage outlined with silvered tulle, and a band of diamonds in her artistically done coiffure.

Splendid Rainbow Land in Gown.

The Lelandors say there is land where all the rainbows that have ever been [illegible] forever drift to and fro, vanishing and reappearing like two-[illegible] of vapor. That describes perfectly the artistic creation [illegible] Mr. Ezekiel Thayer, who before coming to the opera had given a large supper [illegible] Arlington street home.

Among Mrs. Thayer's guests who came on with her to the opera were her sister-in-law, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, in brown chiffon over white satin, and her niece, Miss Sally Thayer.

Another engaged girl who came in for much notice was Miss Sally Pierce, who wore white satin and white lace.

The fair yellow daffodils had their representative in the gown worn by that strikingly handsome matron, Mrs. H. Staples Potter. It was a clinging affair of yellow satin trimmed with sequins of silver and crystal combined with black chiffon. Her dog collar was of diamonds, as was also her tiara.

An anemone gown worn by that winsome bit of womanhood, Mrs. George C. Lee, Jr., came in for much admiring comment. It was of the palest lavender satin embellished with white lace and pearls.

Like a full-blown rose, Christine Hunnewell burst upon the scene in the handsomest frock imaginable, of deep pink satin and white lace, and radiated smiles in all directions. With her was the interesting little heiress, Miriam Shaw, also in rose satin.

Breath of pink and scent of arbutus was suggested by the gown worn by handsome Rosamond Dixey, a most artistic combination of delicate pink chiffon over cloth of silver and a long tunic drape of deep green velvet.

"Chantecler" Gown One of Features.

The "Chantecler" gown was a feature—a rather daring, but withal a striking and fascinating one. It is a gown which, owing to its dazzingly brilliant color, can be worn only by the chosen few, and those few must be blessed with youth, else the effect is decidedly bizarre.

Three extremely young and extremely pretty girls wearing their first Chantecler gowns for the first time and happily conscious of the interest mounting to a polite furore which they were creating, were that interesting little débutante, Constance Zerrahn, the sweet-faced Dorothy Sturgis and winsome Leslie Lindsay. Miss Zerrahn was a guest of Mrs. Gordon Abbott, and a vivid gown of chantecler satin made quite the most brilliant note in the symphony of pale blues, pinks and yellows surrounding her, and made the rest of the grand tier look dull by comparison. Mrs. Abbott's gown was of deep rose satin.

Miss Dorothy Lawson, just home from a delightful trip through Europe, was in black velvet, and Mrs. Arnold Lawson, who was also an occupant of the Lawson box, wore a handsome gown of gold embroidered cream chiffon.

Mrs. T Jefferson Coolidge, Jr was a notably handsome figure in white satin and diamonds.

Mrs. Wallace Goodrich was in black lace, and Miss Ethel Gibson, who wore white satin done in silver, was a guest in the Henry D. Burnham box.

A trio of distinguished matrons arriving late were Mrs. Roger Wolcott, wearing a gown of black jetted lace and a diamond tiara; Mrs. A. Lawrence Lowell, in pale blue satin, and Mrs. A. Lawrence Rotch in raspberry satin and diamonds.

Mrs. Henry Stackpole, in black jetted lace, had with her her daughters, Miss Margaret in white satin, and Miss Grace, in pale blue. Miss Anna Gardner was their guest, and was in white lace.

Interesting Group of Younger Set.

Miss Barbara Burr and several others of the younger set made an interesting group as they stood one side and watched the procession pass. Miss Burr was in white satin and white lace.

Mrs. H. S. Slater added another gown to her exquisite and varied list of opera toilettes, and Monday night was resplendent in emerald green satin. Her jewels were a diamond collar and diamond tiara.

Mrs James J. Storrow, who had with her the two interesting debutantes, Marjorie Prescott and Annie Nelson, wore a gown of black satin, over which fell from the shoulders a long, loose drape of black chiffon, bordered with gold embroidery.

Miss Prescott looked very demure and pretty in deep old rose satin, and Miss Nelson was charming in pale pink satin and chiffon.

Mrs. Eben S. Draper, who was in white satin and diamonds, had with her her debutante daughter, Dorothy, in white satin and white silver spangled tulle, and the pretty little blonde bud, Miss Margaret Richadrson, who was sweet and flower-like in palest pink satin.

Mrs. Oliver Ames, who on Friday night lost a valuable diamond bracelet in the lobby, and who was made happy by its restoration, was in pale lavender satin and white lace.

Mrs. Stanley McCormick in her modish frock of deep blue satin; her mother, Mrs. Wirt Dexter, whose black velvet gown was topped with a filmy bodice of spangled white chiffon, and their young guest, Miss Elisabeth Wells, all in black, made an interesting trio in the first tier of boxes.

Mrs. Frederick Converse, in old gold satin, had as her guest Mrs. William Nickerson, in pale blue.

That piquantly pretty little matron, Mrs. Lester Leland, was in pale blue satin, and had as her guest Mrs T Jefferson Coolidge, in white satin and pearls.

Mrs. Bryce Allan, whose well-filled box was the centre of much interest, was in deep blue satin and diamonds.

Other notably gowned women there that night were Mrs Joshua Hubbard, in palest pink satin; Miss Ruth Richardson, in old rose tulle over white; Mrs. Benjamin S. Rinehard, in lavender chiffon and lace, Miss Mary Porter, in white brocaded satin; Mrs. Arthur Waldron Barron, palest pink satin; Mrs. Robert M. Morse, black satin, Mrs. Richard Russell, pale blue; Mrs J Rahat Hinks, black velvet with corsage of silvered tulle; Mrs. Barrett Wendell, black velvet; Mrs. Frances R. Allen, gray chiffon trimmed with bands of gray satin; Mrs Stanley P. Clemens, pale blue satin and pearls; Mrs. Albert Lincoln, black satin, Mrs. A. L. Roteh, black velvet; Miss Ruth Saltonstall, white satin; Miss Rose Saltonstall, white chiffon and white lace, Mrs. Frank Bemis, gray satin and pearls, Miss Terese Merrian, black velvet trimmed with silver; Mrs. Edwin Hills, black and white satin; Miss Amy Peabody, palest green satin; Mrs. Henry D. Chapin, pink chiffon; Miss Elinor Quincy, pale blue satin; Mrs. Henry Parker Quincy, black velvet; Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane, black satin; Miss Emily Beebe, gray embroidered satin; Miss Rosamond Bradley, blue satin; Mrs. Francis R. Bangs, black velvet, Miss Leslie Bradley, white satin, and Miss Susan Dabney, in pale blue satin.

Wednesday Night One of Most Brilliant of Season.

Wednesday night was quite as brilliant as any Wednesday night during the season. Society has the opera habit and there is no perceptible falling off in attendance.

All fashionable interest that night centred about the Oliver Ames box, where the Countess Moltke was a guest, also the popular and much sought after bachelor Grafton Cushing.

The Countess, who is a decided blonde of almost regal poise and bearing, wore a strikingly lovely gown of shimmery blue satin of the delft blue shade, combined with pink satin. A huge bouquet of pink roses was worn on the bodice, and a band of pink satin and diamonds circled her hair.

The Countess is being royally entertained during her visit, and so eager are her girlhood friends to do her honor that she would need remain in town indefinitely in order to satisfy them all.

She was the guest of honor at the dinner which Mrs. Oliver Ames gave Wednesday night.

Mrs. Ames, who is the most charming hostess imaginable, wore pale blue satin and diamonds.

The three Thayer girls—the Countess (Cornelia Thayer), Mrs. William Patten (Anna Thayer) and Miss Sally Thayer—the most interesting trio of sisters in town, were all there Wednesday night, but all in different boxes.

Miss Sally, who is as dark as her two sisters are fair, was in her father's box, and was most attractive in a gown of white satin draped with white chiffon and a necklace of pearls.

Two boxes to the right, with the Bryce Allans, sat the lovely Mrs. Patten in a gown of rich yellow satin veiled in black lace and bordered with sable.

Mrs. Allan was in pale pink satin with a corsage and necklace of diamonds.

Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, who chaperoned Miss Sally and several of her friends was in white brocaded satin and a necklace of diamonds.

In a beautiful gown of white silvered lace over pale pink satin, Mrs. Bayard Thayer looked superb. She had as her guest Mrs. Henry L. Higginson, who wore black satin and white lace.

Mrs. Arthur E. Davis wore one of the most attractive gowns seen this season, a pale lavender satin draped with pale lavender chiffon embroidered in silver.

Miss Elizabeth Wells, who is spoken of among the "lookers-on" of the dress parade as the girl with the long earrings, was especially attractive in a gown of yellow satin draped with yellow satin and trimmed with bands of embroidery in grape designs, done in pearls.

Mrs. Stanley Clemens Seldom Misses an Opera.

Her earrings, at least an inch and a half long, were of gold studded with pearls.

Miss Clara Judkins Sears, who has been displaying some wonderful gowns of late, wore heavy white lace embroidered in silver in rose designs over pale blue satin.

Mrs. Stanley P. Clemens, who is a true music lover and who rarely misses an opera, was handsome in palest blue satin trimmed with white lace and pearls.

Miss Nina Thayer, who was sweet and flower-like in rose pink satin, had as her guest Miss Hannah Osgood, who wore deep rose satin and white lace.

Miss Susan Thayer, who was a caller in the Nathaniel Thayer box during intermission, was in white satin and white chiffon.

Miss Alice Parker was in black lace and Miss Helen M Winslow was in lavender satin.

Mrs. Henry D. Burnham, who was in deep blue satin and white lace, had with her her interesting daughter, Nina, who wore black satin and black chiffon, and that interesting little debutante, Fanny Cabot, who wore pale blue satin.

Miss Ruth Nickerson, one of the handsomest as well as one of the wealthiest of the season's buds, evidently decided at the last moment to come, as she appeared in a pale waiking suit of deep blue serge and a large black hat.

One of the most striking beauties there was the tall, slender, dark-eyed Marie Lee, who was disputing in a gown of pale blue mirror velvet.

Mrs. Wirt Dexter, who entertained several guests in her daughter's box, was in black satin and diamonds.

Mrs. H. Staples Potter, who seems to have an endless variety of gowns, wore a handsome one of black satin, trimmed with touches of pale blue on the bodice.

Mrs. Henry D. Chapin was in black satin with a corsage bouquet of deep red roses.

Miss Grace Stackpole, the pretty little débutante who has been so royally feted this season, was in white satin and chiffon and was the picture of youthful radiance and loveliness.

Mrs Samuel J. Mixter, who came with Mrs. Alden A. Thorndike, was in lovely embroidered chiffon over deep yellow satin.

Mrs. Thorndike wore pale blue.

An interesting group of young girls in the Walter Hunnewell box consisted of Miss Christine Hunnewell in delft blue satin and pearls, and that interesting little blonde, Mary Josephine Armory, in palest blue satin.

Mrs. John F Perry of the Fenway gave the last at home in the series which she has been giving at her residence this season. Her guests included men and women renowned in the musical and literary world for the most part. The tea table decorations were American Beauty roses. Mrs. Perry wore a clinging gown of yellow silk with an Egyptian overdress of net elaborately embroidered in gold. The affair was a very pleasant social occasion.

Mrs. Chandler Hovey, One of the Most Charming of Boston's Younger Matrons

ONE of the most charming as well as one of the most beautiful of Boston's younger matrons is Mrs. Chandler Hovey, who, before her marriage some few years ago, was the well-known society belle, Dorothy Alten. Mrs. Hovey is noted for her brilliant and unique entertainments and, though exceedingly young, has gracefully taken her place in the front ranks, even with some of our oldest and best-known hostesses. Mrs. Hovey is exceptionally fond of music and is one of the most faithful attendants at Symphony, grand opera and the other musical events of interest. The Hoveys now reside at Kendal Green, where they have a beautiful home and entertain extensively.

Many Small and Select Affairs Bring Happiness to the Social Set Yet Remaining in Town.

ALTHOUGH these days of mid-Lent begin to pull upon the fashionable contingent and through the smart ones are topsy scattering to all the points where the four winds blow, the past week has been remarkably full of all kinds of small select affairs of society's diversion and with the customary musical and charity affairs, those who remain in town have managed to consume most of their burdensome leisure.

Mrs. Burton Pinkney Reed of Audubon road entertained a number of friends last Monday afternoon at whist. She had invited as guest her friend Mrs. Beth Burrage of New York, who is staying with Mrs. David Sachs of Commonwealth avenue, and Mrs. Burrage was presented with a handsome bridge lamp as a souvenir of the occasion. Mrs. Reed was assisted in receiving by several of her friends and Mrs. Sachs, Mrs. Wolsey Cobb, Miss Mary Lord, Miss Susan and Mrs. John Burgess Cobb. Later in the course of the afternoon refreshments were served.

An interesting social gathering of a large part of last week was the visit of Miss Ruth A. Morse of Brookline, who was the guest of honor at a tea given in her honor by Miss Edith Lee of Commonwealth avenue. Miss Morse is from Mayville, N. Y., and is visiting Miss Lee for a week. Among those who were present at the tea were Miss Lee, Miss Morse, Miss Mary Lee, Miss Ruth Lee, Miss Ruth Morse, Miss Edith Lee, Miss Mary Parmele, Miss Ruth Parmele

A MYSTERY SOLVED

Eczema Not a Blood Disease—New Remedy for Every Skin Trouble

For years the medical profession has been searching a cure for Eczema, the most common and most stubborn of skin diseases. Some said it was a blood disease; some said it was the result of indigestion. It remained for one studious chemist to settle beyond any question that eczema in all its forms is a skin disease and related in no way to a disordered condition of the blood. This same chemist experimented with many antiseptic, healing and soothing agents, but it was not until he formed the compound Cadum that he at last realized he had given to the world something that would bring relief or cure to millions of sufferers. Cadum ranks to-day with the great discoveries of the medical world. Its action is so positive that the itching of eczema is stopped immediately. People who have itched and scratched for years find sleep and rest as soon as Cadum is used, and in ordinary cases a complete restoration of the skin to a healthy condition is reached in two or three weeks. The soothing, healing effects of Cadum are almost instantaneous. Cadum is sold at all druggists. Trial box 10c.; large box 25c. The small box is sufficient for trial purposes, and may be used not only for eczema in all its forms, but also for hives, pimples, blotches, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, psoriasis, ringworm, chafings, scruptions, sores, scabs, itching piles, scurvy, etc.

FUN HAS THOUGHTFUL DRAMA ALMOST BACKED OFF THE BOSTON STAGE

"Queen of Moulin Rouge," "Traveling Salesman," "Man Who Owns Broadway," "Midnight Sons," "Is Matrimony a Failure," Hodge and Others Laugh, but "East Lynne" Will Be There With the Tearful Weeps in the Shows of the Coming Week.

By FELIX ST. CLAIR.

LAUGHTER is three times as popular as tears or emotion. There are [illegible] which induce thrills or weeps this week at the high-priced theatres [illegible] amused has things entirely his own way at nearly all other [illegible] of entertainment.

The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," at the Boston, is the old [illegible] during the coming week. This Potter musical comedy depicts night [illegible] Paris and contains the famous Apache dance.

"The Traveling Salesman" comes to the Hollis, but this season we shall see the number one company which is touring in this popular comedy. The company which played the Park in the same piece last year was the number two organization, as many surmised.

Raymond Hitchcock in "The Man Who Owns Broadway" will play here until the warm south winds draw us to the beaches, if the Boston public wants him.

William Hodge will also stay with us until "The Man from Home" becomes a competitor of Wonderland and Paragon Park.

Kyrle Bellew in "The Builder of Bridges" must go at the end of this week.

Is Matrimony a Failure?" at the Majestic, "The Midnight Sons" at the Shubert and Vaughan Glaser at the Globe in "St. Elmo" hold over.

Eva Fay, that eerie lady who reads thoughts and penetrates the future comes to keith's, while "Ma Gosse" and the Pole Players will remain at the American.

"East Lynne," that tearful and everlasting drama which was written by Sophocles and first presented in the Roman Coliseum, is still on the boards and will be presented at the Grand Opera House. "Tom Moore," a romantic drama, will be given by the John Craig company at the Castle Square.

MOULIN QUEEN WILL QUEEN IT.

"O tempora, O mores" which is Latin for "We have a new mayor now" This philosophical observation is induced by the fact that "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" opens an engagement at the Boston Theatre beginning tomorrow night and nobody has stood up in meeting and declared that the authorities must prevent such a frightful calamity.

When "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" was billed for the Boston Theatre not quite a year ago Mayor Hibbard arose and declared amid applause

"Never shall it be said that the Mayor of Boston permitted a piece so improper to stain the fair name of the city. I saw that show in New York and it was fierce."

So the poor queen was chased away before she ever had a chance to show Boston how she had been calumniated, and the company disbanded for the season a full six weeks before it had expected to.

Now, however, "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" has returned. The advance man has been here a week telling people that it is a highly moral drama preaching a perfect Sunday school lesson.

The story of the comedy is about as follows:

The young King of Orsamia—whoever that is—has been finishing his education in Paris. A bride has been selected for him, the Princess Marcia, but the name is enough for him and he has never seen her. She loves him, however and learning he is wedded to four like in Paris, she comes to the "gay French capital"—gas drenched capital now—and pretends to be a demi-mondaine dame.

HE JUST HAS TO STAY FAT.

Frank J. McIntyre, the fat comedian who plays Bob Blake in "The Traveling Salesman," was anxious to catch a train the other day, and as he entered the station the starter was crying "All aboard." Mack's friend started to run, but the actor continued his firm, flat-footed stroll, although his face betrayed anxiety.

"Why don't you run?" cried his friend.

"Not on your life," replied the comedian. "I'd rather lose a train than lose my job."

Then, as they had half an hour to wait until the train, he consented to explain.

"You see, I never was much of a hit until I got fat. Now everybody thinks I'm funny. It may be my talent, and it may be my fat, and I ain't taking any chances of losing either. I never do anything to lose weight, and I'm afraid to worry for fear I will knock off a few pounds. What makes me mad is the patent medicine men who think because I'm fat that I want to get rid of it. I'm in a state of fear lest some actress that pities me should put anti-fat in my coffee without my knowing it. I tell you if nobody loves a fat man everybody laughs at him, and that's better."

"The Traveling Salesman" returns to Boston for a brief engagement at the Hollis. As a matter of fact, it does not return, because this company never played in Boston. Several companies were sent out in a "Traveling Salesman," so great was its success, and it happened that the number two company came to Boston and played the Park Theatre. McIntyre heads the original number one company.

George M. Cohan has noticed with regret the lack of grand operas by American composers, and before he sailed for Europe he confided to some friends that he guessed it was up to him to write the American grand opera.

"There is no money in that kind of thing," he admitted. "Opera is in Uncle Tom's Cabin' class as a money-maker, but a man has to do something for art, and these European fellows should not be allowed to monopolize anything. While I'm abroad I'll pick up a little about counterpoint, and harmonic effect and when I come back I'll write a music drama."

AND GEORGE MAY DO IT, TOO.

Don't laugh. George may do it. Certainly he has a vein of bright and lively melody, and his musical comedies are about the best. Take "The Man Who Owns Broadway." Here is a melodrama with a dozen musical numbers tacked on. There is plot galore, villains, male and female, and a cruel father. But just when the audience begins to be excited the story suddenly becomes a burlesque.

The songs are catchy, the situations are funny, and Raymond Hitchcock never had a better part. Hitchie's curtain speech is as funny as anything in the play. He appears to take the applause as a demand for some remarks and descends to the footlights in an unmistakably oratorical manner. Sure enough, it is an oration he proceeds to deliver. He wishes to discuss the discovery of the Pole by Cook and Peary. He discusses Cook from all points of view, but they run the curtain down on him before he makes his peroration.

"It was in Berlin, where I went with a comic opera company several season ago," said Maxie King, the clever toe dancer with "The Midnight Sons," that a very funny thing happened to me. I was introducing the cakewalk then, and the management of the show featured me conspicuously, everyone feeling sure that the negroes' favorite dance would strike the Germans as distinctly new and clever.

"As an appropriate accompaniment for my cake-walk that jingling ragtime piece known as 'Smoky Mokes' was selected. Our musical leader had to write sixty-five different copies of the piece, as the orchestra in the Berlin theatre—as in most of the European show places—was very large. With everything thus fixed, imagine our surprise when the leader, after a stage rehearsal, returned all the copies of 'Smoky Mokes' to me, saying we would have to do without that number. When I recovered myself long enough to ask the reason for it, I learned as he put it, 'It riles the ladies.' Meaning that he can't play it and talk him out one orchestra can't work.'

Pause for laughter.

"Well, what made it tickle the ol[illegible]'s mouth?" I asked.

"Why—er—er, it just did, that's all."

"Maybe he had a hair lip," suggested Press Agent John Love.

Certain moving picture houses have been forbidden by the local authorities to include vaudeville acts in their program, leaving them only films and illustrated songs. The public may be safeguarded by such a restriction, but it is difficult to see how.

Either the moving picture theatre is a safe and proper place for large audiences to assemble or it is not. If it is, there is no reason why vaudeville acts should be forbidden to be performed here. If it is not, the authorities are [illegible] to withhold a license for any sort of entertainment to be [illegible].

The trouble is that existing theatre laws were made before the moving picture business came into existence. There are fifty or seventy-five of these in theatres in every proper [illegible]. Some of them are large roadhouse affairs, protected from fire more adequately than certain of the older licensed theatres. Others are converted stores and halls located on the second or third floors of buildings, and the use of fire would prove human crematories. By sticking to films and songs you can get concert licenses and avoid the theatre restrictions.

What is needed are laws dealing directly with the moving picture form of entertainment—laws that will permanently close firetraps and dives and protect legitimate enterprises.

But surely the authorities know that a moving picture machine is far more dangerous than any vaudeville act and many a fire has been caused by such machines—small blazes which were extinguished by the proprietors without notifying the fire department.

many stock companies have dramatized the book of "St. Elmo" and presented it with more or less success. Mr. Glaser, on the other hand, viewed the book when printed and declared that it would be a mistake to attempt to present it in the form of a play. "It's a good story, though," he added, "and I may do it sometime. It is called 'At the Mercy of Tiberius,' and it is a corker."

Glaser looks more like a prize fighter than an actor, and he tries to look as much like one as possible. When a man in the lobby of the Bijou Brewster the other day he wore a sport sweat shirt, cap and studied slang. Not since the most ardent admirer of H. Conrad Mayo (Mayo-naise) of "St. Elmo" would have recognized him.

Henrietta Crosman who is Mrs. Maurice Campbell, always is elevating the drama. Maurice Campbell believes in getting the money. Mrs. Crosman says she has nothing to do with the production of "Mary Jane's Pa." by Maurice which is still playing in New York as Crosman's big star. Therefore she is not responsible for the [illegible] of last week's testimonial [illegible] got up by Hyde as advertising matter. It reads:

GERMAN LOHENGRIN WILL BE TRANSLATED INTO ITALIAN AS HEARD BY BOSTON EARS

Will Prove More Artistic Production Than One in Mixed Languages Which Was Given While Company Was on the Road.

By FREDERICK JOHNS

LOVERS of German opera will not be tempted to go to the "Lohengrin," which will be produced by the Boston Opera Company at the popular-priced performance next Saturday night, will be sung in Italian. Those enthusiasts who insist on opera in its original language will be deeply grieved.

It must be remembered, however, that opera is an Italian opera company, equipped to produce Wagner only as the Italians do it. The chorus is largely Italian and cannot sing in German, and most of the principals know only Italian and French rôles. The Metropolitan is the only opera house in this country which can sing Wagner in German, and a German chorus is maintained at that house for German productions.

The chorus, by the way, is to be discharged by the Italian management, which assumes a full control next season, and German opera in Italian is not an impossibility at the Metropolitan.

During the joint winter Hamm system produced "Tannhauser" in French, and there is surely as much logic in singing "Lohengrin" in Italian as other works of the German master in French.

Eva Dereyne, who apparently has an unlimited repertory, will sing Elsa in "Lohengrin." We have heard her as Marguerite, Carmen, the page in "The Huguenots" and Tosca, which is as wide an operatic range as one singer could possibly possess. Christine Hansch sang "Lohengrin" in Chicago with success, and will be heard in that rôle here. Murdones will be King Henry; Blanchart, Telramund; Cervi, Ortrud, and Pulcini, the herald. The conductor will be Walter Goodrich.

MIXED LANGUAGES IN FORMER "LOHENGRIN."

The Boston company sang "Lohengrin" to be the general rôlling for the season, on the tone with the assistance of singers from the Metropolitan. These singers sang "Lohengrin" in German and the rest of the cast in the usual Italian, surely a more laughable performance than one which is wholly Italian.

Metropolitan assistance is not to be depended upon, as singers offered to Boston have frequently failed to appear. No chances will be taken with this part in mixed, which will be sung entirely by the Italian cast.

An even more important production will be Rossini's "Barber of Seville," which has not been heard here since Alice Nielsen appeared in it during the San Carlo season two years ago. Lipkowska, Constantino, Ferrari, Tarsechia and Maddonna will be in the cast.

The "Barber of Seville" is nearly one hundred years old. It was composed in 1815 at Rome. Rossini, the composer, was an extraordinary genius, who died young, long enough to learn sufficient musical grammar to compose an opera, and then left school. Operas in those days were comparatively simple compositions. Ros sini had in him a vein of melody so free and so novel as to startle auditors who heard him for the first time. His style was rich in color and his sense of humor was keen. His first opera in 1813 was "Tancred," once very popular, now forgotten. His second was "The Barber of Seville" came two years later.

The story is very entertaining and it is a pity that it cannot be sung in English as the spoken word helps to convey the sense of the opera in half in Seville. Count Almaviva [illegible] in love with Rosina, a fascinating young [illegible] who lives [illegible] her guardian, Dr. Bartolo, hope of [illegible] Unfortunately [illegible] he [illegible] him off to [illegible]

In the second act [illegible] the house as [illegible] her to [illegible] shows him [illegible] of Rosina [illegible] self-portrait [illegible] a mistress of [illegible] Barbiere di [illegible] the count [illegible] form Rosina [illegible] Rosina [illegible] believes [illegible] Basilio [illegible] ing the [illegible] superb entertainment for the song and while the master brings away pieces of dummy paper [illegible] tunately.

The score sparkles with fancy and clever [illegible]

Alice Nielsen will be heard this week as the unhappy heroine of "Mme. Butterfly" Saturday afternoon. On April 4 Geraldine Farrar will be the tuner and Louis Hasti the baritone.

The management of both the Metropolitan and Boston Opera companies asserts that there will be no opera next week. The two companies reach Boston on March 21, so that there should be no interruption to the [illegible] body physically injured, but the efforts of both companies to do [illegible] ory of the other can hardly be considered as a pastime.

Hammerstein will open with "Carmen" on the night succeeding the [illegible] week in [illegible]

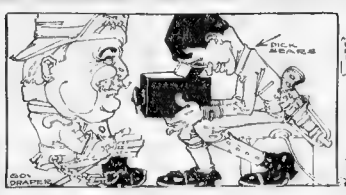
BEST STORIES TOLD IN BOSTON LAST WEEK

Here are some of the best stories that have been told by well-known men in and around Boston during the past seven days. Read them and see how fun and frivolity has a favored place in the minds of all of us.



Blessings of Prohibition

By Senator Daniel D. Mahoney of Holyoke.

PROHIBITION? No, sir; I'm against it. Tell you why. I've been all through New Hampshire and Maine and have reached the conclusion that the thing can't be enforced. Remember one time I struck a town up in New Hampshire that was supposed to be tighter than a drum. I hadn't been at my hotel five minutes before the proprietor asked me if I wouldn't like to try some of New Hampshire's finest. Did I? Never mind. At any rate, we got talking and I asked him why he couldn't drum up enough votes to swing the town into the license column.

"License?" he thundered. "Why, I nearly went broke last time trying to keep it dry."

I couldn't understand, so he told me that when the town voted "No" his license fee was saved.

"But doesn't it cost you a lot in court fines, and aren't you afraid of being sent to jail?" I asked him.

"Sh sh," he cautioned. "See that fellow out there that's churning ice cream for supper to-night?"

"Uh-huh."

"He's the sheriff. And do you remember the fellow that took your horse out to the barn?"

"Ye-ah."

"He's the clerk of the court. Notice the clerk who handed you the book when you registered?"

"M-m."

"He's the local judge."

"Fine business," I said, "but I'd imagine that the church folks would get after you and expose the way you keep these officials on your pay-roll."

"Perhaps they would," said my host, "if it wasn't for the fact that I'm the deacon of the only church in town."

Governor Was Wise

By Our Star Reporter.

I WAS down on the Cape covering the war manoeuvres for the paper last Summer.

Dick Sears—you know Dick, the fellow who asks the policemen to help him take photos on forbidden ground—Dick was along doing the picture stunt.

When the Red Army was surrounding our Blue boys, Governor Draper, General Pew, General Brigham and the other chieftains held a council of war. Dick thought the group would look well in print. He posed his camera, and held up orderlies, flunkies, colored servants and everybody else who tried to get in touch with the powers. At last all was ready. Dick peered through his apparatus. Governor Draper's hat shut off the light from his face in a manner that didn't please the artist.

"Say," he growled to me, "for Heaven's sake, go over and ask that blooming Governor to tilt his hat back on his head."

I was about to start toward the group, when the Governor motioned me back, tilted his hat and said:

"That's all right. Go ahead with the picture. I heard him."

He Won by a Hair

By Captain John E. Driscoll of Police Headquarters.

AN Irishman and a Hebrew were arguing as to whose race had the greater number of saints and holy men.

"Let's settle it," said Patrick, "by each of us pulling a hair out of the other's beard for every saint of his own race that he can name."

"Agreed," said Isaac, and they began.

"Moses," said Isaac, as he pulled a hair from Patrick's beard.

"St. Patrick," said the saint's namesake, as he extracted one from Isaac's with a yank.

The yank hurt Isaac. He thought he'd get square. He counted out a dozen hairs in Patrick's beard and extracted them in honor of "the twelve Apostles."

"Ho-ho!" shouted Patrick. "So that's the way ye play the game, is it?" He thrust both his hands into the patriarchal beard of the Hebrew, gave a vigorous tug and shouted.

An Anchor, Not Pick.

By John F. Meehan, Mayor of Lowell.

IN one of my campaigns for the House of Representatives an old Irishman, who had always been with me in all my fights, died. I went to a friend in the florist business and instructed him to send the handsomest piece of flowers he could design.

Next day one of my lieutenants came to me and whispered that one of my opponents down to Courthaldt 1467894 (I'll 'em you're was circulating a story that I had insulted me, and ask 'em to send a carriage up here."

the dead man's family by sending a piece of flowers made up to represent a pick. I hastened to the house of mourning. The widow refused to speak to me. Neighbors told me that my political rival had pointed out the floral insult to her.

I hurried to the room where the corpse lay. It was one on me, all right. The florist had intended the design for an anchor, and it looked like an anchor to me. I explained to the satisfaction of every one. But I have stopped sending anchor designs to funerals.

Fire Proof Came Soon.

By Donald C. MacDonald, Publisher.

ABOUT a dozen years ago, when I was younger in experience and more gullible for sure-thing investments, a financial agent came to me with a fire-proofing scheme. He wanted to sell $50,000 worth of bonds. The thing looked good to me, and I arranged to go over to New York with the agent and inspect a building which was fire-proofed with his product.

We went to New York on an afternoon train, saw a show, had supper at one of the Great White Way hotels and went to bed.

I woke early the next morning, filled with a desire to see the building right away and invest money as quickly as possible. I went to the door of my agent friend's room and knocked.

"Get up," I called, "I want to get out and see that building."

"All right," he yawned. "I'll be dressed in a minute. You go ahead and telephone down last night."

I did as I was told. To my astonishment the man on the other end of the phone answered back:

"Better take your friend back to Boston and come back in a year or so."

"Why? What's the matter?" I asked.

"Well, you see, the blame building burned

Child Is No Flower.

By a Teacher in a West End Public School.

THE children in my district have a lot of peculiarities, but I had one who gave me more trouble than probably any child whom any teacher ever had. He was a little Italian chap, who insisted on coming to class with his pockets stuffed with garlic, onions, bits of raw macaroni and other sweet-smelling things which he called his "lunch." The resultant odor of the class-room wasn't the most pleasant thing on earth.

Finally, I had to send him home one day with a note explaining that he couldn't come to school unless he left the odoriferous lunch at home. He hadn't been gone ten minutes before he reappeared with this note from his fond mother:

"Mis techer, you let mi tony cum to skul or I wil hav the law on yor hed, my tony is no rose, don't smel him lern him (Signed) MRS. ———."

What He'd Do With $1,000

By Captain James P. Clare, hero of four wars, now a State House messenger.

I was a drummer boy in the 60's, and I can truthfully say that I wasn't the most popular chap in camp when I sounded the reveille with fife and drum. The boys used to hurl a lot of abuse at us when we rolled 'em out of their blankets in the morning. It was "Plague take that piskin fiddler" (meaning the drummer boy), or something else like that that they shot at us when they got up.

"Well, I wish I had a thousand dollars and an honorable discharge," said one of the tots one dismal morning. "I'd beat it for home and open up a nice little business."

"I'd buy a farm," said another.

"I'd blow it in a day," said a third.

"What would you do, Mike?" one of the fellows asked Mike Scanlon, the color-bearer of the regiment. Mike was a rather quiet fellow. He's still living—has a home down in Lynn—eighty-two years old he is, and hearty as he ever was.

"What would I do?" said Mike. "Well, I'll tell you. I'd go home to Lynn, where there's a nice little girl waiting for me, and I'd get married. Yessir, and I'd settle down on a nice little place that I know of. I could buy it for five or six hundred dollars. And I'd hire a hired man and a drummer, and I'd have 'em sound the reveille every mornin' outside my window. And I'd let 'em sound it and sound it till they was ready to drop with exhaustion. And I'd lie in my bed and laugh at them. And when they was about ready to drop I'd look out the window at them, and I'd say:

"'Sin to the divil, ye sons o' guns, and play yer heads off. I don't be afraid of ye now.'"

Another One About Mike

Also by Captain Clare.

THIS fellow Scanlon was one of the wittiest though quietest fellows that I ever knew. When our regiment was captured in June, 1864, Mike was entrenched with the colors in a little redoubt about two hundred yards to the rear.

Three cavalry rebs rode up to him.

"Give up those colors, you d—n Yankee," shouted one of them, swinging his sabre above his head.

"Well," drawled Mike, "I've been in this country thirty years next Fall, but I'll be jiggered if this isn't the first time that any one ever called me a Yankee."

For years and years I've yearned to see the Boston millionaire,
Who showers green and yellow bills about him everywhere,
Who keeps no tabs on taxicabs, and never gets a shock
That jars his nerves when he observes the predatory clock;
Who lends and lends, and spends and spends, and scorns to ask "How much?"
And lightly flips enormous tips to messengers and such.

In fiction you have followed him through many a thrilling page
In bank or bar or trolley car, wherever he is seen
He thumbs the backs of portly stacks of crisp and new long green.
And when the plot is waxing hot, with easy, breezy charm,
He peels a few and pays what's due upon the dear old farm

You know the kind of man I mean; he never deigns to dine
He charters yachts by dozen lots to take his friends away
To gilded ports and gay resorts that border on Boston Bay
He always dwells at swell hotels, and at his cash request
Caruso comes and softly hums at night to bring him rest

He glances through his tailor's bill without the least surprise,
He writes out checks with nonchalance, no matter what their size.
In nicotine his likings lean to ninety-cent cigars,
About his door are forty-four assorted motor cars
When up and down the gay old town, beneath the mantling night,
He takes a stroll he blows his roll on everything in sight.

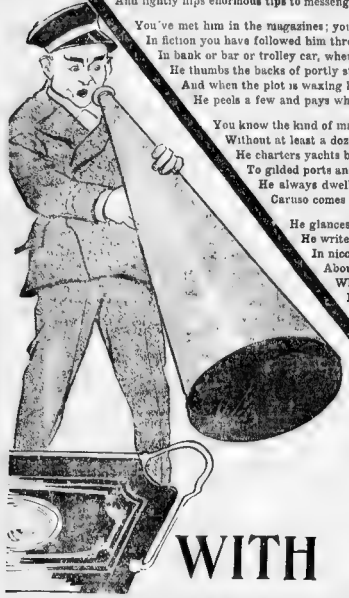
I thought I'd see what one might be the gentleman
Who parted with his substance on this edifying plan.
I dogged one's track down town and back and everywhere he went,
But not a sou he coughed or blew or gave away or spent
I thought, ah, me! he yet may be the party that I sought,
And trailed him through the avenue, but not a thing he bought.

I found a millionaire at last, upon the curb he sat,
He wore a battered hand-me-down and sorry-looking hat.
Said I: "If you're a millionaire, my unpretentious friend,
Why don't you hit the Pike down there, and spend, and spend, and spend?"
He said: "My son, the suckers use the yacht, cafe and cab,
We millionaires don't spend and spend; we grab, and grab, and grab!"

* * * *

Though still full patient I seek the spending millionaire,
I guess the man was right, for I don't find him anywhere!
He who only spends and lends to friends
Seems doomed, in time, to fail.
There's Coleman, Hall—these are not all—
There'll be others seeking bail.

WITH THE "RUBBERNECK" MEGAPHONE MAN ON THE COMMON



tween 3 and 4 in the afternoon.

PLACE—Tremont street. Rubberneck wagon, well filled with visitors from 'Way Down East, North Thetford, Vt., Salmon Falls, Biddeford and other foreign parts, including two young women from Lawrence, is just starting from the corner of Park street

MEGAPHONE MAN (assuming the pose of a magic lantern lecturer)—And here, ladies and gentlemen, is the spot famous the wide world over as Boston Common. It consists of some forty-eight acres, and at one time contained 1000 fine old elms.

OLD GENTLEMAN What's become of them?

MEGAPHONE MAN—I'm sure I don't know, sir.

OLD GENTLEMAN I should think Mr Pinchot would find out! Somebody ought to find out! You don't suppose some of these here city grafters—

MEGAPHONE MAN It is provided in the charter of the city that these parks must always remain public resorts, and shall neither be sold nor given away.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER (from spectacles) I suppose the Subway people just took what they wanted.

MEGAPHONE MAN (hoping to distract attention from the unseemly scene at the Saturday infant exhibition at Park Church, built by the Rev. [illegible] in 1820. He very rarely during sent [illegible] are held. You would be surprised at [illegible] men and women who tread [illegible] filling inspiration here with child [illegible] to the tender cares of omnibus

MEGAPHONE MAN [illegible] Common you [illegible] on Finnstaff hill [illegible] Frog Pond. You remember it, [illegible] Redcoats destroyed the [illegible] Boston and has the hogs [illegible] was strong [illegible] that you see Faneuil [illegible] remember, No, sir! [illegible]

OLD LADY Now, that isn't so at all; they said

JENNIE Where? Where?

FIRST YOUNG WOMAN FROM LAWRENCE Right there in that window. All of them! Why, they're imported.

MEGAPHONE MAN [illegible] on the right, on the [illegible] placed [illegible] Bunker Hill monument, [illegible] as they know well, is 221 feet 5 inches high, and was erected by [illegible] Jacksonville, Florida. By closely studying the pictures around the base, one can also tell, with the aid of a good pair of eyes, what the weather is going here at this moment.

FIRST YOUNG WOMAN FROM LAWRENCE I am still interested on Lodge in the [illegible] and he just [illegible] broadcloth, [illegible] broadcloth, I bet that'd cost [illegible]

JENNIE [illegible]

MEGAPHONE MAN (grand) [illegible] The statue on the right on the left, I said, was erected to the memory of Colonel Shaw and the others who fell in the Boston Massacre of '76.

STOUT PARTY (from Lowell, who has not yet heard what was it, a trolley strike? Ha! Ha! Ha!

CHARLESTOWN GIRL—Gee, this is a farce. I hope nobody see us. Lookit, ain't that Dan Lane? I think he's the swellest dresser in this town. Ain't he grand?

HER FRIEND—O, I dunno, look who's coming down the line just behind him. Jack Ryan! I can't see where Dan Lane has got anything on Jack Ryan, when it comes to style.

MEGAPHONE MAN—If folks is more interested on that side of the street than in the historic Common we are now passing the Tremont street entrance of Keith's, the most beautiful playhouse in the world. If it wasn't for Mr. Keith we would now be fighting our way above through a jam of trolley cars. Mr Keith got them off'n Tremont street, and he had to fight the whole town to do it.

FIRST YOUNG WOMAN FROM LAWRENCE O! Raymond Hitchcock in "The Man Who Owns Broadway." What do you say if we make it in to-night?

JENNIE—Go as far as you like. Do you suppose that's Hitchcock standing in the door?

FIRST YOUNG WOMAN FROM LAWRENCE—Suppose? I know it's him. Of course it's him

MEGAPHONE MAN (forgetting his part) Pardon me, ladies, it ain't none of my business to be going around doing a Sam Blythe "Who's Who" with this car but the gent at the entrance to the Tremont is Mr Al Sheehan, manager of that first-class theatre and one of the best boys in this burg.

MEGAPHONE MAN (coming to)—The building on the corner is the Masonic Temple, dedicated in 1867, with President Johnson among those present. On the opposite corner is the Hotel Touraine—

MEGAPHONE MAN—Perhaps the best known hostelry in these parts. What it costs to stop at the Touraine is usually exaggerated in the public mind. For instance, you can get a room there for $3.50

OLD LADY—That much money for just a room, for one week, without your meals?

OLD LADY—I call that scandalous!

MEGAPHONE MAN And from that the prices ranges upwards to $20 a day for a suite, placing the little hotel well within the reach of all

OLD LADY I vum.

CHARLESTOWN GIRL—Nobody has to go there if they don't want to, Lady, you don't see the cop has agents pulling nobody in.

[Old Lady gives her one look. Seventh.]

MEGAPHONE MAN Something has been said to-day about the comparative rank of one Jack Ryan and one Dan Lane as the most striking figures on the avenue of form and fashion. While I would say nothing disparaging of either gent, let me call the attention of the ladies to Mr. Percy Harrison, who approaches. I don't know what anybody else thinks, but I call this a class.

YOUNG WOMAN FROM LAWRENCE (ecstatically) —Ain't he grand?

MEGAPHONE MAN—As we turn to the right, in Boylston street, I would first call your attention to the Central Burying Ground, which dates back to 1756. Here are the remains of the British soldiers who met a disgrace during the British occupation of Boston.

OLD LADY (wiping her eyes compassionately) Poor fellows!

MEGAPHONE MAN Here also are the Britishers who died from wounds received at Bunker Hill.

HER FRIEND—Yuh

MEGAPHONE MAN—Mr Tom Lothian to be exact. Now we shoot down Charles street to Beacon street, passing the Public Gardens

LITTLE BOY—Can't we stop and try the swan boats?

MEGAPHONE MAN—Too early, bub. Now we are in Beacon street, once known as the "lane to the almshouse," because down on Park street were the workhouse, the poorhouse and the Bridewell. The building on our left with the granite front, is the home of the Somerset Club, the very elite of our very elite.

STOUT PARTY (coming up for breath)—I wouldn't mind taking a look at that dump. Whadda ya say, Jack?

MEGAPHONE MAN—I regret to say, pal, that I am behind in my dues. I might—but no, I don't see any of the fellows at the windows.

FIRST YOUNG WOMAN FROM LAWRENCE (in a whisper)—I'll bet you this guy is somebody.

CHARLESTOWN GIRL (sotto voce) —Cut it! He's a tourtender!

MEGAPHONE MAN—And here we have the State House, called by Dr. Holmes the "hub of the solar system." The State House stands on a lot which was formerly Governor Hancock's cow pasture, Samuel Adams laid the cornerstone and Paul Revere was the Grand Master who conducted the Masonic ceremonies.

FIRST YOUNG WOMAN FROM LAWRENCE He's certainly a smart guy, all right

CHARLESTOWN GIRL—Him? Sure he lives in Hayes Square. Get onto him looking in a book every couple minutes.

MEGAPHONE MAN—And now we're back at the starting point, the famous Park Street Church. In the olden days the site of this church was occupied by the town graveyard. Hence the name of the burial ground on the other side of it, where, among others, sleep Governors Adams, Bowdoin and Sullivan, Peter Faneuil, Paul Revere and the parents of Benjamin Franklin. This books, and gentlemen, concludes our ride around the Common.

FIRST YOUNG WOMAN FROM LAWRENCE Get a move on, now, Jennie, and we'll have a look at that purple broadcloth

Do Not Be Afraid of Life.

Copyright, 1910, by the Sunday American-Journal-Examiner.

THROUGH the magnifying glass of worry you look upon life distorted and menacing. It is better to try to see life as it is. If it looks big, and menacing, and terrible to you, try to get another point of view. You cannot possibly help your prospects by worrying about it. You can easily harm them—annihilate them, in fact.

All men and women become too serious at times. Of course, life is not a joke, nor is it to be taken too lightly. But, at the same time, it is not the problem that it seems when you lie awake nights thinking about it.

After all, you can do no more than live it in the best fashion you know how to live it. There is no escape—save suicide—and only maniacs and miserable cowards kill themselves.

If you find that existence is "getting on your nerves," that you are rendered irritable and miserable by too much thinking of the little troubles that surround you, take a day or two off and consider how insignificant are those troubles compared to the whole big game of life.

To most men money is the greatest source of worry. The man who hasn't any is worried about how he is going to get it; the man who has a great deal is troubled with the problem of keeping it and getting more.

But no investigation into the affairs of any human being would disclose a case in which worry was of the slightest benefit, either in making money or in keeping it.

The business man who takes his troubles home with him, who sits up late at night thinking of them, and who has them for bad dreams through the hours that he needs for restful sleep, soon breaks down under the strain.

You will find insane asylums filled with people who have worried themselves into mental ill-health. Near every large city are hundreds of sanitariums whose inmates are all recruited from victims of worry. They all have a distorted view of life, see things out of their true proportion, and attach undue importance to matters that they ought to regard as trifles.

Physicians will often tell you that worry is due to a bad liver. It happens more often that the bad liver is due to worry.

Nervous indigestion, a malady from which fifty per cent of Americans suffer from time to time, results from trying to eat and think hard at the same time. The blood that ought to be engaged in helping the digestive processes is at work in the brain. In consequence, food that ought to be readily digested and assimilated lies an inert mass in the stomach, throwing off poisons which soon play havoc with the whole human mechanism.

Of course, at the bottom of these troubles is selfishness, which underlies most of the ills that flesh has been heir to since the beginning of the world

The wife of the business man cannot understand why she cannot have as many luxuries as the wife of her neighbor.

Without really intending to, perhaps, she makes her husband feel that she would have more respect for him if he made a larger income. So he works harder than he ought to, strains, and strives, and frets, and worries in pursuit of wealth, till his nerves, on which he has been living, give way, and he has to be hustled off to a sanitarium for a rest.

Look at the handsome houses in a small city, or in a suburb of a large one. Half of them have been built by men who could not afford them; who borrowed money on mortgages and incurred heavy indebtedness that their wives might impress the women of their acquaintance with their importance.

Look at dozens of haggard men working over-hours in city offices, surrendering the last vestige of their independence and comfort that every year a little more may be added to their salaries—the little more to go immediately to a little more fashionable living.

But for every woman who demands of her husband more than his capacity enables him to earn, there are twenty men who seem to fancy that their wives ought to stay at home seven days a week cooking meals themselves, or trying to get servants to cook them, and to keep always cheerful and happy, and ready to welcome the home-coming husband with a bright smile and an appetizing meal.

"What do you want?" the husband will ask when the wife complains that she gets tired forever doing one thing. "Haven't I provided you with a home? Aren't you protected and cared for? Don't you have clothes enough to wear and food enough to eat? Don't I devote my whole life to keeping you comfortable? Why, I look forward all day to the time when I can come home and sit by the fire and read the paper or a book, while you never seem to want to stay here at all!"

Naturally, the husband does not reflect that the house, to his wife, is her place of business, and that in a single day there she has more difficult and varied duties than he has in his office in a week

To him the home is a place of rest and recreation. To his wife it is the scene of long days of hard work, and she has as much right to desire to escape it for a time as he has to desire to escape his office.

The demand of the extravagant wife for more money keeps the husband worrying, and worry soon plays the mischief with his brains.

But no less does the husband's insistence that his wife remain always at home beset her with frets and troubles that would amount to nothing were she only able to get away from them now and then.

Obsessed by the desire to improve his finances at all hazards, a man on salary attaches undue importance to trifles, fusses over losses that he ought to regard as a matter of course, and keeps his office affairs so much in his thoughts that there is no chance for relaxation.

And a wife, with no outside interests, no ambition other than to please one over-particular, tired man, comes to look on the preparation of every meal as a task of the first magnitude, and to burst into tears if one dish is spoiled.

When you find that life seems to be so important as that it is time to relax

All men who work hard ought to play. It makes little difference what the play is, so long as it is not chess or some diversion fully as difficult and fatiguing as a man's business.

The extra time of any man who works indoors ought to be spent outdoors. Golf is possible only to men of great leisure and considerable wealth, but any man can walk in the open air, ride a bicycle or pull a rowboat.

At play a man meets a different sort of people from those with whom he works. From them he gets new ideas and new points of view. And after a day off spent in the open air he will return to work benefited and refreshed, and the problems that look too large and ugly to him Saturday afternoon will appear as trifles on Monday

The woman, who is far more indispensable to the household (if there are children) than her husband is to his business, needs to get away from her home at least two or three times a week, if possible

Money spent in taking her on vacation trips, on journeys to other towns—any place where she will not have to think of what the next day's dinner is to consist of, or what the baby is to wear to-morrow—will do her an amount of good that will be worth twenty times the outlay.

The average woman, who for seven days a week thinks of nothing but her children's wearing apparel and the ingredients of meals, will keenly enjoy a meal at a restaurant, though it may not be half as appetizing as one of her own preparation

The reason is that with the restaurant meal she has had nothing to do, and she can eat it with an appetite that has not been destroyed by fretting over its cooking

---

Taking thought for the morrow" is a very different thing from worrying. Any intelligent man will try his best to improve both his brains and his fortune. And the other kind of man is not worth reasoning with.

But it is of the greatest importance to watch for the line between necessary thought and foolish worry and to take care never to cross it

When you find that you are waking up at night to review the work of the past day you had better take a vacation or get a new job.

And, if you are a woman, when you find that the cost of living and the fear that your children will get the whooping cough interfere with your night's sleep, you had better insist that your husband take you to the theatre, or at least to a moving-picture show.

Wise employers never want "indispensable" men to work for them, for the man who thinks that the establishment for which he works could not get along without him takes altogether too serious a view of himself.

Such a man is so deeply engrossed with the inside of his business that he can never see it from the outside, and it is from the outside that all growth and improvement must come.

Life, complex as it is, is nothing to be afraid of. Face it bravely and you will not hurt your future by needless worry, after all, is only a harmful form of

MURRAY'S

Neuralgia and Inflammation of The Facial Muscles

The Popular Home Remedy

No matter from what cause the pain or inflammation arises, Murray's Lotion gives instant relief. All nervous, neuralgic diseases yield to the soothing influence of this incomparable home remedy. The anodyne effect of Murray's Lotion subdues the pain, reduces the swelling and prevents the return of the malady by removing its cause. Applied promptly, its effect is marked and immediate. Unlike many preparations, it is water white and will not stain or discolor, but, on the contrary, improve the daintiest complexion.

Nervous and painful neuralgic conditions resulting from exposure to cold or following unusual fatigue or overstrain of the muscles of the jaw, face or throat are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Murray's Lotion.

Edna May's Social Progress.

MRS. OSCAR LEWISOHN (NEE EDNA MAY) AND HER PET SPANIEL

London, March 5

MRS. OSCAR LEWISOHN, the former Edna May, is making considerable progress in English fashionable society, in spite of many embarrassments.

There are a great many queer people who knew her intimately when she was first a chorus girl and then a musical comedy star, and they are constantly reminding her of themselves or of past events, but she steers her way around all these difficulties with amazing tact, dexterity and good nature.

The most amusing feature of the whole affair is that Mrs. Charles S. Henry, who is Mr. Lewisohn's sister and wife of an English member of Parliament, has not progressed nearly as well in society as Edna May.

Mrs. Henry at one time looked upon brother's marriage with the musical comedy star as a grave mesalliance—an affront to the dignity of the great Lewisohn family. She left her sister-in-law severely alone. On one occasion Mrs. Henry almost ran into her in the Hotel Ritz, in London, but dodged her in silence.

Mrs. Henry is a socially ambitious woman, but has not succeeded in entertaining anything loftier than a couple of members of the Liberal Government, who are in bad odor with the aristocracy. Mrs. Oscar, on the other hand, has made many friends in the court circle, including two of the King's equerries, and at fashionable Biarritz, in the south of France, she was much taken up by the smart set.

She has met the great Mrs. George Keppel, and Mrs. Keppel has presented her to the King.

These occurrences have changed Mrs. Henry's point of view entirely, and opened her eyes to the real worth of Edna May. So she made friends with her sister-in-law and invited her recently to her country place at Wargrave-on-Thames. The party proved the most successful that the hostess had ever given, and now it seems that Edna May may carry her proud sister-in-law into the upper circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lewisohn have a beautiful house at Ascot, the most fashionable region for country houses in England, the site of the famous race meeting, which the King always attends, together with all the fashion of England. They have a number of fast automobiles, and can run up to London in an hour whenever they feel like it. Mrs. Oscar has become an excellent golfer, and takes an interest in all the sports of the old English aristocracy.

The rise of Edna May to the status of an English society woman is really quite a remarkable spectacle. She was the daughter of a letter carrier in the interior of New York State, married first a trick bicycle rider and made her first hit as a Salvation lassie in a musical comedy.

Then she went to London and repeated her success. The most eligible young noblemen and gilded youths of society were among her adorers. Oscar Lewisohn, one of the immensely wealthy American family of copper mine owners, fell in love with her and married her. She undoubtedly possesses amazing tact and adaptability to new conditions. She has glided into her new life as easily as if she were the daughter of a hundred earls.

She owns superb jewels, but never wears them all at once at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, like the American Countess of Granard, who has been so warmly criticised on this account by English people. Edna dresses exquisitely, but quietly, and wears her jewels with moderation. Her voice is soft and low, and she speaks with Miss Edna McAuley during a motor ride with Lillian Russell, and the engagement of Mr. Lewisohn and Miss McAuley has since been reported.

Walter Lewisohn, the youngest of the brothers, met Miss Selma Kraus, a strikingly beautiful girl, when her father's automobile had broken down midway between Deal Beach and Lakewood, N. J. Mr. Lewisohn came along in his machine and took the Kraus family back to their home. The acquaintance thus begun has ended in a Lapp marriage.

Why Women Are Easily Swindled.

The average woman is swindled not be-cause she is a special set of fool or because her brain is unusual in the exercise of calculating the pence. No women would ever pay a dollar for a ten-cent piece, nor would they be in the habit of paying more than the regular price for anything unless there were such a price.

Women are often cheated by a shop assistant, a woman herself, believe that there are to be worn on her head and how to wear them. But when her own sex presents itself, as second nature, she is at once helpless. It is one of those strange anomalies which pre-vent a fair exchanging a diamond ring for a kind of gen-uine gold.

Though business instinct and a shared of the male sex is supposed to be de-veloping among women, they continue to be the victims of hopeless ignorance in the matter of what seemed at Newton near Boston, Mass., and to get change in four cents as many as possible. Another cause of the gentle dishonesty which is practised on women is the fact that they fear attracting attention to their money matters and ridicule from other women.

A solitary female in a car full of men will examine her change, but that same business-like person in a vehicle full of "beehive" buses will carelessly slip silver and coppers into her bag without even glancing at it. She dreads the amused, sneering glance of the gold-bangled, gold-bagged passenger who will smile at the girl who counts her pennies.

Moral: Cowardice in woman's failing and the swindler's delight.

Dr. Furnivall's Crew of Salesgirls Out for a Ride

WANT TO LIVE TO BE A HUNDRED?

Dr. Furnivall in His Skiff Upon His Eighty-fifth Birthday.

By Dr. E. J. Furnivall.

HOW to live a long and healthy old age is a subject which is of the greatest interest to every intelligent sport. I believe that any man or woman in good health can lead any man or woman to-day to all of us ought to be able to live one hundred years. That means a long and pleasant work.

I believe in work. I am convinced that seven-eighths of our waking hours should be spent in work. But I think we do the moths with when I get out. The pleasure work. I must always do better than I do all my work, and the work I do must be my best, because in short the work I love. America, outdoor Books, Cycling, I think, says: "Happiness is complete absorption in some effective form of work." I wonder why he did not say, "And the secret of a long life is complete absorption in some effective form of work." But perhaps he took another full year to read and understand Darwin.

I found my work early, and life has been a good deal longer in consequence.

Find Your Work

The man who sweeps the crossing under my window is as much entitled to my respect as the man who sells me my newspaper. The man who can make a wise bargain is a wise man.

Secondly, I think I owe much to those of the manner of living which with Professor Elie Metchnikoff that to live long must assiduously study himself and his habits and needs.

However absorbing my work has been, I never let one day neglected my daily exercise. That exercise has always been taken out of doors. He Wrote It—She's Divorced Him

Too Much Intimate Inspiration in "My Wife's Gone to the Country," Says Wife of Man Who Originated It—"Good Bit of a Relief," Says He.

MANY, many husbands have felt keen responsive throbs of reciprocity or fume to the sentiments embalmed in the touching ballad, "My Wife's Gone to the Country. Hurray! Hurray!" Like the man who, confronted by the statement that married men live longer than singles, responded in the classic phrase, "No, it only seems longer," they felt that the song writer spoke from the depths of experience.

Now it seems that the song was really intensely personal. George D. Bernhammer, known professionally as George Whiting, wrote it. His wife, who, on the stage is billed as Trixie Harris, says George went ahead and acted the way he set it down in immortal verse.

Wherefore, Mrs. George first had Mr. George arrested on a charge of desertion and has now fully divorced him. It would not have hurt Mrs. George so, but before they were married, Mrs. George says she had inspired Mr. George to write another song and this was called, "No body Else But You, Babe." She feels that Mr. George is unreliable.

But there is a very important psychological point involved. Did the song inspire Mr. Bernhammer to send his wife to the country and then become so very indifferent? Or was it because his wife had gone to the country that song and consequences came about.

Mr. Bernhammer has slipped much upon his forthcoming sentimental triumph. "If Grandmamma Was a Dynamite Bomb You Would Not Kick Her No," long enough to give his side. Mrs. Bernhammer, who will shortly appear in a sketch entitled, "If She Only Hadn't Married," has another tune. She feels that Mr. George is unreliable.

But there is a very important psychological point involved. Did the song inspire Mr. Bernhammer to send his wife to the country and then become so very indifferent? Or was it because his wife had gone to the country that song and consequences came about.

"My Side"—By Mrs. George Bernhammer.

IT'S awful to have a husband who writes popular songs. All they ever think of is to write new songs and forever getting inspirations. Where they get some of their inspirations is more than I can imagine, and goodness knows the way some of them sound no lady would want to imagine where they came from. And they get so absorbed in their inspirations. Talk about an actor feeling his part, why, the way the most ordinary song writers, I wouldn't advise any woman to marry one of them.

And think he was me he writing "Nobody Else but You, Babe." George was awful untruthful.

I gave George lots of ideas and I gave him the one for "My Wife's Gone to the Country, Hurray! Hurray!"

Maybe I gave it to him too good. It was like this:

George was married some years so he says he knew.

One day we were sitting in the parlor of the hotel and talking about going to the country for the Summer. We were talking that like all married people do, and we spoke about how some men send their wives to the country just to get rid of them, and when they are gone they honeymoon here a day old time.

And then I felt an inspiration. You know the more you can put in about what a lot of people know the more popular your song is.

I said: "Why not write a song about 'My wife's gone to the country'?"

"Hurray, hurray!" said George. "Brilliant idea." He got all absorbed in it. "What would a man do when his wife went to the country?" said he. "Don't you know," said I, rather suspicious. "No," said he. "You've never gone."

So we got to work and talked over what a man does when his wife's away. I pictured a house, all the furnishing taken away, the husband entertaining his friends in glorious style and both tickled to death that here at last was a chance for him to have the time of his life. We agreed that there were some men who were tired of their wives and were just waiting the chance to have the time of their lives.

"I don't believe such wretches live," said George. "Wasn't he the deceitful thing.

And then I went away to the country. But did George come as he said he would? He did not. I found that he was having the time of his life home here, and there was I, who had given him the inspiration for that song, put in exactly the position of the wife we had been talking about. And if George didn't know beforehand what a man would do, all I have to say is he's the quickest learner I know.

I gave him the dream about the "He called on pretty Molly, a girl he used to know." And what does he do but fall up with a girl named Erma that I guess he did use to know. And there he was making all kinds of money, and I never got a cent out of the fun song.

And I want to say right now a girl don't ever marry a popular song writer. They're always looking for inspirations and goodness knows what they'll do with it after they get it.

Mrs. Bernhammer, the Wife Who Went to the Country and Mr. Bernhammer Who Wrote the Song.

"And Mine"—By George Bernhammer.

A SONG writer has to get his inspiration everywhere and nowhere. The honeymoon feeling thing the truer it is likely to be. We were living in Chicago, my wife and I, and she wanted to visit her father and mother. It was in the country, a distance from Des Moines.

The name is Swan—the hamlet, that is. My wife wanted to go, too. I let her. She never came back. I didn't see her for a year, until we both appeared in court.

It was a good deal of a relief when she went to the country. You know how it is yourself. The man who is married is a man in prison. At least, he is a man on parole and he feels like a prisoner even if he isn't. Just look at him.

He has to give an account of where he's been and justify his existence. Now, a man gets himself. He has to tell when and why. He pretty tired of this.

He has to report at regular times. He either stores some spirit and makes his wife realize that he is still a man, though married, or he acts like a poor whipped cur or he gets out and lets her run. Every man knows this, and I believe that is the reason the song caught on so well. It is the Magnificat of the deserted home. Good idea that, eh?

But, as I was saying, I was sitting waiting in a barber shop on Park—second street, when in came living Berlin. He said, "What are you doing this evening?"

I looked up with the glad light of freedom in my eyes and said: "I don't care different. But I'm only twenty-six now, sing! I do. My wife's gone to the country." He said: "Your wife's gone to the country?" "Yes, I said. Hooray, hooray! She thought it best, I need a rest." "That's a song, old man," said Irving. That was at half past seven. We got our shave, and, still with that feeling of the man who has just gotten loose from the third degree, I went to his office. At half past nine I had written the song. It just dowsed in on me. We called up Ted Snyder, and he came and wrote the music. By half past ten we were all singing it on the street.

I went to bed finding it, and woke in the morning with half the chorus in my mouth still.

The song made about $25,000 putting it low. It started as a joke, and I was surprised that the newspapers and ministers took it.

In and in I found my wife was taking me in earnest. She began writing nasty letters. Then very few letters. After awhile the letters began to come through her attorneys. Now that some of treatment made me see that I hadn't been joking after all, that I was in earnest when I said, "Hurray! Hurray!" I was glad it was indeed a relief.

Maybe if we hadn't married until we had some sense it would have turned out done in my eyes and said: "I don't care different. But I'm only twenty-six now, sing! I do. My wife's gone to the country." He said: "Your wife's gone to the country?" "Yes, I said. Hooray, hooray! She thought it best, I need a rest." "That's a song, old man," said Irving. That was at half past seven. We got our shave, and, still with that feeling of the man who has just gotten loose from the third degree, I went to his office. At half past nine I had written the song. It just dowsed in on me. We called up Ted Snyder, and he came and wrote the music. By half past ten we were all singing it on the street.

I went to bed finding it, and woke in the morning with half the chorus in my mouth still.

The song made about $25,000 putting it low. It started as a joke, and I was surprised that the newspapers and ministers took it.

WHEN Mrs. Brown told hubby "I just can't stand the heat;
Please send me to the country, dear, I know 'twould be a treat,"
Next day his wife and family were seated on a train;
And when the train had started, Brownie shouted this refrain:

My wife's gone to the country,
Hurray, hurray!
She thought it best, I need a rest;
That's why she went away;
She took the children with her,
Hurray, hurray!
I don't care what becomes of me,
My wife's gone away.

He called on pretty Molly, a girl he used to know,
The servant said, "She left the house about an hour ago;
But if you leave your name, sir, or write a little note,
I'll give it to her when she comes," and this is what he wrote:

My wife's gone to the country, etc.

My Favorite Recipes—By Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini

TO-DAY I place before you a few readers another collection of dishes gathered from many quarters of the globe more of those recipes gleaned from much travel and through my keen appetite for good dishes. Among the most valuable recipes I give you to-day are the two which I got from a famous cook in a hotel at Geneva. Three sauces are excellent dressing for trout, turbot or salmon, indeed for any fish. The one which appears first is the simplest, used by the plainer Genevese. The second is used by the wealthier and for all classes when they entertain guests at luncheon or dinner.

The Salad a la Boheme is one of the most delicious of which I have partaken in Europe. Neck of Veal a la Boheme we saw in the Quarters in Bohemia. In the Orient I came upon the rich Malay Curry of Prawns, which I ordered my chef to prepare on Christmas at my New York home on West End avenue.

Eggs and spaghetti is another of the dishes which appeased my hunger—I delighted in its aesthetic sense. Next week I shall submit Herlans A La Venetienne.

TAKE fillets of a large whiting; juice of one lemon, half a teaspoonful of pepper, one teaspoonful of salt.

Cut the fleis lengthwise. Place them in a deep dish with the salt and pepper. Squeeze and the salt to taste over them the juice of the lemon. Let them lie in it for an hour. Drain them. Dredge them with flour. Fry them to a bright brown. Serve them with Genevoise sauce or any other that may be preferred.

Another Genevoise Sauce.

ONE pint of veal stock; one-quarter pound of lean ham or bacon; one small bunch of fresh thyme; one small bunch of parsley, two ounces of butter; one tablespoonful of flour; half a carrot; one blade of mace; six cloves; one bay leaf; one dessertspoonful of white wine; three dessert spoonfuls of lemon juice; half a teaspoonful of cayenne pepper.

Mince the ham fine and place it in a stewpan with the butter, herbs and spice. Cut the carrot into very fine slices and place it then in the pan with the rest of the mixture. After they have simmered for an hour, dredge in the flour. Stir it briskly for five minutes. Pour in little by little the stock. Again let it simmer for another hour. Then strain into a saucepan. Let it boil again. Mix in the wine and the lemon juice, the latter having been strained. Thicken with the butter rolled in flour. Add the cayenne pepper.

Genevoise Fish Sauce.

USE one onion; half of a [illegible] carrot, two tablespoonfuls of white wine; one and a half pints of stock; the juice of one lemon; half a lemon; three ounces of butter; one bunch of sweet herbs; six cloves; a blade of mace; one bay leaf.

Grease the bottom of the stewpan with the butter. Cut the carrot and onion fine. Place them with the herbs, the bay leaf and the spice in the stewpan. Let all simmer slowly until the onion is soft. Then stir in the stock and the white wine and place the pan on the fire.

Strain through a sieve. Thicken with a piece of butter rolled in flour. Stir until very smooth over the fire. Squeeze in the juice of half a lemon. Let it just boil up.

Bohemian Cream.

Rub through a sieve a pint of fresh strawberries. Add the sugar and the lemon juice. Dissolve the isinglass in half a pint of water. Mix well together and set the bowl on ice, stirring it until it begins to set. Whip a pint of cream to a light froth. Stir it into the strawberries. Pile the whole in a shallow mould and place upon ice until served.

Salad Bohemia.

YOLKS of two raw eggs, two young onions or leeks; three tablespoonfuls of salad oil; one tablespoon of vinegar; six or more lettuce leaves; slices of beet root; one-half teaspoonful of mustard; one-half teaspoonful of salt.

Beat the yolks of the eggs. Add the salt and mustard.

Chop up the onions or leeks as fine as you can. Add them to the eggs, mustard and salt. Stir in the oil, drop by drop, and then the vinegar, a little at a time, beating it well in.

Wash the lettuce leaves and dry them in a napkin. Cut them into fine strips. Add the beet root, also cut into strips. Pour over them the salad oil and vinegar and beat the whole into a thick sauce. Arrange the salad in a deep dish. Spread the slices of beet root over the top. Sprinkle the salt over it. Do not stir the sauce until the moment you use it.

Chantilly Basket.

Butter any tin mould that will serve to form a basket. Dip the macaroons into the barley sugar, which has previously been melted. Fasten them together with the barley sugar, which must be kept hot. Let each row of cakes become cold and firm before the next is arranged upon it. Then take it from the mould and keep in a dry place until wanted. Fill the basket then with the whipped cream which has been drained through a sieve the preceding day and place in the cream ripe strawberries.

Neck of Veal a la Boheme.

THREE pounds of neck of veal; a half dozen very thin slices of bacon; a half dozen slices of lemon also very thin; a bunch of sweet herbs; one spoonful of browning; four cloves; half an ounce of isinglass; three pints of veal broth; salt and pepper to taste.

Prepare the best end of the neck of veal as though for braising. Put a few slices of bacon at the bottom of a stewpan. Lay the slices of veal over the slices of bacon. Lay the neck of veal on this, the larded side uppermost. Add the veal broth, cloves, mace and salt and pepper. Lay some thin slices of the bacon, then back again. Then fold it of veal and then a layer of bacon over the again over the fire, stirring it constantly to veal. Cover it close and let it stew for two hours.

Meanwhile place the isinglass and browning in the veal broth. Boil until the isinglass is dissolved. Strain through a sieve. Put hard-boiled eggs on the top tin in a platter. Strain the liquor into a stewpan and boil it quickly to a glaze. Put in the hot.

Lay the veal on a hot dish with some slices of ham around it. Pour the liquor over it and spread very thickly on buttered toast; in others they must be served very hot in a tureen.

Malay Curry of Prawns.

ONE pound of prawns, one stick of cinnamon, one pint of mutton broth, one teaspoonful of curry powder, half a cocoanut, two tablespoonfuls of hot water, juice of half a lemon, one large dessert spoonful of flour, one onion.

Mince an onion very fine. Put it into a pan with the prawns and the cinnamon. Pour in the mutton broth and season it with salt. Place it over a moderate fire to stew for thirty minutes. Stir in the curry powder. Let the mixture stew for twelve to fifteen minutes longer. Strain the gravy into a clean stewpan. Place the prawns in it and let them simmer again for ten minutes. Scrape the cocoanut into the water. Press it through a sieve. Thicken the milk from the cocoanut with a spoonful of flour. Just before serving the curry stir it into the saucepan and place it over the fire for a few minutes. Squeeze in the juice of a lemon. Serve with boiled rice in a separate dish.

Indian Eggs.

FOUR eggs, three ounces of butter, pepper and salt.

Beat the eggs, yolks and whites together. Place the butter in a dish and place the basin in boiling water, stirring the butter until it is melted. Pour the butter and eggs into a saucepan. Keep a basin in your hand. With the other hand hold the saucepan over the fire, shaking it slowly in one direction. As it begins to wae impour it into the egg and batter more perfectly until they shall be but without boiling. They should be served on a flat dish with some slices of Marmalade With Chips.

ONE pound of oranges, two pints of water, two pounds of sugar, one-third of a lemon.

Pare the oranges and cut the peelings into thin chips; bruise the pulp, but keep out the seed; put all into a stewpan and boil for three and a half hours; then add the sugar and boil over a slow fire for thirty minutes longer.

Grated Marmalade.

Grate the outside of the orange, squeeze the pulp through a sieve, pouring in the water while straining; put in the sieve to boil, adding the sugar and the gratings; boil until you find the gratings getting soft, which will be in about a half hour. If you wish to give a more tart flavor to the marmalade, the juice, pulp and grated peel of one lemon may be added.

Eggs and Spaghetti.

TAKE spaghetti and cook it with a cupful of grated cheese. I always keep my cheese already grated in a jar. When the spaghetti and cheese is cooked, add slices of hard boiled eggs. Serve in a bowl, garnished with pieces of soft toast.

Welsh Broth.

A SCRAG of mutton, any pieces of dressed meat and the bone; a cowheel or oxtail; two turnips; one onion; two carrots, a teaspoonful oatmeal; half a teaspoonful of pepper; half a teaspoonful of salt; a dessert teaspoonful of brown sugar, and the liquor in which a leg of pork or mutton has been boiled.

MY SECRETS OF BEAUTY

No. 63 SPRING RECIPES

By Mme. Lina Cavalieri, the Most Famous Living Beauty.

Mme. Lina Cavalieri.

ME. CAVALIERI writes to-day of the timely topic of remedies for the havoc early Spring works in beauty.

Fourteen valuable recipes are given for preparations that are of special use at this season. There are formulae for lip salves, and a tonic for the hair. "If the hair tonic be not used at any other time it should be vigorously rubbed into the scalp in the Spring," is the advice of the diva, whose own hair is as dark and glossy as the much admired raven's wing.

Mme. Cavalieri says: "March is the month of styes," and tells how to treat those disfigurements. Next week she will write of methods to reduce the weight.

By Lina Cavalieri.

THIN lips are a sensitive feature and have a disposition to sway from the normal. Either they tend to become too thick or too thin. This should be kept in mind when lip salves are being bought or prepared for Spring use, to counteract the drying effect of the March winds.

If thin lips are too thick, or too prominent they can be somewhat reduced by applying freely at night and before going out this pomade:

Pulverized tannin	1 gram
Oil of sweet almonds	150 grams
Spermaceti	35 grams
Virgin wax	15 grams
Rosewater	50 grams
Cologne	10 grams
Balsam of Mecca	1 gram

On the contrary, thin lips can be coaxed into a greater fullness in part by the use of this:

Simple cerate	10 grams
Essence of cinnamon	15 drops
Red pepper	½ gram

Few lips are as moist and soft as nature designed them to be. The practice of biting them, which is the expression of a nervous temperament, and a similar habit of constantly wetting them with the tip of the tongue, tend to dry the live and red hues of their fresh color. To remedy this I have sometimes used this salve, which delightfully freshens and moistens them:

Olive oil	10 grams
White wax	10 grams
Alkanet chips	1 gram

Melt the wax and heat the olive oil in a bain marie. Tie the alkanet chips in a square of muslin and dip them into the mixture for an hour, or until the mixture is the desired color. Strain all and add to them when cool a half dozen drops of your favorite perfume.

In use in the harems is this balm, which some Western girls make in preparation for the severities of Winter and Spring while the roses are blooming in their June gardens:

Camphor	3½ drams
Spermaceti	1 dram
White wax	1 dram
Expressed oil of almonds	4 ozs.
Rosewater	4 ozs.
Oil of rosemary	8 grains
Oil of peppermint	5 grains

The March winds assault the eyes through the thickest veil, and fortunate is the young woman who insists upon going out every day and whose eyes do not become red and watery. For this unbecoming condition this lotion mixed with equal parts of hot water should be applied with an eyecup or eye-dropper three or four times a day. It will be best if it is applied just before going out. On returning from walks or drives lie down and place a bandage wet with the mixture over the closed lids. Before going to sleep it is well to place the moistened bandage over the eyes. It will not only freshen the eyes but the eyelids.

Cornflower water	100 grams
Alcoholat of Montpellier	10 grams
Hydrolat of cherry laurel	5 grams
Boric acid	5 grams

Warm, almost hot, water is refreshing to all eyes, but only those eyes that are especially strong can endure the application of cold water.

For an obstinate case of inflamed and reddened eyes, this is soothing and in time curative:

Distilled water	50 grams
Quince seed mucilage	5 grams
Water of cherry laurel	2 grams
Borax	½ gram

An old English remedy is this ointment:

Oil of birch	5 centigrams
White precipitate	5 grams
White vaseline	5 grams

March has been called "the month of styes." This, far from a poetic title, is in a degree a deserved one, for the stored-up humors of the blood, accumulated during a Winter of indulgence in rich foods, and in over-heated rooms, and late hours, tend to come to the surface and display themselves in unlovely eruptions. It is well to be prepared for styes by laying up a supply of knowledge of remedies for them. There is an old-fashioned belief in the efficiency of ice rubbed upon the stye. It is believed that the ice will scatter the stye. There is a similar belief in the efficacy of a bit of cane sugar gum in the same way. A poultice of flaxseed, or of bread and milk, will prepare the stye for being lanced. Need I say to this enlightened, but hurried age, that the fine needle to be used for this lancing must be sterilized? Dipping it in boiling water will perform that office in thirty seconds. The precaution may save your sight.

Particularly severe are the March winds upon the complexion. Be more than ever thoughtful about putting into the skin a good cold cream and dusting it lightly with powder as a protection for the skin before going out.

White wax	20 grams
Spermaceti	100 grams
Oil of sweet almonds	100 grams
Rosewater	10 grams

Petrolatum	4 drams
White wax	2 drams
Oxide of zinc	21 grains
Yellow oxide of mercury	21 grains
Oil of lavender	10 drops

Oil of sweet almonds	10 centigrams
Subnitrate of lead	4 centigrams
Oxide of zinc	1 centigram
Vaseline	2 grams
Tincture of benzoin	1 drop

Good brandy	1 oz.
Distilled vinegar	1 oz.
Distilled water	10 ozs.

"There is an old-fashioned belief in the curing of styes by camphor gum rubbed upon them."

The skin of liable to become mottled with unsightly, irregular red blotches in March. For these this refining paste, an English cosmetic, is successfully used:

Strained honey	2 ozs.
Whites of two eggs.

Spread these on the face, avoiding the eyelids and brows and lashes.

Many inquiries have come to me for a harmless powder. I recommend this and would advise that its use be begun at once that my readers may get their complexions safely through the vicissitudes that will wait upon them the next two weeks:

Venetian talc	4 oz.
Spermaceti	15 grams

This powder can be prepared at home in this way. Mix the talc and vinegar, stirring them thoroughly. Then set this away in an earthen jar, stirring it now and then to make it smooth. After two weeks mix the resultant powder with the spermaceti and with a little water. Put the paste in a dry jar and cover it to keep it free from dust. This, like all powders, is better applied if the face has been slightly coated with cold cream before applying it.

The hair suffers almost as much as the complexion from the raw, uncompromizing winds of March. It should receive more than its usual need of brushing to preserve its lustre and softness. If a tonic is used at no other time of the year this should be vigorously massaged into the scalp in the Spring.

Oil of sweet almonds	60 grams
Essence of rosemary	60 grams
Oil of mace	2 grams

From Newark comes an earnest query signed "A Poor Working Girl." My interesting young correspondent wants to know "cheap remedies for pimples, blackheads and freckles."

The cheapest remedies for pimples I know are long walks every day, drinking plenty of cool water—say ten glasses a day — and thoroughly masticating your food. For blackheads the cheapest remedy is steaming them. In general, I disapprove of steaming, but to once and finally clear the skin of these pests I would permit it. A stationary wash bowl, or even a tin wash basin, filled with hot water will do for the treatment.

Hold the face close to, but not in, the water, and covering the head and the space between the head and the edge of the bowl with a large towel so that the steam will not escape, steam the face for from five to twenty minutes. Wipe it off with a soft cloth, as an old linen or silk handkerchief, and anointing the spots where the blackheads are situated with olive oil or cold cream, press them gently out. When all are pressed out rub the oil or cold cream gently into the skin, so that the holes left by the removal of the blackheads will heal easily.

The third cheap remedy for freckles is strong lemon juice slightly diluted with water. Dip a bit of absorbent cotton, or clean old white cloth into the juice and pat it upon the freckled surface. A half hour later use cold cream plentifully upon the same spots. Two or three weeks of this treatment should at least lighten ordinary freckles.

A Jersey City correspondent asks me to repeat the formula for a preparation that will keep the hair light. Perhaps she refers to this:

Saffron	1 teacupful

Steep the saffron in the rosemary. Sprinkle it upon the brush and use for a daily brushing of the hair.

A girl writes to ask whether coffee drinking is good for the complexion. In my opinion it is not. Much coffee drinking causes biliousness and no bilious person has a good complexion. Much water drinking and no coffee drinking will work a magic change in one's complexion in a few months. But never drink more than one glass of water at a time. Do most of your drinking on rising, between meals and at retiring.

"If a Hair Tonic Is Used at No Other Time It Should be Vigorously Massaged Into the Scalp in the Spring."

"On returning from a walk or drive lie down and place a moistened bandage over the eyes. Before going to sleep apply lightly the moistened bandage."

FROZEN FUN!

How the American Girl Is Vying With the English Sportswoman On the Fleet Skis and the Toboggan Track.

A "Luge" on an Alpine Steep.

Interlaken, Switzerland, March 7. SKATING is no longer the favorite sport of the Winter Girl. Ski-ing or snow-shoeing has taken its place. During the present Winter the snow-shoe girl was to be seen wherever there was sufficient snow to make the sport interesting, and now that the season is practically over, the out-of-doors girl is making tracks for Canada and the Alps, where the more rigorous climate permits indulgence in the sport long after the bedecking announces the coming of Spring here.

The American girl has been seen in great numbers in all of the Swiss Winter resorts, and, though the sport is of comparatively recent adoption in this country, she competes very creditably with John Bull's more experienced daughters and the native maidens.

At Wengen, above the Lauterbrunnen Valley, in the Swiss Alps, a bevy of American girls have already acquired great reputations as daring ski runners. The fallroad track, which is built down the side of a mountain, plunging down a distance of 5,000 feet, is covered with snow in Winter and makes glorious skating for the bold-hearted. A quick eye, a fearless heart and plenty of red blood are the requirements for the would-be ski runner, and the American representatives at the resort have shown themselves to be possessed of all three.

There are a large number of English girls there, too, among the most adept of whom is Miss Elisabeth Asquith, daughter of the British Premier. Last month she organized a skiing party, consisting of thirty English and American girls. There is not a little danger in the sport, as oftentimes the snow conceals deep gullies and hollows, but the element of risk of life and limb adds zest to the pastime and is perhaps responsible for its great popularity among the girl athletes.

It takes not a little pluck to attach one's self to a pair of skis and start down the side of an icy mountain at a speed of thirty or forty miles an hour, with a possibility of being brought to a sudden stop by some obstacle tree stump, and it is more than one's life is worth to attempt any such feat until a high degree of skill has been attained.

An equally enjoyable and hardly less dangerous pastime for the lover of Winter sport is tobogganing. In the United States the opportunity for the sport is more or less limited by short seasons and poor facilities, but up in Canada and in the Alps no effort is spared to provide elaborate toboggan runs for the votaries of the game.

These toboggan runs are really engineering feats and are very different from the amateurish efforts sometimes seen in this country. Where the Winter snows remain for months at a stretch and the temperature remains below freezing point all through the long Winter season, more or less permanent structures may safely be erected without fear that a sudden thaw will set all the work at naught.

The substantial character of these toboggan runs is well illustrated at Wengen, where the structure starts far up in the pine woods and finishes two or three miles below, with high-banked corners and swift shoots. At one point the course is carried over a dip in the hillside by means of a bridge.

A good deal of work is required to put the runs into proper condition. Where the snow is banked too high it must be removed, and where hollows are too pronounced they must be filled. No effort is made to keep the course particularly straight, as the more difficult curves and angles it contains the better sport it provides. There are sections of this course, and many are the spills that occur at these points. But, whereas the skidding of a tire at the motor car races is almost invariably results in serious disaster and loss of life, an upset on the toboggan run seldom means anything more than a strenuous snow bath, although occasionally a collision has more serious results.

A Tumble on Skis—Looks Dangerous, But Isn't.

All kinds of sleds are to be seen along these runs, from the primitive bob-sled to the more elaborate toboggan-flexible. All sorts of fancy stunts are ventured by the tobogganers. The "pick-a-back" is a great source of amusement both to the participants and the onlookers. A girl rides pick-a-back on the shoulders of a man, while a girl sits astride him, the snow dashing in their faces as they fly down the steep course. The steering is done with the feet, which are used somewhat on the principle of the rudder of a boat, and, where toboggoning is one of the chief features of the winter sports, the temperature is never below zero, the principal Winter sports, the temperature may be at or below zero or eight persons.

All sorts of fancy stunts are ventured which those toboggan runs are built is uniformly low, the climate is so dry that the severe cold is hardly felt, and the snow itself is so atrocious that rosy cheeks and tingling limbs are the order of the day.

In addition to the regular toboggan runs there are numerous hilly sections in both Canada and Switzerland where sledding on a less accustomed course may be attempted. "Logging" is the form the sport takes in such cases, a small bob-sled being used for the purpose. The "logger" may lie flat or, if preferred, may squat on the single sled, which makes good speed over the snow-covered hills.

No More Fat Folks

Double Chins Quickly Removed

If the advice of Miss Edna Wilder is followed, there will be no more fat folks in a short time. She took off thirty pounds of superfluous flesh in less than six weeks, and removed her double chin in two weeks by a treatment of her own discovery, and she generously offers to tell anyone about it who is sufficiently interested to write her. By her method there is nothing to take internally; no face or body bandages to be worn, no exercising, and a simple, harmless, home treatment that any one can use in their own room, without the knowledge of even most intimate friends, and as it is made entirely from vegetable products, there is no danger of its injuring the most delicate complexion in the slightest degree. Any lady who is overstout should send for this book, as it contains many valuable hints, and the book tells all about her wonderful treatment, and she sends with it many letters from ladies who have obtained. It costs you nothing to find out about this treatment, and if you have a large bust, large abdomen, a double chin or unsightly arms, you are sure of the help and advice you need, so get one of the books and write for it at once, for a few of the hundred letters we receive daily will convince you that it is no fake. Address MISS EDNA WILDER, Suite 1580, Rochester, N. Y.

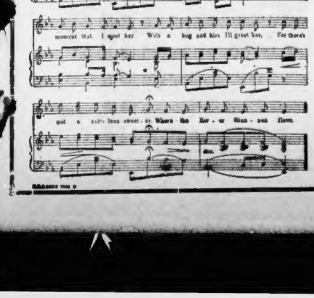
Where The River Shannon Flows



Chorus
Where deer and Shannon flow-ing, Where the deer herd and Shannon flo-ws green, Where my heart lies, I am go-ing, To my lit-tle co-leen, And the moonlight that I sigh-ed for With a hug and kiss I'll give her, For down

Since the time of the immortal "Killarney," no song written on an Irish subject has reached the hearts of the music-loving public as quickly as did the "River Shannon." Both the words and the melody are in perfect accord, and contain all the essentials that play upon human emotions. Truly an inspired composition.

WHO KILLED PROFESSOR GREER?

THE MYSTERY OF THE RED ROOM.—By William Le Queux.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

MUCH mystery surrounds Kershaw Kirk, who lives modestly in Bath Road, Bedford Park, with his wife and two children. Although many suppose him to be a man of means, he is really in poor circumstances. He is known to be in frequent communication with notorious persons. The story opens with Kirk visiting Holford at its motor shop on a mysterious errand about a new tire. At his request, Holford visits him, among the most adept of whom is Miss Elisabeth Asquith, daughter of the British Premier. Last month she organized a skiing party, consisting of thirty English and American girls. There is not a little danger in the sport, as oftentimes the snow conceals deep gullies and hollows, but the element of risk of life and limb adds zest to the pastime and is perhaps responsible for its great popularity among the girl athletes.

It takes not a little pluck to attach one's self to a pair of skis and start down Wengen run more difficult to negotiate the side of an icy mountain at a speed than any spot along the Vanderbilt Cup course, and many are the spills that occur at these points. But, whereas the skidding of a tire at the motor car races is almost invariably results in serious disaster and loss of life, an upset on the toboggan run seldom means anything more than a strenuous snow bath, although occasionally a collision has more serious results.

All kinds of sleds are to be seen along these runs, from the primitive bob-sled to the more elaborate toboggan-flexible. All sorts of fancy stunts are ventured by the tobogganers. The "pick-a-back" is a great source of amusement both to the participants and the onlookers. A girl rides pick-a-back on the shoulders of a man, while a girl sits astride him, the snow dashing in their faces as they fly down the steep course. The steering is done with the feet, which are used somewhat on the principle of the rudder of a boat, and, where toboggoning is one of the chief features of the winter sports, the temperature is never below zero, the principal Winter sports, the temperature may be at or below zero or eight persons.

All sorts of fancy stunts are ventured which those toboggan runs are built is uniformly low, the climate is so dry that the severe cold is hardly felt, and the snow itself is so atrocious that rosy cheeks and tingling limbs are the order of the day.

In addition to the regular toboggan runs there are numerous hilly sections in both Canada and Switzerland where sledding on a less accustomed course may be attempted. "Logging" is the form the sport takes in such cases, a small bob-sled being used for the purpose. The "logger" may lie flat or, if preferred, may squat on the single sled, which makes good speed over the snow-covered hills.

FOXY GRANDPA AND LITTLE BROTHER

The Boys Bolt In Foxy Grandpa and Little Brother, but Soon Wish They Had Not Done So.

1. GRANDPA—Hello! I wonder what my little man is going to the tool house for? I'll see.

2. BOYS—Here is our chance to bolt them in.

3. BOYS—This is certainly the time we have them.

4. BOYS—A home run for us!

5. GRANDPA—Hello, boys—what's your hurry?

6. GRANDPA—Now, boys, that you have had your little joke, just carry that tool house right back where it belongs.

SUNDAY AMERICAN EXAMINER PATTERNS

No. 8663 Ladies' Dressing Sacque with New Styles of Sleeves. No. 8664 An Attractive Frock for the Little Miss Easily at Home

NO. 8663.

DRESSING sacques are always desirable and a necessary adjunct to a woman who likes a comfortable garment for wear about the house. The design here shown may be finished with a round or sailor collar and bishop or flowing sleeves, as preferred. The skirt piece, or peplum, is cut circular and joined to the sacque with the belt. White dotted swiss, with edging of French "Val," will be very dainty and effective.

The pattern is cut in six sizes—32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure—and requires 3 yards of 44-inch material for the 36-in. size.

THIS model is one of the prettiest of the season's styles for girls. In reseda cashmere, with piping of green velvet, and the chemisette covered with a new fancy mesh green, this design will make a becoming Sunday dress; or in brown cheviot serge, trimmed with black soutache, it will make a nice school dress.

The pattern is cut in four sizes—6, 8, 10 and 12 years—and requires 4 yards of 36-inch material for the 10-year size.

To obtain either of these two desirable patterns, fill in the accompanying coupon and mail, with 10c. for each in silver or stamps, to SUNDAY PATTERNS,

Post Office Box 260, New York City.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—Send 10 cents for our NEW 1910 CATALOGUE, containing over 400 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, embroidery, etc.
